Seven Billions May Be Sought For Europe Aid

Help Is Imperative, Marshall Declares

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (INS) — Secretary of State Marshall told a secret White House conference of business, labor and farm leaders today that America must aid Europe or risk seeing the remaining old world democracies disappear.

The meeting, called by Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, brought 100 top representatives of American life together to discuss foreign and domestic problems.

Steelman, Marshall, Commerce Secretary Harriman, Agriculture Secretary Anderson and other key federal officials said that the cost of assisting European recovery would not overtax United States economy.

Domestic Affairs Discussed

A leading participant in the conference revealed that the discussions were not narrowed down to Secretary of State Marshall's European rehabilitation plan, but covered the entire field of domestic and international affairs. The participant said:

"The conference was told that the United States has to help Europe recover, and that Europe already has begun the big job of helping herself recover.

"The conferees were informed that America could play a major part in putting Europe back on her feet without harming United States economy too much."

The conference was called amid reports that Congress would be asked to appropriate six or seven billion dollars for the first year of the Marshall plan. The meeting lasted about four hours.

Earlier, Presidential Secretary Ross said that there would be no announcement concerning details of the discussions. Ross declared:

"It is simply a case of presenting the facts to them. It is not to enlist support for any particular policy.

Views Exchanged

"I think a good word for the meeting would be that it is a seminar for an exchange of views and a briefing of those representative citizens on many current situations and problems facing the nation today."

One of the main objectives of the meeting, however, was apparently to explain the reasons why President Truman called a special session of Congress November 17 to deal with foreign aid and high prices.

The six or seven billion dollar European aid figure was based on information reaching certain members of Congress, who also were told that this was the only immediate request in sight.

Drive "Hitting Stride"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (INS)—Charles Luckman reported tonight that the food-saving drive "is hitting its stride" but warned that "the next 60 days are critical" if Europe is to be spared starvation and possible Communist domination.

The chairman of the Citizens' Food Committee, in an ABC radio speech, also disclosed that the committee and the Agriculture Department are preparing a nationwide program to assist farmers in saving grain.

When President Truman called on the 38-year-old industrialist to direct the voluntary conservation campaign the Chief Executive said 100 million extra bushels of grain must be found to tide Europe's western democracies over the winter.

Slayer Of Three Women Is Sentenced To Chair

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP)—Circuit Judge William H. Schannen today sentenced Ralph W. Lobaugh to die in the electric chair at the state prison after the 30-year-old former Kokomo, Ind., factory worker had pleaded guilty to a charge of killing three Fort Wayne women.

Judge Schannen set February 9, 1948, as the date for Lobaugh's execution.

Lobaugh received the sentence calmly.

Before the judge imposed sentence, Deputy Prosecutor Chester A. Lincoln asked: "Now, Ralph, you realize the seriousness of this; did you murder those three young women?"

"Yes, I did," Lobaugh replied in a firm voice.

The victims were Wilhelma Haaga, 38; Anna Kuzeff, 22, and Dorothea Howard, 32.

STARS AT CAPITAL—Posing against a Capitol dome background as they arrived for a session of the House Un-American Activities Committee hearing yesterday are a group of Hollywood stars. ## At Least 43 Are Killed In Swedish Plane Crash

Big Airliner Plows Into Greek Mountain

ATHENS, Oct. 27 (AP) — A Swedish airliner, officially reported as carrying 43 or more persons, crashed last night atop towering Mount Hymettos, 12 miles southeast of Athens, killing all aboard.

The plane, a four-engined Skymaster en route from Istanbul, Turkey, to Athens, virtually disintegrated when it crashed and caught fire.

(The Swedish airlines system ABA announced tonight at its office in Istanbul, Turkey, that the only two American passengers aboard were Gloria Marie Rusch, 24, Dallas, Tex., a United States State Department secretary en route from Manila to Oslo, Norway, and Edwin Wanner, 39, Washington, D. C., described as a businessman.)

Last contact with the plane was by radio from Hassani Airfield on the Attic Plain, when it reported it would land in 20 minutes.

Mount Hymettos, noted in ancient times for its honey and marble, rises more than 3,000 feet above the plain. The crash occurred immediately west of the village of Koropi Attica.

Searchers said wreckage was scattered for a distance of 500 yards. An Associated Press photographer who was among the first to scale the rocky ascent to the scene said:

"It was a ghastly sight. There were only three or four whole bodies remaining."

Scattered about the area were diplomatic passports, thermos bottles, maps, and fur-lined jackets. Because of the rocky terrain, it was thought unlikely that any of the bodies can be removed before tomorrow.

Clipper Plane Sought

JUNEAU, Alaska, Oct. 27 (AP) — The Coast Guard rushed three boats to a spot between Mary Island and Annette Island on the possibility that an oil slick reported sighted there might be a clue to the Pan American World Airways clipper plane missing since Sunday afternoon with 18 aboard.

This was one of a series of unconfirmed reports received by searchers. The Coast Guard denied a report circulating in Ketchikan that plane wreckage had been sighted on Percy island, about 15 miles south of Annette.

Annette Island is about 15 miles west of Ketchikan.

Pan American officials reported from Annette Island at 3:01 p. m. (PST) that no clues on the fate of the clipper had been found during the day's intensive aerial search over the 280 miles of the Southeastern Alaska coastline from Annette to Juneau.

Clouds down to 1,500 feet obscured peaks of the island-studded inland passage most of the day, hampering exploration of the higher elevations from the air. Weather conditions were improving late in the afternoon.

Weary Refugees From Maine Fire Disaster Return

Red Tape Slashed To Provide Housing

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 27 (AP)—Weary refugees from Maine's worst forest fire disaster straggled homeward today, many to piles of ashes, after more than a week of forest blazes in which the nation counted 22 dead and $32,000,000 property damage.

Although the many fires were reported under control, fatigued firemen and volunteers maintained constant vigil over smouldering, parched forests lest predicted high winds start flames on a new rampage.

The month-long drought continued, with little hope for prayed-for rain to spread a blanket of safety.

Red Tape Is Slashed

In Red Cross vehicles, trucks and private cars, the first contingent of male evacuees returned to Bar Harbor, where many magnificent estatese were levelled by flames that roared into the summer playground from the tall timber of Mt. Desert Island's Acadia National Park.

With winter's cold weather fast approaching, state and federal authorities slashed red tape to provide housing and other supplies to sufferers.

The first prefabricated metal buildings—150 of them—are en route from Syracuse, N. Y.

To step up flow of materials to Maine, which has been declared a disaster area by President Truman, the War Assets Administration set up headquarters at Augusta, the state capital.

Homeless May Borrow

At Bangor, John H. Magee, Maine director of the Federal Housing Administration, said the "unlimited resources" of the nation's banking and financial institutions would be available for borrowing by the homeless.

Not until the men re-establish the business life of Bar Harbor and restore a semblance of order in those homes which escaped the fire's fury, will their womenfolk and children be permitted to return. Those families whose homes remain standing will come back first.

Spectacular Fire

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27 (AP)—A paint company warehouse containing cleaning crystals on Cleveland's Southwest Side was razed in a spectacular fire and series of violent explosions today and several adjoining buildings were damaged. Fire Chief James E. Granger estimated losses at upwards of $75,000.

Mikolajczyk May Have Had Foreign Help In Escape

Poles Believe He'll Turn Up In England

WARSAW, Oct. 27 (AP)—A Polish government spokesman said today there was "circumstantial evidence" that foreign help enabled Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, anti-Communist leader of the opposition Polish Peasant Party, to flee Poland.

He said the government had launched an investigation to learn whether negligence on the part of frontier guards or security police was responsible for Mikolajczyk, his secretary, three aides and their wives getting out of the country.

Most Poles believe Mikolajczyk will turn up in England. There was no official word on his present whereabouts.

Party May Be Remodeled

It was expected that a general council of the left wing members of Mikolajczyk's party would be held in the next two weeks to remodel the party along lines acceptable to the Communist-led Polish government.

Parliament opens on Wednesday and about 25 members of the Polish Peasant Party who won election last January will receive an ultimatum shortly thereafter to support the Communists or resign, some sources said.

The spokesman was asked whether any foreign power had aided Mikolajczyk in his flight, and he answered there was "circumstantial evidence" to that effect. He declined to elaborate but predicted Mikolajczyk soon would be reunited with his son, Marjan, a student at Cambridge University in England. Mrs. Mikolajczyk is also in England.

England Would Give Sanctuary

In London C. P. Mayhew, British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons Mikolajczyk would be given sanctuary in England. Close associates of the Polish leader in the British capital said he was safely out of his homeland.

(Pravda, the official Communist Party newspaper in Moscow, published a Tass dispatch from Warsaw on the disappearance headlined "Mikolajczyk's flight from Poland." There was no comment.

The United States State Department in Washington said it had no knowledge of Mikolajczyk's whereabouts. A press officer declined to say whether the United States would grant the Polish leader permission to stay within its borders.)

Brazil Senate Votes To Oust Communists

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 27 (INS)—The Brazilian Senate voted tonight to oust all Communist legislators throughout the country by cancelling their mandates.

The motion was aimed at Sen. Luiz Carlos Prestes, leader of the powerful Communist Party, 18 members of the Chamber of Deputies and 500 state and municipal officeholders throughout Brazil.

No Bed For Man Who Sent Bullet Through His Head

WATERLOO, Ia., Oct. 27. (AP)—A Waterloo man fired a .25 caliber bullet through his head today and a short time later walked down the stairs of his home to an ambulance, Detective Tom Wood said.

Police identified the man as Floyd J. Smith, 54. The attending physician said the bullet entered the right side of his head just forward of the temple, passed entirely through his head and emerged on the opposite side.

Attendants at St. Francis Hospital reported later that Smith refused to stay in bed and was walking about the hospital building.

Navy's Top Men Declare U. S. Must Have Big Fleet

Warnings Sounded By Sullivan, Blandy

[By The Associated Press]

Top naval officers told the nation yesterday that the United States must maintain a powerful Navy to defend American foreign policy and American freedoms "whenever and wherever they are challenged."

Direct and indirect references to Russia and the encroachments of Communism marked the series of Navy Day addresses in cities from coast to coast.

Speaking at New Orleans, Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan declared that since V-J Day this country's military, naval and air strength has been pared down to "a shadow" of its wartime might and that demobilization has "put the major part of our fleet in 'mothballs.'"

The result, he said, has been that United States representatives in the United Nations Council have found their tasks "increasingly difficult."

Russian Not Mentioned By Name

"There are forces loose in the world today which are inimical to our government and to our way of life—forces whose ideologies are at cross purposes with the democratic processes of peace-loving people.

"The time has come when we must count it a privilege to be among those who would be as bold in the pursuit of peace as we were daring in our recent months of battle for survival."

At Birmingham, Ala., Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey sounded a warning against American unpreparedness as the "No. 1 threat to our security and to the peace of the world."

Declaring he had seen this country enter two wars unprepared, Halsey asked: "Are we fool enough to go to sleep for the third time?

"I'm just old-fashioned enough to believe that we must keep an iron fist within a velvet glove."

Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet, declared at Indianapolis that economic help alone may save Europe from Communism but "we must never forget that aggressors understand armed strength better than any other argument."

Atom Warfare Mentioned

"The liberties of freemen everywhere are threatened by an insidious and stifling ideology of despair called Communism," Blandy said.

He described as "completely fallacious" the theory that a major nation could be subdued by 24 hours of atomic bombing, because, he said, "a virile nation strongly armed and battling for a vital issue is not going to quit while it can fight back."

At Cleveland, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royal also touched on the possibility of atomic warfare, declaring:

"The atomic bomb and other new means of destruction may possibly be outlawed by agreement, or, if not, may become dormant through fear of reprisal—as was largely the case with poison gas in this war."

Icy Mountain Claims Lives Of Two Girls

SANTA FE, N. M., Oct. 27 (AP)—A guide who led two office girls on a tragic climb up New Mexico's second highest mountain told late today how one of the women slid screaming to the brink of a ravine and, after futile rescue efforts, both later tumbled to death during "a night of horror."

The story came from Sam Martin, Truchas village farmer, who said he sought for hours to succor them as the pair clung "precariously to an icy rock, weeping and pleading, "please do something, we're freezing to death."

The women, both secretaries at the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos project, were Frances B. Krauss, 34, former WAC from Baltimore, and Mildred Hartig, 25, Evansville, Ind.

Bodies Brought Out

Weary soldiers and state police brought out the battered bodies by horseback and ambulance this afternoon, more than 24 hours after starting a search.

A coroner's jury found the two died from the double effects of injuries and exposure to near-zero weather on 13,275-foot Truchas Peak, in the Sangre De Cristo Mountains 40 miles northeast of Santa Fe.

Martin, who accompanied the amateur climbers into the mountains last Saturday morning, and State Policeman Jerry Brunk found the bodies last night.

The guide gave this account of intervening events:

Shortcut Suggestion Fatal

After climbing the peak Saturday, the women and Martin started the descent between 3 and 4 p. m. One of the girls suggested a shortcut across a wide expanse of ice, and against Martin's advice, Miss Krauss started across the slippery slope.

She had gone only a short distance when she fell, sliding several hundred feet on the ice and cutting her leg and head.

Martin and Miss Hartig reached her, but were unable to remove her without a rope. Miss Hartig, at her own insistence, remained with Miss Krauss while Martin set out for the rope.

He left them clutching to a small rock to keep from sliding down the mountainside.

Lane Proclaims Special Session

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP)—Gov. Lane made it official today that the General Assembly will convene November 5, while the Legislative Council made ready to look into some of the less controversial matters which may come up.

Lane announced last night that he would call a special session to start at 2 p. m. Wednesday, November 5, and today issued the formal proclamation.

The proclaimed purpose was to provide extra revenues needed by the City of Baltimore, but the new Maryland sales tax and some other matters will certainly be considered.

The Legislative Council's task at a meeting in Baltimore tomorrow will be mainly to discuss several local bills which members have asked to be considered at the special session.

Dr. Horace E. Flack, head of the Legislative Reference Bureau, said there probably would be 12 or 15 such measures before the council, although all have not been presented as yet.

The council also is scheduled to meet next Monday and discuss the tax bill which will be drafted to tide over Baltimore City.

The form of the Baltimore tax bill has not been disclosed but it was not expected to create much controversy when actually introduced in the Legislature. That also would be true of the various local bills.

Debate will be centered upon the sales tax and any modifications which may be proposed. Several opponents have said an attempt will be made to repeal the law, or at the least make some changes.

Ruhr Program Accepted

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The 12-point Anglo-American program to increase Ruhr coal production has been accepted by both the British and American governments, the British Foreign Office said tonight.

Schwellenbach Flays Congress

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27 (AP) — Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach accused the Republican-controlled Congress tonight of "fumbling and bungling" and said that, in contrast, the Truman administration has built up a good record.

The Secretary, a close friend of President Truman, delivered what was interpreted by some Washington observers and government officials as an opening blast of the Democratic presidential campaign of 1948.

It was an out-and-out political speech prepared for delivery at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner sponsored by the Democratic County Executive Committee. The Republican city chairman, David W. Harris, accused the Democrats of disregarding the President's food saving campaign by holding the dinner.

Schwellenbach praised the Truman record in the Senate and White House, and denounced the Republican administrations of Harding and Hoover in the light of their campaign promises of 1920 and 1928.

Schwellenbach said "cry babies" in Congress thought a Cabinet officer should remain silent on political issues, and added:

"I refuse to place myself behind any iron curtain."

He said he expected severe criticism from members of Congress for speaking on anything which borders on politics.

Fire-Swept Auto Backs Itself Out Of Calif. Garage

WOODLAKE, Calif., Oct. 27. (AP)—This is how the State Division of Forestry says it happened:

Betty Cristallo's car caught fire and was destroyed. But the short circuit which started the blaze apparently activated the starter, which sent the car rolling backwards into the driveway, thereby saving the garage and probably the house nearby.

DEFIES PROBERS — John Howard Lawson, screen writer, is shown leaving the witness stand of the House Un-American Activities Committee yesterday after he was excused when he refused to state whether he is or ever has been a Communist. The investigators cracked down with contempt action.

U. S. Joins Russia In Move To Curb Talk Of New War

Anti-"Warmonger" Measure Rejected

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Soviet Union backed down today on its charges of "warmongering" in the United States, Greece and Turkey, and was then joined by the United States in a world-wide condemnation of talk that might disrupt the peace.

The rare example of accord followed close upon the defeat of Russia's anti-"warmonger" charges in a watered-down version proposed by the Siviet bloc to eliminate specific accusations against the United States, Greece and Turkey. There were evidences of continued discord, however.

Russia Agrees To Amendment

In the final round of debate before the 57-member United Nations Assembly's Political Committee, Soviet Chief Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky said he wanted the record to show that no vote had been taken on the section relating to the three countries involved in the Truman aid program.

Earlier, Vishinsky had agreed to a Polish amendment which eliminated all specific mention of the United States, Greece and Turkey as alleged "warmongers."

This had been done in a last-minute effort by Rusia to save her solution from defeat or at least in more minority support. It was voted down anyway—paragraph by paragraph.

Then in a conciliatory move with some elements of surprise, Russia was joined by the United States in a 56 to 0 vote of the United Nations—with Haiti recorded as absent—to condemn "all forms of propaganda" which would be "likely to provoke or encourage any threat to the peace."

Austin Is Hopeful

This vote came on a compromise proposal offered jointly by France, Australia and Canada and amended by the United States.

United States Delegate Warren R. Austin told reporters after the meeting that the approved joint resolution was a complete nothing substitute for the Soviet proposal and said "there is absolutely nothing left of the imputation of warmongering by the United States, Greece and Turkey."

"This is wonderful to have us all vote the same way," Austin said. "I hope it is a sign of a change in the atmosphere here."

Probers Cite Movie Writer For Contempt

Attempts To Hamper Hearing Denounced

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — (AP) — Movie Writer John Howard Lawson defiantly refused today to tell congressional investigators of Hollywood whether he is a Communist and they cracked down with contempt action in a roaring and turbulent session.

Lawson, who was described by an earlier witness as in direct charge of Red activities in the movie capital, thundered to a House Un-American Activities Subcommittee that it is none of its business whether he is a Communist or what political views he holds.

Fireworks flared again at a later point, when Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) said that it "makes me boil" that certain persons, whom he did not name, had asked the committee to "lay off" the investigation.

Thomas said these persons tried "all the tricks of the trade" to hamper the inquiry and that some, "of dubious character," had communicated with the committee in an attempt to keep certain persons off the witness stand and to prevent certain questions from being asked.

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association, was on the stand at the time. He said that no one in that association had asked that the investigation be postponed or that any person not be called to testify.

Voices Rise, Temper Soar

The high point, clearly, came when Lawson bluntly and loudly defied the committee.

Voices rose. Tempers soared like skyrockets. A gavel beat a steady tattoo.

Back among hundreds of other spectators 20-odd movie actors, actresses and other Hollywood figures — Lauren Bacall, Humphrey Bogart, Evelyn Keyes, Paul Henreid—stretched for a look.

They were among a group flying here to protest the committee's procedure.

Four times Lawson was given a chance to say whether he is or ever has been a Communist Party member. Four times he challenged the committee's right to inquire into such things.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) roared that the committee would get the answer if it took "all week." But in a matter of moments, Thomas angrily ejected Lawson from the witness stand. Then Thomas and other committee members voted to start contempt proceedings against the witness.

Things were more peaceful when Eric Johnston started off the afternoon session and said that when he first took over as president of the Motion Picture Association of America, producers turned down his suggestion that they not hire "proven Communists."

That was a couple of years ago.

Legal Troubles Feared

Johnston said the reasons were fear of legal troubles, on grounds they might be "conspiring" to keep people out of jobs, and the difficulty of proving somebody is a Communist.

Just before the committee quit for the day, Thomas told Johnston:

"What you saw this morning is typical of what you will see the rest of this week and maybe part of next week. It makes no difference if you have a lot of glamor girls out there and a lot of money behind you. If they are Communists, they're going to be exposed."

Johnston was allowed to read a prepared statement that was critical of the committee in spots. He

Death Toll In English Train Wreck Reaches 23

GOSWICK, England, Oct. 27 (AP)—The fatality toll of an Edinburgh-London express train wreck near this town rose to 23 tonight with the death of one of the 71 injured.

The casualties resulted when the express jumped the track yesterday in Britain's second rail disaster in three days.

Fear was expressed that the death list might rise to 28. The London Northeastern Railway, on which the wreck occurred, said three dining car stewards and two Edinburgh businessmen who had reservations were missing.

Clothes Argument Ends When Girl Kills Older Sister With Scissors

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—A two-year-old argument between two teen-aged sisters over the borrowing of each other's clothes was ended today, Police Capt. Daniel Healy said, when the younger girl hurled a pair of scissors and fatally wounded the elder.

Adeline Sawistowski, 18, was fatally injured when the scissors with seven-inch blades, embedded themselves in her chest. Capt. Healy said her sister, Irene, 16, threw the scissors in an argument after Adeline had accused Irene of lending a girl friend a dress Adeline had bought a month ago.

The police captain said Irene, who was detained without charge, gave this version of the tragedy:

The argument, which had flared intermittently for two years, started again at lunch today. After the meal, Adeline was seated at the kitchen table, Irene at the sewing machine.

"After we had finished eating," Capt. Healy quoted Irene as saying, "we just kept arguing about everything. I got so mad I just picked up whatever was at the sewing machine and threw it at Adeline. Adeline got up and staggered over to the kitchen sink. She didn't know what happened. I started screaming."

John O'Leary, UMW Vice President, Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27 (AP)—John J. O'Leary, vice president of the United Mine Workers, died in St. Luke's Hospital early today of a heart ailment. He was 67.

The veteran union official had been critically ill about a week, but improvement in his condition was reported last night.

He was born in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania and worked for many years in the mines at Carbondale. He became an international board member of the UMW 24 years ago.

O'Leary was a close friend of John L. Lewis, UMW chieftain, and was with him during the recent AFL international convention in San Francisco.

O'Leary was stricken with a severe heart attack in his hotel room a day after close of the American Federation of Labor convention, which he had attended.

The body will leave for Pittsburgh tonight, accompanied by Lewis, Mrs. Mary Murphy O'Leary, the widow, and Miss Elizabeth Murphy, also of Pittsburgh.

Elizabeth And Mountbatten Will Honeymoon In England, Scotland

LONDON, Oct. 27 (INS)—A royal announcement from Buckingham Palace said tonight Princess Elizabeth and Philip Mountbatten will honeymoon in England and Scotland.

This apparently ruled out the chance that they would journey to America, although it did not preclude the possibility that the couple might decide to travel to the United States later on.

A modest house in Scotland where King George VI and Queen Elizabeth vacationed before fate thrust them on a throne will be one of the honeymoon homes.

The first part of the honeymoon, however, will be spent in a charming 18th century estate which is the home of Lord and Lady Mountbatten.

Lord Mountbatten, British Viceroy in the Dominion of India, is the uncle of the former Greek prince who will marry Elizabeth at Westminster Abbey November 20.

Following the wedding, Elizabeth and Philip will travel by train to Romsey, Hampshire, where Broadlands, the Mountbatten estate is located in the midst of a forest.

The royal announcement made no mention of the length of the honeymoon.

Clipper Plane Sought

JUNEAU, Alaska, Oct. 27 (AP) — The Coast Guard rushed three boats to a spot between Mary Island and Annette Island on the possibility that an oil slick reported sighted there might be a clue to the Pan American World Airways clipper plane missing since Sunday afternoon with 18 aboard.

This was one of a series of unconfirmed reports received by searchers. The Coast Guard denied a report circulating in Ketchikan that plane wreckage had been sighted on Percy island, about 15 miles south of Annette.

Annette Island is about 15 miles west of Ketchikan.

Pan American officials reported from Annette Island at 3:01 p. m. (PST) that no clues on the fate of the clipper had been found during the day's intensive aerial search over the 280 miles of the Southeastern Alaska coastline from Annette to Juneau.

Clouds down to 1,500 feet obscured peaks of the island-studded inland passage most of the day, hampering exploration of the higher elevations from the air. Weather conditions were improving late in the afternoon.

Weary Refugees From Maine Fire Disaster Return

Red Tape Slashed To Provide Housing

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 27 (AP)—Weary refugees from Maine's worst forest fire disaster straggled homeward today, many to piles of ashes, after more than a week of forest blazes in which the nation counted 22 dead and $32,000,000 property damage.

Although the many fires were reported under control, fatigued firemen and volunteers maintained constant vigil over smouldering, parched forests lest predicted high winds start flames on a new rampage.

The month-long drought continued, with little hope for prayed-for rain to spread a blanket of safety.

Red Tape Is Slashed

In Red Cross vehicles, trucks and private cars, the first contingent of male evacuees returned to Bar Harbor, where many magnificent estatese were levelled by flames that roared into the summer playground from the tall timber of Mt. Desert Island's Acadia National Park.

With winter's cold weather fast approaching, state and federal authorities slashed red tape to provide housing and other supplies to sufferers.

The first prefabricated metal buildings—150 of them—are en route from Syracuse, N. Y.

To step up flow of materials to Maine, which has been declared a disaster area by President Truman, the War Assets Administration set up headquarters at Augusta, the state capital.

Homeless May Borrow

At Bangor, John H. Magee, Maine director of the Federal Housing Administration, said the "unlimited resources" of the nation's banking and financial institutions would be available for borrowing by the homeless.

Not until the men re-establish the business life of Bar Harbor and restore a semblance of order in those homes which escaped the fire's fury, will their womenfolk and children be permitted to return. Those families whose homes remain standing will come back first.

Spectacular Fire

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27 (AP)—A paint company warehouse containing cleaning crystals on Cleveland's Southwest Side was razed in a spectacular fire and series of violent explosions today and several adjoining buildings were damaged. Fire Chief James E. Granger estimated losses at upwards of $75,000.

Mikolajczyk May Have Had Foreign Help In Escape

Poles Believe He'll Turn Up In England

WARSAW, Oct. 27 (AP)—A Polish government spokesman said today there was "circumstantial evidence" that foreign help enabled Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, anti-Communist leader of the opposition Polish Peasant Party, to flee Poland.

He said the government had launched an investigation to learn whether negligence on the part of frontier guards or security police was responsible for Mikolajczyk, his secretary, three aides and their wives getting out of the country.

Most Poles believe Mikolajczyk will turn up in England. There was no official word on his present whereabouts.

Party May Be Remodeled

It was expected that a general council of the left wing members of Mikolajczyk's party would be held in the next two weeks to remodel the party along lines acceptable to the Communist-led Polish government.

Parliament opens on Wednesday and about 25 members of the Polish Peasant Party who won election last January will receive an ultimatum shortly thereafter to support the Communists or resign, some sources said.

The spokesman was asked whether any foreign power had aided Mikolajczyk in his flight, and he answered there was "circumstantial evidence" to that effect. He declined to elaborate but predicted Mikolajczyk soon would be reunited with his son, Marjan, a student at Cambridge University in England. Mrs. Mikolajczyk is also in England.

England Would Give Sanctuary

In London C. P. Mayhew, British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons Mikolajczyk would be given sanctuary in England. Close associates of the Polish leader in the British capital said he was safely out of his homeland.

(Pravda, the official Communist Party newspaper in Moscow, published a Tass dispatch from Warsaw on the disappearance headlined "Mikolajczyk's flight from Poland." There was no comment.

The United States State Department in Washington said it had no knowledge of Mikolajczyk's whereabouts. A press officer declined to say whether the United States would grant the Polish leader permission to stay within its borders.)

Brazil Senate Votes To Oust Communists

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 27 (INS)—The Brazilian Senate voted tonight to oust all Communist legislators throughout the country by cancelling their mandates.

The motion was aimed at Sen. Luiz Carlos Prestes, leader of the powerful Communist Party, 18 members of the Chamber of Deputies and 500 state and municipal officeholders throughout Brazil.

No Bed For Man Who Sent Bullet Through His Head

WATERLOO, Ia., Oct. 27. (AP)—A Waterloo man fired a .25 caliber bullet through his head today and a short time later walked down the stairs of his home to an ambulance, Detective Tom Wood said.

Police identified the man as Floyd J. Smith, 54. The attending physician said the bullet entered the right side of his head just forward of the temple, passed entirely through his head and emerged on the opposite side.

Attendants at St. Francis Hospital reported later that Smith refused to stay in bed and was walking about the hospital building.

Clothes Argument Ends When Girl Kills Older Sister With Scissors

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—A two-year-old argument between two teen-aged sisters over the borrowing of each other's clothes was ended today, Police Capt. Daniel Healy said, when the younger girl hurled a pair of scissors and fatally wounded the elder.

Adeline Sawistowski, 18, was fatally injured when the scissors with seven-inch blades, embedded themselves in her chest. Capt. Healy said her sister, Irene, 16, threw the scissors in an argument after Adeline had accused Irene of lending a girl friend a dress Adeline had bought a month ago.

The police captain said Irene, who was detained without charge, gave this version of the tragedy:

The argument, which had flared intermittently for two years, started again at lunch today. "After the meal, Adeline was seated at the kitchen table, Irene at the sewing machine.

"After we had finished eating," Capt. Healy quoted Irene as saying, "we just kept arguing about everything. I got so mad I just picked up whatever was at the sewing machine and threw it at Adeline. Adeline got up and staggered over to the kitchen sink. She didn't know what happened. I started screaming."

John O'Leary, UMW Vice President, Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27 (AP)—John J. O'Leary, vice president of the United Mine Workers, died in St. Luke's Hospital early today of a heart ailment. He was 67.

The veteran union official had been critically ill about a week, but improvement in his condition was reported last night.

He was born in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania and worked for many years in the mines at Carbondale. He became an international board member of the UMW 24 years ago.

O'Leary was a close friend of John L. Lewis, UMW chieftain, and was with him during the recent AFL international convention in San Francisco.

O'Leary was stricken with a severe heart attack in his hotel room a day after close of the American Federation of Labor convention, which he had attended.

The body will leave for Pittsburgh tonight, accompanied by Lewis, Mrs. Mary Murphy O'Leary, the widow, and Miss Elizabeth Murphy, also of Pittsburgh.

Navy's Top Men Declare U. S. Must Have Big Fleet

Warnings Sounded By Sullivan, Blandy

[By The Associated Press]

Top naval officers told the nation yesterday that the United States must maintain a powerful Navy to defend American foreign policy and American freedoms "whenever and wherever they are challenged."

Direct and indirect references to Russia and the encroachments of Communism marked the series of Navy Day addresses in cities from coast to coast.

Speaking at New Orleans, Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan declared that since V-J Day this country's military, naval and air strength has been pared down to "a shadow" of its wartime might and that demobilization has "put the major part of our fleet in 'mothballs.'"

The result, he said, has been that United States representatives in the United Nations Council have found their tasks "increasingly difficult."

Russian Not Mentioned By Name

"There are forces loose in the world today which are inimical to our government and to our way of life—forces whose ideologies are at cross purposes with the democratic processes of peace-loving people.

"The time has come when we must count it a privilege to be among those who would be as bold in the pursuit of peace as we were daring in our recent months of battle for survival."

At Birmingham, Ala., Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey sounded a warning against American unpreparedness as the "No. 1 threat to our security and to the peace of the world."

Declaring he had seen this country enter two wars unprepared, Halsey asked: "Are we fool enough to go to sleep for the third time?

"I'm just old-fashioned enough to believe that we must keep an iron fist within a velvet glove."

Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet, declared at Indianapolis that economic help alone may save Europe from Communism but "we must never forget that aggressors understand armed strength better than any other argument."

Atom Warfare Mentioned

"The liberties of freemen everywhere are threatened by an insidious and stifling ideology of despair called Communism," Blandy said.

He described as "completely fallacious" the theory that a major nation could be subdued by 24 hours of atomic bombing, because, he said, "a virile nation strongly armed and battling for a vital issue is not going to quit while it can fight back."

At Cleveland, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royal also touched on the possibility of atomic warfare, declaring:

"The atomic bomb and other new means of destruction may possibly be outlawed by agreement, or, if not, may become dormant through fear of reprisal—as was largely the case with poison gas in this war."

Icy Mountain Claims Lives Of Two Girls

SANTA FE, N. M., Oct. 27 (AP)—A guide who led two office girls on a tragic climb up New Mexico's second highest mountain told late today how one of the women slid screaming to the brink of a ravine and, after futile rescue efforts, both later tumbled to death during "a night of horror."

The story came from Sam Martin, Truchas village farmer, who said he sought for hours to succor them as the pair clung "precariously to an icy rock, weeping and pleading, "please do something, we're freezing to death."

The women, both secretaries at the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos project, were Frances B. Krauss, 34, former WAC from Baltimore, and Mildred Hartig, 25, Evansville, Ind.

Bodies Brought Out

Weary soldiers and state police brought out the battered bodies by horseback and ambulance this afternoon, more than 24 hours after starting a search.

A coroner's jury found the two died from the double effects of injuries and exposure to near-zero weather on 13,275-foot Truchas Peak, in the Sangre De Cristo Mountains 40 miles northeast of Santa Fe.

Martin, who accompanied the amateur climbers into the mountains last Saturday morning, and State Policeman Jerry Brunk found the bodies last night.

The guide gave this account of intervening events:

Shortcut Suggestion Fatal

After climbing the peak Saturday, the women and Martin started the descent between 3 and 4 p. m. One of the girls suggested a shortcut across a wide expanse of ice, and against Martin's advice, Miss Krauss started across the slippery slope.

She had gone only a short distance when she fell, sliding several hundred feet on the ice and cutting her leg and head.

Martin and Miss Hartig reached her, but were unable to remove her without a rope. Miss Hartig, at her own insistence, remained with Miss Krauss while Martin set out for the rope.

He left them clutching to a small rock to keep from sliding down the mountainside.

Lane Proclaims Special Session

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP)—Gov. Lane made it official today that the General Assembly will convene November 5, while the Legislative Council made ready to look into some of the less controversial matters which may come up.

Lane announced last night that he would call a special session to start at 2 p. m. Wednesday, November 5, and today issued the formal proclamation.

The proclaimed purpose was to provide extra revenues needed by the City of Baltimore, but the new Maryland sales tax and some other matters will certainly be considered.

The Legislative Council's task at a meeting in Baltimore tomorrow will be mainly to discuss several local bills which members have asked to be considered at the special session.

Dr. Horace E. Flack, head of the Legislative Reference Bureau, said there probably would be 12 or 15 such measures before the council, although all have not been presented as yet.

The council also is scheduled to meet next Monday and discuss the tax bill which will be drafted to tide over Baltimore City.

The form of the Baltimore tax bill has not been disclosed but it was not expected to create much controversy when actually introduced in the Legislature. That also would be true of the various local bills.

Debate will be centered upon the sales tax and any modifications which may be proposed. Several opponents have said an attempt will be made to repeal the law, or at the least make some changes.

Ruhr Program Accepted

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The 12-point Anglo-American program to increase Ruhr coal production has been accepted by both the British and American governments, the British Foreign Office said tonight.

Schwellenbach Flays Congress

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27 (AP) — Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach accused the Republican-controlled Congress tonight of "fumbling and bungling" and said that, in contrast, the Truman administration has built up a good record.

The Secretary, a close friend of President Truman, delivered what was interpreted by some Washington observers and government officials as an opening blast of the Democratic presidential campaign of 1948.

It was an out-and-out political speech prepared for delivery at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner sponsored by the Democratic County Executive Committee. The Republican city chairman, David W. Harris, accused the Democrats of disregarding the President's food saving campaign by holding the dinner.

Schwellenbach praised the Truman record in the Senate and White House, and denounced the Republican administrations of Harding and Hoover in the light of their campaign promises of 1920 and 1928.

Schwellenbach said "cry babies" in Congress thought a Cabinet officer should remain silent on political issues, and added:

"I refuse to place myself behind any iron curtain."

He said he expected severe criticism from members of Congress for speaking on anything which borders on politics.

Fire-Swept Auto Backs Itself Out Of Calif. Garage

WOODLAKE, Calif., Oct. 27. (AP)—This is how the State Division of Forestry says it happened:

Betty Cristallo's car caught fire and was destroyed. But the short circuit which started the blaze apparently activated the starter, which sent the car rolling backwards into the driveway, thereby saving the garage and probably the house nearby.

DEFIES PROBERS — John Howard Lawson, screen writer, is shown leaving the witness stand of the House Un-American Activities Committee yesterday after he was excused when he refused to state whether he is or ever has been a Communist. The investigators cracked down with contempt action.

U. S. Joins Russia In Move To Curb Talk Of New War

Anti-"Warmonger" Measure Rejected

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Soviet Union backed down today on its charges of "warmongering" in the United States, Greece and Turkey, and was then joined by the United States in a world-wide condemnation of talk that might disrupt the peace.

The rare example of accord followed close upon the defeat of Russia's anti-"warmonger" charges in a watered-down version proposed by the Siviet bloc to eliminate specific accusations against the United States, Greece and Turkey. There were evidences of continued discord, however.

Russia Agrees To Amendment

In the final round of debate before the 57-member United Nations Assembly's Political Committee, Soviet Chief Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky said he wanted the record to show that no vote had been taken on the section relating to the three countries involved in the Truman aid program.

Earlier, Vishinsky had agreed to a Polish amendment which eliminated all specific mention of the United States, Greece and Turkey as alleged "warmongers."

This had been done in a last-minute effort by Rusia to save her solution from defeat or at least in more minority support. It was voted down anyway—paragraph by paragraph.

Then in a conciliatory move with some elements of surprise, Russia was joined by the United States in a 56 to 0 vote of the United Nations—with Haiti recorded as absent—to condemn "all forms of propaganda" which would be "likely to provoke or encourage any threat to the peace."

Austin Is Hopeful

This vote came on a compromise proposal offered jointly by France, Australia and Canada and amended by the United States.

United States Delegate Warren R. Austin told reporters after the meeting that the approved joint resolution was a complete nothing substitute for the Soviet proposal and said "there is absolutely nothing left of the imputation of warmongering by the United States, Greece and Turkey."

"This is wonderful to have us all vote the same way," Austin said. "I hope it is a sign of a change in the atmosphere here."

Probers Cite Movie Writer For Contempt

Attempts To Hamper Hearing Denounced

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — (AP) — Movie Writer John Howard Lawson defiantly refused today to tell congressional investigators of Hollywood whether he is a Communist and they cracked down with contempt action in a roaring and turbulent session.

Lawson, who was described by an earlier witness as in direct charge of Red activities in the movie capital, thundered to a House Un-American Activities Subcommittee that it is none of its business whether he is a Communist or what political views he holds.

Fireworks flared again at a later point, when Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) said that it "makes me boil" that certain persons, whom he did not name, had asked the committee to "lay off" the investigation.

Thomas said these persons tried "all the tricks of the trade" to hamper the inquiry and that some, "of dubious character," had communicated with the committee in an attempt to keep certain persons off the witness stand and to prevent certain questions from being asked.

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association, was on the stand at the time. He said that no one in that association had asked that the investigation be postponed or that any person not be called to testify.

Voices Rise, Temper Soar

The high point, clearly, came when Lawson bluntly and loudly defied the committee.

Voices rose. Tempers soared like skyrockets. A gavel beat a steady tattoo.

Back among hundreds of other spectators 20-odd movie actors, actresses and other Hollywood figures — Lauren Bacall, Humphrey Bogart, Evelyn Keyes, Paul Henreid—stretched for a look.

They were among a group flying here to protest the committee's procedure.

Four times Lawson was given a chance to say whether he is or ever has been a Communist Party member. Four times he challenged the committee's right to inquire into such things.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) roared that the committee would get the answer if it took "all week." But in a matter of moments, Thomas angrily ejected Lawson from the witness stand. Then Thomas and other committee members voted to start contempt proceedings against the witness.

Things were more peaceful when Eric Johnston started off the afternoon session and said that when he first took over as president of the Motion Picture Association of America, producers turned down his suggestion that they not hire "proven Communists."

That was a couple of years ago.

Legal Troubles Feared

Johnston said the reasons were fear of legal troubles, on grounds they might be "conspiring" to keep people out of jobs, and the difficulty of proving somebody is a Communist.

Just before the committee quit for the day, Thomas told Johnston:

"What you saw this morning is typical of what you will see the rest of this week and maybe part of next week. It makes no difference if you have a lot of glamor girls out there and a lot of money behind you. If they are Communists, they're going to be exposed."

Johnston was allowed to read a prepared statement that was critical of the committee in spots. He

Death Toll In English Train Wreck Reaches 23

GOSWICK, England, Oct. 27 (AP)—The fatality toll of an Edinburgh-London express train wreck near this town rose to 23 tonight with the death of one of the 71 injured.

The casualties resulted when the express jumped the track yesterday in Britain's second rail disaster in three days.

Fear was expressed that the death list might rise to 28. The London Northeastern Railway, on which the wreck occurred, said three dining car stewards and two Edinburgh businessmen who had reservations were missing.

Elizabeth And Mountbatten Will Honeymoon In England, Scotland

LONDON, Oct. 27 (INS)—A royal announcement from Buckingham Palace said tonight Princess Elizabeth and Philip Mountbatten will honeymoon in England and Scotland.

This apparently ruled out the chance that they would journey to America, although it did not preclude the possibility that the couple might decide to travel to the United States later on.

A modest house in Scotland where King George VI and Queen Elizabeth vacationed before fate thrust them on a throne will be one of the honeymoon homes.

The first part of the honeymoon, however, will be spent in a charming 18th century estate which is the home of Lord and Lady Mountbatten.

Lord Mountbatten, British Viceroy in the Dominion of India, is the uncle of the former Greek prince who will marry Elizabeth at Westminster Abbey November 20.

Following the wedding, Elizabeth and Philip will travel by train to Romsey, Hampshire, where Broadlands, the Mountbatten estate is located in the midst of a forest.

The royal announcement made no mention of the length of the honeymoon.

De Gaulle Asks Assembly Dissolution And Elections

PARIS, Oct. 27 (AP)—Gen. De Gaulle made his first open bid for return to power in France today with a demand for dissolution of the National Assembly and the holding of new general elections.

He said the results in the municipal elections, where his anti-Communist Rally of the French People (RPF) Party won nearly 40 per cent of the vote, justified that action.

Parliamentary sources said the immediate effect of his move would be to produce a slight majority for Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier's coalition Cabinet in a vote of confidence to be posed when the Assembly convenes tomorrow.

These sources declared all "Republican forces" were opposed to De Gaulle's proposal, and predicted that the Communists, who have bitterly assailed Ramadier's regime, would abstain when the vote is taken Thursday.

U. S. Government Has "Paramount Rights" To Underwater Oil Lands

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP) — A formal decree saying the federal government has "paramount rights" in underwater oil lands off California was handed down today by the Supreme Court.

But the tribunal pointedly refrained from stating that the government actually owns the lands and left many details to be fought out later.

Following up a decision first announced last June 23, the court adopted a decree proposed by the Justice Department but only after deleting language describing the government's rights as "proprietorship."

The State of California, which claimed the lands, was declared to have no title to them.

The justices declined at this time to pass on an agreement between the United States and California governments permitting holders of state permits to continue to exploit the submerged lands for the time being. That agreement, which runs until next September or until Congress has time to write rules for federal control, remains in effect unless some future litigation upsets it.

Persons wishing to attack the federal-state agreement were advised that the place for their complaints is in federal district court.

In other rulings today the Supreme Court:

Denied William Dudley Pelley, former leader of the Silver Shirts of America, a review of his conviction and 15-year prison sentence for sedition. Pelley already has lost in lower courts.

Agreed to pass on a Michigan State Court finding that the Bob-Lo Excursion Company violated the civil rights of Sarah Ray, negro, in refusing her passage in one of the company's vessels from Detroit to Bob-Lo Island, Ontario, and return. The company contends that the Michigan Anti-Discrimination Act cannot apply to foreign commerce.

Philadelphia Election Showdown On Nov. 4

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27 (AP) — One of the bitterest mayoralty election campaigns in Philadelphia history headed today towards its November 4 showdown with the Democratic candidate labelling the Republican organization "a rotting machine that is falling apart."

No Democrat has been chosen the Quaker City Mayor since the 1881-1884 administration of Samuel G. King. There are 999,855 voters registered with 687,807 Republicans and 290,893 Democrats.

Nevertheless, Richardson Dilworth is conducting a vigorous campaign highlighted by numerous street corner speeches. His Republican opponent, Incumbent Bernard Samuel, has delivered few election talks.

Sen. O'Conor Suggests "National Tax Day"

BOSTON, Oct. 27 (AP) — Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) advocated today that March 15 be set aside as "National Tax Day" in order "to bring home forcibly to all citizens the heavy price they are paying for their government, they ital necessity for keeping our tax house in order, and the imperative need for tax reduction."

In an address prepared for delivery before the National Association of Attorneys General here, the junior Senator from Maryland said the average taxpayer finds "his total taxes require him to work one day out of three for the government."

He declared there was a necessity for "the immediate and thorough overhauling of the whole system of national revenue collection, with an idea of simplification, of elimination of overlapping, and duplicating personnel, and development of a more businesslike tax system."

Credit Firm Will Liberalize Terms After "Regulation W" Expires Nov. 1

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP) — The Commercial Credit Corporation, one of the three largest sales finance concerns of the country, will liberalize its terms after the government's "Regulation W" limiting installment credit expires November 1.

Minimum down payments on new cars will remain at one-third of the selling price, with monthly payments spread over a maximum of 24 months, instead of the present 15, the company announced tonight.

One-third down payment will remain for 1946-47 model used cars, but the customer will have 18 months to pay the balance.

Terms on 1938-42 models will remain the same—one third down and 15 months to pay. Forty per cent down payment and the balance in one year will be required of purchasers of cars of 1937 vintage or older.

A greater spread on time payments will be allowed on all home appliances except radios. The company will require one-fifth down with a maximum of three years to pay the balance.

Radios and radio phonograph buyers will be required to place 20 per cent down and pay off their notes within two years.

De Gaulle Asks Assembly Dissolution And Elections

PARIS, Oct. 27 (AP)—Gen. De Gaulle made his first open bid for return to power in France today with a demand for dissolution of the National Assembly and the holding of new general elections.

He said the results in the municipal elections, where his anti-Communist Rally of the French People (RPF) Party won nearly 40 per cent of the vote, justified that action.

Parliamentary sources said the immediate effect of his move would be to produce a slight majority for Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier's coalition Cabinet in a vote of confidence to be posed when the Assembly convenes tomorrow.

These sources declared all "Republican forces" were opposed to De Gaulle's proposal, and predicted that the Communists, who have bitterly assailed Ramadier's regime, would abstain when the vote is taken Thursday.

Paroled In Morning, Arrested At Night

A man identified as Jack Porter, this city, who was paroled yesterday morning in Circuit Court after he appealed a conviction in Trial Magistrates Court on a vagrancy charge, was a prisoner again last night in City Jail. The charge "drunk."

Officer John Powers said Porter was arrested on the Queen City Brewery Property, at 10 p. m. in a "drunken condition," and explained that he was badly cut about the face in a fall.

U. S. Government Has "Paramount Rights" To Underwater Oil Lands

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP) — A formal decree saying the federal government has "paramount rights" in underwater oil lands off California was handed down today by the Supreme Court.

But the tribunal pointedly refrained from stating that the government actually owns the lands and left many details to be fought out later.

Following up a decision first announced last June 23, the court adopted a decree proposed by the Justice Department but only after deleting language describing the government's rights as "proprietorship."

The State of California, which claimed the lands, was declared to have no title to them.

The justices declined at this time to pass on an agreement between the United States and California governments permitting holders of state permits to continue to exploit the submerged lands for the time being. That agreement, which runs until next September or until Congress has time to write rules for federal control, remains in effect unless some future litigation upsets it.

Persons wishing to attack the federal-state agreement were advised that the place for their complaints is in federal district court.

In other rulings today the Supreme Court:

Denied William Dudley Pelley, former leader of the Silver Shirts of America, a review of his conviction and 15-year prison sentence for sedition. Pelley already has lost in lower courts.

Agreed to pass on a Michigan State Court finding that the Bob-Lo Excursion Company violated the civil rights of Sarah Ray, negro, in refusing her passage in one of the company's vessels from Detroit to Bob-Lo Island, Ontario, and return. The company contends that the Michigan Anti-Discrimination Act cannot apply to foreign commerce.

Philadelphia Election Showdown On Nov. 4

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27 (AP) — One of the bitterest mayoralty election campaigns in Philadelphia history headed today towards its November 4 showdown with the Democratic candidate labelling the Republican organization "a rotting machine that is falling apart."

No Democrat has been chosen the Quaker City Mayor since the 1881-1884 administration of Samuel G. King. There are 999,855 voters registered with 687,807 Republicans and 290,893 Democrats.

Sen. O'Conor Suggests "National Tax Day"

BOSTON, Oct. 27 (AP) — Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) advocated today that March 15 be set aside as "National Tax Day" in order "to bring home forcibly to all citizens the heavy price they are paying for their government, thev ital necessity for keeping our tax house in order, and the imperative need for tax reduction."

In an address prepared for delivery before the National Association of Attorneys General here, the junior Senator from Maryland said the average taxpayer finds "his total taxes require him to work one day out of three for the government."

He declared there was a necessity for "the immediate and thorough overhauling of the whole system of national revenue collection, with an idea of simplification, of elimination of overlapping, and duplicating personnel, and development of a more businesslike tax system."

Heiress Gets Funds

Credit Firm Will Liberalize Terms After "Regulation W" Expires Nov. 1

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP) — The Commercial Credit Corporation, one of the three largest sales finance concerns of the country, will liberalize its terms after the government's "Regulation W" limiting installment credit expires November 1.

Minimum down payments on new cars will remain at one-third of the selling price, with monthly payments spread over a maximum of 24 months, instead of the present 15, the company announced tonight.

One-third down payment will remain for 1946-47 model used cars, but the customer will have 18 months to pay the balance.

Terms on 1938-42 models will remain the same—one third down and 15 months to pay. Forty per cent down payment and the balance in one year will be required of purchasers of cars of 1937 vintage or older.

A greater spread on time payments will be allowed on all home appliances except radios. The company will require one-fifth down with a maximum of three years to pay the balance.

Radios and radio phonograph buyers will be required to place 20 per cent down and pay off their notes within two years.

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The House of Commons rejected by a vote of 252 to 111 tonight a Conservative Party amendment to the King's speech in Parliament last week, expressing regret that the government lacked a "comprehensive" plan to cut down the size of Great Britain's armed forces.

"I don't propose that government shall tell the motion picture industry, directly or by coercion, what kind of pictures it ought to make. I am as whole-souledly against that as I would be against dictating to the press or the radio, to the book publishers or the magazines."

Washington County Fires "Deliberately Set"

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27. (AP)—State Forester Henry C. Buckingham said three forest fires were "definitely set" maliciously today in Washington County and that other recent brush fires in Western Maryland are believed to be of incendiary origin.

Buckingham said state police were called to investigate a series of other woods blazes that have destroyed valuable timberland in the last several days. They were working tonight with district foresters, particularly in Garrett and Allegany counties, Buckingham disclosed.

Pathans Attack Kashmir, India

NEW DELHI, Oct. 27 (AP) —An Indian Government official reported 2,000 or more Pathans from Pakistan's rugged northwest frontier province have invaded sections of the Princely State of Kashmir and looted, raped and killed.

V. P. Menon, secretary of India's Ministry of State, returned by plane from the Kashmir Capital of Srinigar with the report. He said the Moslem invaders had laid waste to the mountain border town of Muzaffarabad, 80 miles west of Srinigar, and were striking against Hindu and Sikh families.

Unconfirmed reports said the invaders were battling Kashmir State forces within 35 to 40 miles of Srinigar. An authoritative New Delhi source predicted India would dispatch aid to help repel the Pathans.

Menon planned to return to Kashmir tomorrow. It was believed in New Delhi he would offer supplies of gasoline ammunition and possibly weapons of Kashmir officials.

A northwest province frontier official said the Pathans had also crossed into Gilgit, which lies only a short distance from the Soviet border, and engaged in similar tactics.

Other published reports here said reports of the Dominion of India had clashed with the forces of Moslem-ruled Junagadh state, in the Kathiawar Peninsula, and six Junagadh soldiers were killed.

Menon said the invaders of Kashmir, well armed with automatic weapons, came from the vicinity of Kyber pass.

Scenery

During this season of Autumnal Glory we were privileged to spend a weekend at the home of the Bradley Kelleys, who have absorbed acreage in the Mark Twain country known as Redding, Conn. Never have I looked upon scenery so beautifully radiant with all the colorings of October. And to spice it all I was reminded of the great Mark Twaine's observation, "Nothing improves scenery like ham and eggs!"

And so it was that upon the breaking of the sunshine the next morning, under the expert culinary artistry of Jerry Kelly we sat down to a delicious breakfast of ham and eggs (though it was bacon, but what's the difference?) and with the matchless scenery wrapping us all in its arms as we ate; and outside, all about us, dogwood, maple, sumac, oak, elm—and all their cousins, in unity, expressing the season's burst of beauty and celebration. A perfect Autumn day. (But with friends it is always a perfect day).

All the time I kept thinking of America, with its homes—many of the mhumble and neat hidden among the trees and hills—workers, and happy ones—enjoying the blessings of liberty and freedom in a land where no restrictions are placed upon though and freedom of expression. All about us was historic ground, where intrepid men fought out the independence of America. We passed through the country where old Gen. Putnam did his job, and noted the park in his honor. And the story of Mark Twain came to us afresh, as we viewed the roads an dscenery that he so much loved.

Winding through the matchless Connecticut country we became intoxicated with its beauty and the wonder of change that Nature presents. Then to the home of Bob (Believe It Or Not) Ripley, a host par excellence, for a sail in his unique Chinese Junk in Long Island Sound. And the thought kept running through my mind, what is so rare as a day in October?

From the windows of my own home I have watche deach day, the changes of color in the trees that surround the place where I live. Each day a new revelation, its brevity of beauty a challenge to my faith, as all spectacles of beauty are a challenge. Nature—not dying, but merely unloading itself—for rest and relaxation, in preparation for another budding and blooming Springtime. And all of it a continual scenery for the security of the soul!

Looking Back Two Years On Birth Of United Nations

Last Friday was an anniversary, but not a happy one. It was on October 24, 1945, that Russia became the fifth great power to ratify the United Nations Charter, and the UN was officially born.

It is interesting and disappointing to look back at that date. James F. Byrnes, then Secretary of State, called it "a memorable day for peace-loving peoples of all nations." But he must have had private misgivings, as witness the revelations he is now making in his book, "Speaking Frankly."

The majority of the people in the world were full of hope. The war was over. They could look ahead and see what would happen in the next two years. They could not see the world dividing into two camps. They dared not believe that Russia, the great ally of the war, was destined to stymie, at every turn, the attempts of UN to bring order to a chaotic planet.

Great figures were fooled, at least according to their public statements. President Truman predicted the United Nations would remain united. Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts said he did not expect dire consequences from the exercise of the veto. John Foster Dulles hailed the UN Charter as a "Greater Magna Carta."

But there were others who were more cautious. Senator Vandenberg recognized the weakness of UN. Senator Taft remarked that the veto power reduced UN to a consulting body. And former Senator Burton K. Wheeler, the whipping boy of the internationalists, hit the nail on the head when he warned: "Under the Charter we're saying to Russia: 'You can do practically anything you want with those countries over there.'" Yet right as he was, he supported UN because he saw no alternative.

On the occasion of the second anniversary of the signing of the UN Charter last June, it was observed that the road ahead is dark but that if the world wills it, there is a rainbow at the end. The road is not only still dark, but darker. In the Security Council UN is hogtied. The veto has been used more than a score of times to prevent world recovery. The hope now rests in the less powerful Assembly where there is no veto. And although the Assembly can only recommend, its sharp division into pro-Russian and pro-democratic blocs, with no middle ground, indicates that every nation save those in the Soviet orbit wishes to see UN become the instrument for peace it was installed to be. As long as there is that sentiment, there cannot be total failure.

Dr. M. Gibson Porter To Rest Beneath Native Soil

The body of Dr. M. Gibson Porter was brought back to the scenes of his childhood and early professional career today to be placed at rest beneath the soil of his nativity. Dr. Porter died Saturday in Roland Park, Baltimore, after a life span of 82 years.

Although he had been away from Allegany county for nearly half a century his identity with those communities—Cumberland, where he was born, Lonaconing, where he first began the practice of medicine, and Frostburg, where he wooed and won the hand of one of its fairest daughters—was never lost. He never permitted himself to pass up an opportunity to visit those with whom he had endeared himself through family ties, his profession and civic leadership.

Dr. Porter remained the typical family physician throughout the life. As a general practitioner, it became his duty to care for his patients through every kind of illness. It is to be regretted that that type of doctor is fast passing. During the time Dr. Porter gave of his skill and knowledge in the Roland Park area he established something of a record in that he brought into the world more than 3,000 babies, and it was his good fortune to have lived to see many of those children grow to maturity.

The high esteem in which he was held, and the gratitude which was his from the community he served so faithfully during most of the last 43 years of his life, was no less than the admiration the people in Allegany county held for him. This will be shown today by the representative throng which will stand at his grave in Frostburg to pay him a final tribute so well deserved.

Call To Congress And Striking Dual Purpose

President Truman's call for a special session of Congress on November 17 was a surprise, but not an overwhelming one. While there had been talk that he was considering such a move, the indications, up to last Thursday, were that it was not yet in the cards.

The dual nature of the purpose of the session is rather striking. The problem of immediate aid to Europe has been obvious, but up to now there are many reasons to believe that this country could extend temporary financial help to France and Italy, and perhaps to Great Britain, to tide them over until the regular meeting of Congress in January. The price and inflation situation in our own country is something else again. Its inclusion in the special call was not expected.

The two problems are, of course, tied together. But it is rather interesting that Mr. Truman has not had much to say about inflation recently. As a matter of fact he spoke within the fortnight, remarking that controls were, in his opinion, police state methods and should be avoided.

It is hard to see how Congress can do anything about inflation now and avoid imposing controls. The plain fact is that the spiral of wages and prices has been encouraged by the Administration through the blind insistence that wages can be boosted and should be, while prices stay down. Experience has shown the fallacy of that belief.

Are we to expect that Mr. Truman wants Congress to do something which he himself has argued against?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

CHICKEN POX TIME

At the present time there is no way to immunize children against chicken pox [varisella]. But this is no great catastrophe as the disease is rarely serious and seldom leaves disfiguring scars. In this respect it is not as dangerous as smallpox.

The condition spares no race or nation and, in every large city thruout the world, a case of two probably prevails at all times. The causative virus, which is allied to the organism causing shingles, is more active during the colder weather. Consequently the incidence is higher during the fall, winter, and spring seasons.

Chicken pox is contagious and the majority of susceptible individuals contract it when exposed. But there are degrees of infectivity and the disease is not transmitted as readily as diphtheria or measles. Apparently the virus is spread from one person to another via the air and 14 days usually elapse between exposure and the first manifestations. During this period the prospective victim feels well but, as the ailment takes hold, headache and vague body pains develop. As a rule, the temperature rises, seldom exceeding 102 degrees F. Since fever lasts 24 to 48 hours before the rash makes its appearance, the flu or a cold may be suspected instead.

Then suddenly an eruption is observed on the body and later, on the face, neck, and extremities. The lesions resemble a pinkish-red pimple, pinhead in size. They enlarge in a matter of hours and become filled with a clear fluid. When full-blown they resemble tiny teardrops or water blisters, protruding from an area of red skin. These are the individual pocks and, in two to four days, groups arise over the entire body. Sometimes a thousand or more exist; in others, only five. By the end of three or four days, each begins to disappear. The thin top becomes wrinkled and changes into a crust. This can be scratched off easily but a pigmented, craterlike surface is left that heals more slowly.

Meanwhile the temperature subsides and the youngster has no discomfort except for the itching of the rash. It is all that a mother can do to keep the child from scratching, a practice that invites secondary, infection. The lesions in the hair and the mouth and on the inner surface of the eyelids are particularly disturbing.

Practically every one recovers. One attack generally leaves everlasting immunity. Mothers who have had the disease will impart temporary protection to their youngsters which explains why not many infants under six months of age become afflicted.

There is no treatment, as neither the sulfonomides, penicillin, nor streptomycin are beneficial. In children it is advisable to retrain the hands to prevent scratching and digging. The itching can be relieved by applying a soothing lotion such as calamine or olive oil. Benadryl or pyribenzamine may also help in the same way that these preparations ameliorate the discomfort of urticaria.

VEIN RUBBING

Mrs. C. writes: A friend tells me that rubbing varicose veins would make more appear. Does this follow?

REPLY

No. The veins become varicosed thru weakness of their walls. On the other hand, massage may encourage infection and consequently is not advised.

NOT LIKELY

Mrs. M. writes: Could an attack of mumps in a boy of 8 cause sterility?

REPLY

This is a rare complication in children and would be, therefore, the exception rather than the rule.

GUM INFECTION

H. W. writes: Do gum boils mean infected teeth?

REPLY

In some instances they do, but these tiny abscesses can also result from infection of the soft tissues surrounding the teeth.

Alliteration

J. J. writes: Will rhubarb give a person rheumatism?

REPLY

No, even tho they start with the same letters; neither will berries give a person beriberi.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Well, that man Petrillo is in the news again. Petrillo, that's John L. Lewis with a lifetime needle.

Petrillo just announced that starting January 1 union musicians would be barred from making records. I wouldn't say the record companies are worrying about losing money, but I understand they're asking Crosby to record "Red Christmas."

Petrillo not only wants everyone to stop making records; now he's even demanding a written apology from Thomas Edison for inventing the phonograph.

I heard about the Petrillo ban on a radio newscast and when the program was over the cuckoo stuck its head out of the clock and whispered "psst psst . . . that mean me, too?"

And when a report got out that the record stores would have to close, four million teen-agers across the country yelled "egad, we've lost our homes."

I still think we'll get records. Musicians will always press sides as long as we have girl vocalists.

From now on when you put a nickel in a jukebox a record won't start playing. Tommy Dorsey will stick his head out, punch you in the nose and say "You heard what Petrillo said."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Army Pals Anticipate Eisenhower Victory For President; Supreme Court Makes History; Hollywood Makes Headlines Before Congress Committee

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—Some of General Eisenhower's comrades-in-arms are licking their lips over the prospect of his being President of the United States.

At a Washington dinner party the other night, guests crowded round vivacious Anthony Drexel Biddle of the Philadelphia banking family whom FDR elevated from court tennis champion to U.S. Ambassador to Poland.

As guests gathered around Tony, admiring his medals, Gen. Edwin Sibert, intelligence officer, remarked:

"Tony, you'd better not go back to Europe. Stay in this country and get aboard the Eisenhower bandwagon. It's going places."

Tony looked wistful but said nothing. Perhaps he remembered the $90,000 he contributed to the Roosevelt bandwagon before he got his ambassadorship, and also how Chip Robert, then treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, used to phone him in Europe, brazenly hinting that Democratic coffers were very low and the State Department was avidly eyeing his job.

Whether he remembered or not, the Democratic Mr. Biddle did not move to join the Eisenhower bandwagon.

Note—Gen. Sibert, in charge of Gen. Bradley's Intelligence and who let the U.S. Army get caught asleep in the Battle of the Bulge, has now been promoted to a top spot in the Central Intelligence Group, the super-duper intelligence agency of the entire government. Twelve people recently were kicked out of Central Intelligence for suspected disloyalty, but the man who refused to believe the Germans were massing in the Ardennes remains a top executive.

Hollywood vs. Cement

While the House un-American Affairs Committee made headlines with its Hollywood hoopla, the Supreme Court, just across the Capitol lawn, was quietly making history but no headlines.

Scores of newsmen and photographers jammed the House caucus room to hear Congressman Thomas of New Jersey gavel down movie writers who demanded a right to be heard. In the Supreme Court, however, only one newsman was present, while about $5,000,000 worth of the best legal brains New York could muster listened to a dreary but vital argument going to the roots of American free enterprise.

The case was the Federal Trade Commission's opposition to the cement industry's basing-point formula, by which the cement manufacturer in Keokuk, Ia., sells cement to the builder in San Francisco for exactly the same price as he sells to the builder in Keokuk. In other words, it is charged that all the nation's cement manufacturers conspire to fix prices, so that no matter what the cost of freight shipment, the price of cement throughout the entire U.S.A. is just the same.

Actually far more than cement was at stake in the Supreme Court hearing. For the steel industry follows the same basing-point monopolistic system, so that upon the Supreme Court's ruling partly depends the future of American competition.

That is why so many of the nation's top lawyers overflowed the Court to such an extent that they had to sit in the spectators' seats. "Wild Bill" Donovan, grizzled World War I hero, represented the Cement Institute. At his side sat fiery, silver-thatched Nathan Miller, ex-Governor of New York, backed by 75 other high-salaried barristers, including U.S. Steel's chief counsel, Roy Blough.

Facing this overpowering array were two Government lawyers, Charles Weston of the Justice Department and Walter Wooden of the Federal Trade Commission, whose salaries are less than $10,000 a year each.

Weston opened the case for the Government by citing the sealed bids submitted to supply cement for the U.S. penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas. Seven independent producers submitted bids — each identical down to a ten-thousandth fraction of a cent—regardless of how far they had to ship the cement. On another occasion, the Illinois Highway Commission requested bids for delivery to 102 different destinations. Nine producers bid an identical price.

"Here are some 75 different producers," squeaked Weston, "selling at thousands of places, and all using the same system in substantially all sales with minor variations."

Shoe Off In Court

Answering the charges, war hero "Wild Bill" Donovan, once GOP chief of the Antitrust Division, denied that the FTC ever found any evidence of an industry-wide agreement not to undersell each other. Supreme Court Justices, however, were skeptical.

"If a customer in Ohio wanted to buy cement from Atlas," interrupted Justice Stanley Reed, "how would Atlas know what price to quote?"

"Well, he would get it out of the field," explained Donovan. "He would have his own intelligence system to do that. They all have. All they need to do is to send someone out in that area. They pick it up. They get it over the phone."

"For each transaction, each inquiry, they have to go through that?" snapped Reed.

"Well," hedged the man once entrusted with enforcement of the antitrust laws under Coolidge, "they have salesmen in the field too, in all of those areas, and those salesmen telephone in. That information is coming in every day."

As the hearing ground on, Government attorney Weston, who was dressed in long tails and striped pants, idly removed a shoe and freed his toes.

Hoary ex-Governor Miller wound up the argument for the cement industry. As he steamrollered down the homestretch, Justice Frank Murphy tried to ask a question.

"I've only got five minutes, your honor," barked Miller, rushing on with his oratory.

Truman's Stand On Farm Price Support Awaited By Congress

By MARK SULLIVAN

The days since President Truman announced the calling of a special session of Congress for November 17th have thrown some light on future developments, though much remains to be seen. For complete light it will be necessary to wait until the President sends his concrete recommendations to Congress.

In speaking about these Mr. Truman made a distinction between the two purposes of the special session and his attitudes toward each. As to one of the purposes he said "I shall recommend a program for dealing with inflation, high prices, and the high cost of living." But as to the other purpose, foreign aid, the President did not suggest he would recommend a specific program to Congress, he rather pointedly indicated that he would not. He called attention to the emergency but left the details of solution up to Congress.

Whatever the reason, and whatever the weight it may have, Washington is convinced that the Administration has come to a conscious conclusion not to lay before Congress a blueprint of foreign aid and the many and intricate conditions that go with it. Some developments, following Mr. Truman's announcement and increasing the impression it made, have given rise to a feeling in Washington that the Administration is consciously avoiding responsibility for a comprehensive program about foreign aid, and is leaving that responsibility up to Congress.

Policy And Method At Stake

Foreign aid includes much more than the amounts of money involved. There are many questions of policy and method. Is our aid to be a gift or a loan? Is aid for industrial reconstruction in Europe to be given to governments as governments and left for them to distribute,, or is it to be channelled by us to the beneficiaries of it? Is all the aid to come out of our treasury and from our taxpayers, or is some of it to be provided by semi-governmental banks, such as the World Bank, or private banks or private industries? Should we make any stipulations about how the funds are spent?

These and many other questions of policy and method are to be left up to Congress, and not presented to Congress by the President as a packaged program. The impression that the President would make a comprehensive recommendation to Congress was created by the fact that the preliminaries looking to foreign aid have been conducted by the Administration. The Marshall plan came from the Secretary of State. The inventory of our resources to determine how much we could safely afford was made by a committee headed by Secretary of the Interior Krug. Other preparatory work was done by a committee headed by Secretary of Commerce Harriman.

U. S. Price Support Major Item

All this may have created an impression that the President would recommend to Congress a program about foreign aid, as apparently he intends about inflation and high prices. But in fact the preparatory work is the function of the Administration. The writing and enactment of a program, which uses the preliminary work as information, is the function of Congress. It goes with that body's supreme power, the control of the purse. For writing the program, Congress has first-hand information acquired by it own members. Upward of 200 Senators and Representatives have been in Europe this fall and Summer for the specific purpose of equipping Congress with information about conditions in Europe having to do with aid by us. It is out of Congress that the country will receive information about coming developments in foreign aid.

As to the other purpose of the special session of Congress, high prices and inflation, the President said he will "recommend a program." That program will be watched to see whether it includes any proposal about government support of the prices of farm products, food. The government has on hand immense quantities of farm products, bought for the purpose of supporting prices. That this is an essential factor in the present high price level goes without saying. Any program about high prices and inflation which omits mention of this would hardly be convincing.

Proposes Incentive To Workers To Work More To Up Production

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — The strangest aspect of President Truman's plans to aid Europe and to tackle the problem of high prices in this country is that hardly any attention is being focussed by the Administration on the real cure for inflation—increase production.

What the President advocates when he recommends "allocations" or "controls" of materials and supplies is a dividing up of existent production. He admits that there is not enough goods available to supply the world-wide demand, but nevertheless he fails to offer any plan to stimulate the production of more goods.

Throughout the world, of course, the problem is the same—lack of production. It has been said repeatedly that the world is not suffering from a shortage of dollars but a shortage of goods. Actually there is not enough work being done to meet the crisis.

This is due in large part in America to penalties and barriers erected by government itself. Instead of providing incentives to greater production, the existing policies tend toward limitation of producton by placing penalties on increased output.

What can be done about it? This correspondent offers a plan which it may be hoped will prompt others to do likewise with the basic objective of increasing production and eventually bringing prices down.

Incentive To Workers Proposed

The plan consists of a primary incentive to the workers of America. It involves the granting of a tax exemption for that part of the workers' income represented by as many hours of work about 40 hours a week as he will agree to accept payment for at "straight time" rate. This would not involve any mandatory change in existing arrangements where overtime is customarily worked and paid for at time-and-a-half rates as provided by law. It would apply only to those hours voluntarily worked in excess of existing work schedules and would be applied only to what could be specifically designated as "extra hours." The salaried man should have the same exemption as the wage earner.

Labor unions, of course, would have to agree to a temporary modification of their agreements for a fixed period. The entire success of the plan would depend on voluntary action. Congress would merely make such arrangements permissive by amending the present wage and hour law for one year only and by granting the worker a tax exemption for all hours about 40, worked at straight-time rates.

The plan would be simple to administer since payroll deductions nowadays for the purpose of the withholding tax are readily calculated on a flat percentage basis anyway, and the accounts of the employer would merely keep separate the amount of income the worker received for tax-exempt hours of work. In making out income-tax returns, individuals would receive data at the end of the year as to the amount of income which the employer's record would show to have been derived from tax-exempt hours. It would be handled as any other tax reduction.

Upped Production Instant Effect

The effect of the plan would be instantly to raise production by tremendous amounts. Today employers hesitate to put on workers at time-and-a-half rates for a few hours a day or night because of the heavy expense and yet they often do not have enough manpower willing to work a full extra shift at straight time. The plan would increase "take home" pay for millions of workers.

Actually the wage and hour law by holding production to a 40-hour week with no overtime is the biggest deterrent to increased earnings and increased production in America today. There is, of course, no law against working overtime but the time-and-a-half requirement immediately increases the cost of production for which there is no way of increasing the price.

The whole drive should be just the reverse—to remove penalties so as to increase the number of hours worked and thus to enable producers to sell in larger and larger quantity and, by bringing down the unit cost of production, pave the way for price reduction. The psychology of dividing up present production herely adds strength to the economic forces that send prices higher. Price control is no answer because it invites conditions under which black markets flourish. Surely there must be many ways to increase production if the President will use his powers of publicity and will indicate to Congress what legislation he will approve so as to provide incentives to production.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

Midway in New York

This city of New York, famed for its magnificent contrasts, is now faced by an amusing escapade in ballyhoo. Grover Whalen, who since the glorious days of Jimmy Walker has been an eternal reception committee, now proposes to celebrate the Fiftieth Anniversary of the city by establishing a circus on Park Avenue, which is the principal arterial thoroughfare. The circus will cost $2,000,000 or more.

In the first place, New York was established 1624 as New Amsterdam by the Dutch. This Fiftieth Anniversary is a minor detail in its long history when Brooklyn, areas on Long Island now called Queens, and Staten Island, together with the Bronx, were all jumbled together into a huge metropolitan area, the center of which is the elongated island of Manhattan. This is called Greater New York.

It is more than probable that there is nothing to celebrate, for this place has grown so large that it cannot be financed or policed or kept clean.

When I was a small boy only a few areas were filthy, but vast stretches of the city were well-kept. Today even the best streets are shamelessly ill-kempt and it is doubtful whether the city can ever raise the money adequately to perform its municipal functions. In fact, the only time a citizen sees any policemen is when they are on parade or occasionally at rare intersections in very busy hours when they control traffic.

The patrolman on the beat, the protector of children, the guardian of the parks is, indeed, a rare bird. He often passes in an automobile which rushes about too swiftly for service to the citizens.

I walked one night this week from midtown to my home, which is in what is known as the upper Broadway section, passing drunks asleep on benches, taxis racing through the night, cars going through red lights at lonely intersections and saw not one policeman. Subsequently, I took my dog for his nocturnal run in Riverside Park where peculiar men sat in dark places as they do there every night. And not a policeman. The city simply cannot afford to employ enough police to do all the jobs that need to be done. That is one of the curses of bigness.

It is this bigness that Grover Whalen wants to celebrate with a circus. The socialistically operated subway, which runs at a loss and is one of the worst means of transportation, the passengers being pushed and crowded and mauled, is what it is for lack of funds. Yet Grover Whalen jumps up with the idea of blowing $2,000,000 in on a circus.

Even that profligacy, that lack of arithmetical realism does not bother me as much as the brutality of the idea that this city has not yet erected a memorial to its dead of World War II. If it has $2,000,000 to waste on a circus, how come that it has no funds to establish a lasting memorial to its sons who did not return to it from the war?

This is something that is hard to understand. The same brutal forgetfulness appears in so many cities. After every other war, the citizens hurried to erect some monument, some building, some memorial to their own who died in war. What has happened to us that we are so lax now? Does nothing grip our sentiments? Do we no longer feel kindly gentle; do we no longer possess pride? Even if the war is unpopular and was unnecessary, our sons did not die to be forgotten.

If the profligate city of New York can throw millions to the wind, why not erect some building, some memorial, some symbol of faith in those boys? Long ago, I had suggested that the finest thing that happened in the war was the cooperation among the three great faiths, the wonderful chaplain's services, the Three Way Altar at which boys of any denomination could meet their God.

Why not erect such a House of God as a memorial to those who died in their youth in what they believed was God's service?

Surely that is a more worthy expenditure than Grover Whalen's Park Avenue Circus.

Looking Back Two Years On Birth Of United Nations

Last Friday was an anniversary, but not a happy one. It was on October 24, 1945, that Russia became the fifth great power to ratify the United Nations Charter, and the UN was officially born.

It is interesting and disappointing to look back at that date. James F. Byrnes, then Secretary of State, called it "a memorable day for peace-loving peoples of all nations." But he must have had private misgivings, as witness the revelations he is now making in his book, "Speaking Frankly."

The majority of the people in the world were full of hope. The war was over. They could look ahead and see what would happen in the next two years. They could not see the world dividing into two camps. They dared not believe that Russia, the great ally of the war, was destined to stymie, at every turn, the attempts of UN to bring order to a chaotic planet.

Great figures were fooled, at least according to their public statements. President Truman predicted the United Nations would remain united. Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts said he did not expect dire consequences from the exercise of the veto. John Foster Dulles hailed the UN Charter as a "Greater Magna Carta."

But there were others who were more cautious. Senator Vandenberg recognized the weakness of UN. Senator Taft remarked that the veto power reduced UN to a consulting body. And former Senator Burton K. Wheeler, the whipping boy of the internationalists, hit the nail on the head when he warned: "Under the Charter we're saying to Russia: 'You can do practically anything you want with those countries over there.'" Yet right as he was, he supported UN because he saw no alternative.

On the occasion of the second anniversary of the signing of the UN Charter last June, it was observed that the road ahead is dark but that if the world wills it, there is a rainbow at the end. The road is not only still dark, but darker. In the Security Council UN is hogtied. The veto has been used more than a score of times to prevent world recovery. The hope now rests in the less powerful Assembly where there is no veto. And although the Assembly can only recommend, its sharp division into pro-Russian and pro-democratic blocs, with no middle ground, indicates that every nation save those in the Soviet orbit wishes to see UN become the instrument for peace it was installed to be. As long as there is that sentiment, there cannot be total failure.

Dr. M. Gibson Porter To Rest Beneath Native Soil

The body of Dr. M. Gibson Porter was brought back to the scenes of his childhood and early professional career today to be placed at rest beneath the soil of his nativity. Dr. Porter died Saturday in Roland Park, Baltimore, after a life span of 82 years.

Although he had been away from Allegany county for nearly half a century his identity with those communities—Cumberland, where he was born, Lonaconing, where he first began the practice of medicine, and Frostburg, where he wooed and won the hand of one of its fairest daughters—was never lost. He never permitted himself to pass up an opportunity to visit those with whom he had endeared himself through family ties, his profession and civic leadership.

Dr. Porter remained the typical family physician throughout the life. As a general practitioner, it became his duty to care for his patients through every kind of illness. It is to be regretted that that type of doctor is fast passing. During the time Dr. Porter gave of his skill and knowledge in the Roland Park area he established something of a record in that he brought into the world more than 3,000 babies, and it was his good fortune to have lived to see many of those children grow to maturity.

The high esteem in which he was held, and the gratitude which was his from the community he served so faithfully during most of the last 43 years of his life, was no less than the admiration the people in Allegany county held for him. This will be shown today by the representative throng which will stand at his grave in Frostburg to pay him a final tribute so well deserved.

Call To Congress And Striking Dual Purpose

President Truman's call for a special session of Congress on November 17 was a surprise, but not an overwhelming one. While there had been talk that he was considering such a move, the indications, up to last Thursday, were that it was not yet in the cards.

The dual nature of the purpose of the session is rather striking. The problem of immediate aid to Europe has been obvious, but up to now there are many reasons to believe that this country could extend temporary financial help to France and Italy, and perhaps to Great Britain, to tide them over until the regular meeting of Congress in January. The price and inflation situation in our own country is something else again. Its inclusion in the special call was not expected.

The two problems are, of course, tied together. But it is rather interesting that Mr. Truman has not had much to say about inflation recently. As a matter of fact he spoke within the fortnight, remarking that controls were, in his opinion, police state methods and should be avoided.

It is hard to see how Congress can do anything about inflation now and avoid imposing controls. The plain fact is that the spiral of wages and prices has been encouraged by the Administration through the blind insistence that wages can be boosted and should be, while prices stay down. Experience has shown the fallacy of that belief.

Are we to expect that Mr. Truman wants Congress to do something which he himself has argued against?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

CHICKEN POX TIME

At he present time there is no way to immunize children against chicken pox [varisella]. But this is no great catastrophe as the disease is rarely serious and seldom leaves disfiguring scars. In this respect it is not as dangerous as smallpox.

The condition spares no race or nation and, in every large city thruout the world, a case of two probably prevails at all times. The causative virus, which is allied to the organism causing shingles, is more active during the colder weather. Consequently the incidence is higher during the fall, winter, and spring seasons.

Chicken pox is contagious and the majority of susceptible individuals contract it when exposed. But there are degrees of infectivity and the disease is not transmitted as readily as diphtheria or measles. Apparently the virus is spread from one person to another via the air and 14 days usually elapse between exposure and the first manifestations. During this period the prospective victim feels well but, as the ailment takes hold, headache and vague body pains develop. As a rule, the temperature rises, seldom exceeding 102 degrees F. Since fever lasts 24 to 48 hours before the rash makes its appearance, the flu or a cold may be suspected instead.

Then suddenly an eruption is observed on the body and later, on the face, neck, and extremities. The lesions resemble a pinkish-red pimple, pinhead in size. They enlarge in a matter of hours and become filled with a clear fluid. When full-blown they resemble tiny teardrops or water blisters, protruding from an area of red skin. These are the individual pocks and, in two to four days, groups arise over the entire body. Sometimes a thousand or more exist; in others, only five. By the end of three or four days, each begins to disappear. The thin top becomes wrinkled and changes into a crust. This can be scratched off easily but a pigmented, craterlike surface is left that heals more slowly.

Meanwhile the temperature subsides and the youngster has no discomfort except for the itching of the rash. It is all that a mother can do to keep the child from scratching, a practice that invites secondary, infection. The lesions in the hair and the mouth and on the inner surface of the eyelids are particularly disturbing.

Practically every one recovers. One attack generally leaves everlasting immunity. Mothers who have had the disease will impart temporary protection to their youngsters which explains why not many infants under six months of age become afflicted.

There is no treatment, as neither the sulfonomides, penicillin, nor streptomycin are beneficial. In children it is advisable to retrain the hands to prevent scratching and digging. The itching can be relieved by applying a soothing lotion such as calamine or olive oil. Benadryl or pyribenzamine may also help in the same way that these preparations ameliorate the discomfort of urticaria.

VEIN RUBBING

Mrs. C. writes: A friend tells me that rubbing varicose veins would make more appear. Does this follow?

REPLY

No. The veins become varicosed thru weakness of their walls. On the other hand, massage may encourage infection and consequently is not advised.

NOT LIKELY

Mrs. M. writes: Could an attack of mumps in a boy of 8 cause sterility?

REPLY

This is a rare complication in children and would be, therefore, the exception rather than the rule.

GUM INFECTION

H. W. writes: Do gum boils mean infected teeth?

REPLY

In some instances they do, but these tiny abscesses can also result from infection of the soft tissues surrounding the teeth.

Alliteration

J. J. writes: Will rhubarb give a person rheumatism?

REPLY

No, even tho they start with the same letters; neither will berries give a person beriberi.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Well, that man Petrillo is in the news again. Petrillo, that's John L. Lewis with a lifetime needle.

Petrillo just announced that starting January 1 union musicians would be barred from making records. I wouldn't say the record companies are worrying about losing money, but I understand they're asking Crosby to record "Red Christmas."

Petrillo not only wants everyone to stop making records; now he's even demanding a written apology from Thomas Edison for inventing the phonograph.

I heard about the Petrillo ban on a radio newscast and when the program was over the cuckoo stuck its head out of the clock and whispered "psst psst . . . that mean me, too?"

And when a report got out that the record stores would have to close, four million teen-agers across the country yelled "egad, we've lost our homes."

I still think we'll get records. Musicians will always press sides as long as we have girl vocalists.

From now on when you put a nickel in a jukebox a record won't start playing. Tommy Dorsey will stick his head out, punch you in the nose and say "You heard what Petrillo said."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—Some of General Eisenhower's comrades-in-arms are licking their lips over the prospect of his being President of the United States.

At a Washington dinner party the other night, guests crowded round vivacious Anthony Drexel Biddle of the Philadelphia banking family whom FDR elevated from court tennis champion to U.S. Ambassador to Poland.

As guests gathered around Tony, admiring his medals, Gen. Edwin Sibert, intelligence officer, remarked:

"Tony, you'd better not go back to Europe. Stay in this country and get aboard the Eisenhower bandwagon. It's going places."

Tony looked wistful but said nothing. Perhaps he remembered the $90,000 he contributed to the Roosevelt bandwagon before he got his ambassadorship, and also how Chip Robert, then treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, used to phone him in Europe, brazenly hinting that Democratic coffers were very low and the State Department was avidly eyeing his job.

Whether he remembered or not, the Democratic Mr. Biddle did not move to join the Eisenhower bandwagon.

Note—Gen. Sibert, in charge of Gen. Bradley's Intelligence and who let the U.S. Army get caught asleep in the Battle of the Bulge, has now been promoted to a top spot in the Central Intelligence Group, the super-duper intelligence agency of the entire government. Twelve people recently were kicked out of Central Intelligence for suspected disloyalty, but the man who refused to believe the Germans were massing in the Ardennes remains a top executive.

Hollywood vs. Cement

While the House un-American Affairs Committee made headlines with its Hollywood hoopla, the Supreme Court, just across the Capitol lawn, was quietly making history but no headlines.

Scores of newsmen and photographers jammed the House caucus room to hear Congressman Thomas of New Jersey gavel down movie writers who demanded a right to be heard. In the Supreme Court, however, only one newsman was present, while about $5,000,000 worth of the best legal brains New York could muster listened to a dreary but vital argument going to the roots of American free enterprise.

The case was the Federal Trade Commission's opposition to the cement industry's basing-point formula, by which the cement manufacturer in Keokuk, Ia., sells cement to the builder in San Francisco for exactly the same price as he sells to the builder in Keokuk. In other words, it is charged that all the nation's cement manufacturers conspire to fix prices, so that no matter what the cost of freight shipment, the price of cement throughout the entire U.S.A. is just the same.

Actually far more than cement was at stake in the Supreme Court hearing. For the steel industry follows the same basing-point monopolistic system, so that upon the Supreme Court's ruling partly depends the future of American competition.

That is why so many of the nation's top lawyers overflowed the Court to such an extent that they had to sit in the spectators' seats. "Wild Bill" Donovan, grizzled World War I hero, represented the Cement Institute. At his side sat fiery, silver-thatched Nathan Miller, ex-Governor of New York, backed by 75 other high-salaried barristers, including U.S. Steel's chief counsel, Roy Blough.

Facing this overpowering array were two Government lawyers, Charles Weston of the Justice Department and Walter Wooden of the Federal Trade Commission, whose salaries are less than $10,000 a year each.

Weston opened the case for the Government by citing the sealed bids submitted to supply cement for the U.S. penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas. Seven independent producers submitted bids — each identical down to a ten-thousandth fraction of a cent—regardless of how far they had to ship the cement. On another occasion, the Illinois Highway Commission requested bids for delivery to 102 different destinations. Nine producers bid an identical price.

"Here are some 75 different producers," squeaked Weston, "selling at thousands of places, and all using the same system in substantially all sales with minor variations."

Shoe Off In Court

Answering the charges, war hero "Wild Bill" Donovan, once GOP chief of the Antitrust Division, denied that the FTC ever found any evidence of an industry-wide agreement not to undersell each other. Supreme Court Justices, however, were skeptical.

"If a customer in Ohio wanted to buy cement from Atlas," interrupted Justice Stanley Reed, "how would Atlas know what price to quote?"

"Well, he would get it out of the field," explained Donovan. "He would have his own intelligence system to do that. They all have. All they need to do is to send someone out in that area. They pick it up. They get it over the phone."

"For each transaction, each inquiry, they have to go through that?" snapped Reed.

"Well," hedged the man once entrusted with enforcement of the antitrust laws under Coolidge, "they have salesmen in the field too, in all of those areas, and those salesmen telephone in. That information is coming in every day."

As the hearing ground on, Government attorney Weston, who was dressed in long tails and striped pants, idly removed a shoe and freed his toes.

Hoary ex-Governor Miller wound up the argument for the cement industry. As he steamrollered down the homestretch, Justice Frank Murphy tried to ask a question.

"I've only got five minutes, your honor," barked Miller, rushing on with his oratory.

Truman's Stand On Farm Price Support Awaited By Congress

By MARK SULLIVAN

The days since President Truman announced the calling of a special session of Congress for November 17th have thrown some light on future developments, though much remains to be seen. For complete light it will be necessary to wait until the President sends his concrete recommendations to Congress.

In speaking about these Mr. Truman made a distinction between the two purposes of the special session and his attitudes toward each. As to one of the purposes he said "I shall recommend a program for dealing with inflation, high prices, and the high cost of living." But as to the other purpose, foreign aid, the President did not suggest he would recommend a specific program to Congress, he rather pointedly indicated that he would not. He called attention to the emergency but left the details of solution up to Congress.

Whatever the reason, and whatever the weight it may have, Washington is convinced that the Administration has come to a conscious conclusion not to lay before Congress a blueprint of foreign aid and the many and intricate conditions that go with it. Some developments, following Mr. Truman's announcement and increasing the impression it made, have given rise to a feeling in Washington that the Administration is consciously avoiding responsibility for a comprehensive program about foreign aid, and is leaving that responsibility up to Congress.

Policy And Method At Stake

Foreign aid includes much more than the amounts of money involved. There are many questions of policy and method. Is our aid to be a gift or a loan? Is aid for industrial reconstruction in Europe to be given to governments as governments and left for them to distribute,, or is it to be channelled by us to the beneficiaries of it? Is all the aid to come out of our treasury and from our taxpayers, or is some of it to be provided by semi-governmental banks, such as the World Bank, or private banks or private industries? Should we make any stipulations about how the funds are spent?

These and many other questions of policy and method are to be left up to Congress, and not presented to Congress by the President as a packaged program. The impression that the President would make a comprehensive recommendation to Congress was created by the fact that the preliminaries looking to foreign aid have been conducted by the Administration. The Marshall plan came from the Secretary of State. The inventory of our resources to determine how much we could safely afford was made by a committee headed by Secretary of the Interior Krug. Other preparatory work was done by a committee headed by Secretary of Commerce Harriman.

U. S. Price Support Major Item

All this may have created an impression that the President would recommend to Congress a program about foreign aid, as apparently he intends about inflation and high prices. But in fact the preparatory work is the function of the Administration. The writing and enactment of a program, which uses the preliminary work as information, is the function of Congress. It goes with that body's supreme power, the control of the purse. For writing the program, Congress has first-hand information acquired by it own members. Upward of 200 Senators and Representatives have been in Europe this fall and Summer for the specific purpose of equipping Congress with information about conditions in Europe having to do with aid by us. It is out of Congress that the country will receive information about coming developments in foreign aid.

As to the other purpose of the special session of Congress, high prices and inflation, the President said he will "recommend a program." That program will be watched to see whether it includes any proposal about government support of the prices of farm products, food. The government has on hand immense quantities of farm products, bought for the purpose of supporting prices. That this is an essential factor in the present high price level goes without saying. Any program about high prices and inflation which omits mention of this would hardly be convincing.

Proposes Incentive To Wo rs To Work More To Up Produ n

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — The strangest aspect of President Truman's plans to aid Europe and to tackle the problem of high prices in this country is that hardly any attention is being focussed by the Administration on the real cure for inflation—increase production.

What the President advocates when he recommends "allocations" or "controls" of materials and supplies is a dividing up of existent production. He admits that there is not enough goods available to supply the world-wide demand, but nevertheless he fails to offer any plan to stimulate the production of more goods.

Throughout the world, of course, the problem is the same—lack of production. It has been said repeatedly that the world is not suffering from a shortage of dollars but a shortage of goods. Actually there is not enough work being done to meet the crisis.

This is due in large part in America to penalties and barriers erected by government itself. Instead of providing incentives to greater production, the existing policies tend toward limitation of producton by placing penalties on increased output.

What can be done about it? This correspondent offers a plan which it may be hoped will prompt others to do likewise with the basic objective of increasing production and eventually bringing prices down.

Incentive To Workers Proposed

The plan consists of a primary incentive to the workers of America. It involves the granting of a tax exemption for that part of the workers' income represented by as many hours of work about 40 hours a week as he will agree to accept payment for at "straight time" rate. This would not involve any mandatory change in existing arrangements where overtime is customarily worked and paid for at time-and-a-half rates as provided by law. It would apply only to those hours voluntarily worked in excess of existing work schedules and would be applied only to what could be specifically designated as "extra hours." The salaried man should have the same exemption as the wage earner.

Labor unions, of course, would have to agree to a temporary modification of their agreements for a fixed period. The entire success of the plan would depend on voluntary action. Congress would merely make such arrangements permissive by amending the present wage and hour law for one year only and by granting the worker a tax exemption for all hours about 40, worked at straight-time rates.

The plan would be simple to administer since payroll deductions nowadays for the purpose of the withholding tax are readily calculated on a flat percentage basis anyway, and the accounts of the employer would merely keep separate the amount of income the worker received for tax-exempt hours of work. In making out income-tax returns, individuals would receive data at the end of the year as to the amount of income which the employer's record would show to have been derived from tax-exempt hours. It would be handled as any other tax reduction.

Upped Production Instant Effect

The effect of the plan would be instantly to raise production by tremendous amounts. Today employers hesitate to put on workers at time-and-a-half rates for a few hours a day or night because of the heavy expense and yet they often do not have enough manpower willing to work a full extra shift at straight time. The plan would increase "take home" pay for millions of workers.

Actually the wage and hour law by holding production to a 40-hour week with no overtime is the biggest deterrent to increased earnings and increased production in America today. There is, of course, no law against working overtime but the time-and-a-half requirement immediately increases the cost of production for which there is no way of increasing the price.

The whole drive should be just the reverse—to remove penalties so as to increase the number of hours worked and thus to enable producers to sell in larger and larger quantity and, by bringing down the unit cost of production, pave the way for price reduction. The psychology of dividing up present production herely adds strength to the economic forces that send prices higher. Price control is no answer because it invites conditions under which black markets flourish. Surely there must be many ways to increase production if the President will use his powers of publicity and will indicate to Congress what legislation he will approve so as to provide incentives to production.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

Midway in New York

This city of New York, famed for its magnificent contrasts, is now faced by an amusing escapade in ballyhoo. Grover Whalen, who since the glorious days of Jimmy Walker has been an eternal reception committee, now proposes to celebrate the Fiftieth Anniversary of the city by establishing a circus on Park Avenue, which is the principal arterial thoroughfare. The circus will cost $2,000,000 or more.

In the first place, New York was established 1624 as New Amsterdam by the Dutch. This Fiftieth Anniversary is a minor detail in its long history when Brooklyn, areas on Long Island now called Queens, and Staten Island, together with the Bronx, were all jumbled together into a huge metropolitan area, the center of which is the elongated island of Manhattan. This is called Greater New York.

It is more than probable that there is nothing to celebrate, for this place has grown so large that it cannot be financed or policed or kept clean.

When I was a small boy only a few areas were filthy, but vast stretches of the city were well-kept. Today even the best streets are shamelessly ill-kempt and it is doubtful whether the city can ever raise the money adequately to perform its municipal functions. In fact, the only time a citizen sees any policemen is when they are on parade or occasionally at rare intersections in very busy hours when they control traffic.

The patrolman on the beat, the protector of children, the guardian of the parks is, indeed, a rare bird. He often passes in an automobile which rushes about too swiftly for service to the citizens.

I walked one night this week from midtown to my home, which is in what is known as the upper Broadway section, passing drunks asleep on benches, taxis racing through the night, cars going through red lights at lonely intersections and saw not one policeman. Subsequently, I took my dog for his nocturnal run in Riverside Park where peculiar men sat in dark places as they do there every night. And not a policeman. The city simply cannot afford to employ enough police to do all the jobs that need to be done. That is one of the curses of bigness.

It is this bigness that Grover Whalen wants to celebrate with a circus. The socialistically operated subway, which runs at a loss and is one of the worst means of transportation, the passengers being pushed and crowded and mauled, is what it is for lack of funds. Yet Grover Whalen jumps up with the idea of blowing $2,000,000 in on a circus.

Even that profligacy, that lack of arithmetical realism does not bother me as much as the brutality of the idea that this city has not yet erected a memorial to its dead of World War II. If it has $2,000,000 to waste on a circus, how come that it has no funds to establish a lasting memorial to its sons who did not return to it from the war?

This is something that is hard to understand. The same brutal forgetfulness appears in so many cities. After every other war, the citizens hurried to erect some monument, some building, some memorial to their own who died in war. What has happened to us that we are so lax now? Does nothing grip our sentiments? Do we no longer feel kindly gentle; do we no longer possess pride? Even if the war is unpopular and was unnecessary, our sons did not die to be forgotten.

If the profligate city of New York can throw millions to the wind, why not erect some building, some memorial, some symbol of faith in those boys? Long ago, I had suggested that the finest thing that happened in the war was the cooperation among the three great faiths, the wonderful chaplain's services, the Three Way Altar at which boys of any denomination could meet their God.

Why not erect such a House of God as a memorial to those who died in their youth in what they believed was God's service?

Surely that is a more worthy expenditure than Grover Whalen's Park Avenue Circus.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Billy Rose

Reader's Digest never asked Little Willie to write a piece for its "Most Unforgettable Character" series, but if it did, he'd pull the stops out of his typewriter and reminisce about Ned Alvord, the theatrical advance agent.

Ned got into the show business 39 years ago as a billposter for the Barnum Circus, and to this day he gets lonesome whenever he's more than 20 feet away from a bucket of paste. Ned believes the short cut to the customer's poke is by way of the roadside fence, and that "bill it like a circus" sells more tickets than "to be or not to be." Certain solvent impressarios will tell you Ned is pretty nearly right.

Alvord's working clothes consist of a seersucker cutaway, a black derby, and a turned-around collar like a minister's. He's a Republican from way back and I've heard him beef that even Herbert Hoover is too far left of center. He has no faith in banks, and a fellow who went to a Turkish bath with him insists that Ned keeps his money in big bills taped to his shinebone.

About fifteen years ago, Ned was press-agenting a tepid little revue of mine called "Crazy Quilt." Thanks to his inspired hoopla and hyperbole, we packed them in all over the country. Whenever the advance sale wasn't up to snuff, Ned would visit the local ministers and protest that "Crazy Quilt" was "a saturnalia of wanton rhythm." On Sunday the show would be denounced from the pulpits. On Monday the box-office boys usually had to put ice packs on the ticket rack to keep it from igniting.

Ned will never be forgotten in Minnesota. After booking "Crazy Quilt" into a theatre in St. Paul, he crossed the river and fast-talked Mayor Anderson of Minneapolis into banning our show. It's the only instance I know where a show was outlawed in a city it had no intention of playing. Thanks to the page-one stories in the papers, we played to capacity business in St. Paul. The following year Anderson was defeated for re-election. The good citizens couldn't forgive him for "having made Minneapolis a hick town in the eyes of the world."

Alvord wasn't through. A couple of years back, Ned was press-agenting "Carmen Jones" for me. This time he did book us into Minneapolis. I shall always treasure the front-page story announcing the engagement of "Carmen Jones." The headline read, "Rose Forgives Minneapolis."

But Minneapolis was just a warm-up for Ned's bout with the Imperial Japanese Government. in 1934 Alvord arrived in Tokyo to ballyhoo the first American girly-girly show to play that country. The star of this clambake was Miss Ha Cha San, a little Swedish girl who hailed from New Orleans. Her dance costume consisted of ten cents' worth of silver paint. Shortly after Ned hung up his derby, Tokyo was plastered with twenty-four sheets featuring Miss Ha Cha San as "The Spirit of Silver."

The day before the show was to open, Ned was invited to confer with the representatives of the Sun of Heaven. "Amellican show velly welcome," they told Ned, "but Impellial Highness does not allow nekkid tootsies on honorable stage."

After several hours of give-and-take over saki and stale fish, the censors okayed everything in the show except "The Spirit of Sliver." Ned knew his little turkey was cooked without its feature flash attraction. As the Mikado's boys were about to leave, he pulled one out of deep left field.

"I think I should tell you," he boomed, "that your decision to ban Miss Ha Cha San may provoke international repercussions. More important, Japan may lose face in the land beyond the Pacific."

At the phrase "lose face," the Japs paled beneath their pale.

"President Roosevelt," trumpted Alvord, "recently remonetized silver as a gesture of friendship to the Orient. To commemorate the event, a statue called 'The Spirit of Silver' was placed atop the State House in Denver, the capital of our silver state. Distinguished representatives of your Mikado attended the unveiling. It was the intent of your American cousins to do you honor by sending you the shaply maiden who posed for that statue—Miss Ha Cha San."

Of course "The Spirit of Silver" opened on schedule, and Ned charged three dollars for the piece of sucker bait which had gone begging in America at a fifty-cent top.

If they ever get around to building a Hall of Fame for Showmen, I think they ought to save a niche for the man who "took" Tokyo eleven years before V-J Day.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Reader's Digest never asked Little Willie to write a piece for its "Most Unforgettable Character" series, but if it did, he'd pull the stops out of his typewriter and reminisce about Ned Alvord, the theatrical advance agent.

Billy Rose

Ned got into the show business 30 years ago as a billposter for the Barnum Circus, and to this day he gets lonesome whenever he's more than 20 feet away from a bucket of paste. Ned believes the short cut to the customer's poke is by way of the roadside fence, and that "bill it like a circus" sells more tickets than "to be or not to be." Certain solvent impressarios will tell you Ned is pretty nearly right.

Alvord's working clothes consist of a seersucker cutaway, a black derby, and a turned-around collar like a minister's. He's a Republican from way back and I've heard him beef that even Herbert Hoover is too far left of center. He has no faith in banks, and a fellow who went to a Turkish bath with him insists that Ned keeps his money in big bills taped to his shinebone.

About fifteen years ago, Ned was press-agenting a tepid little revue of mine called "Crazy Quilt." Thanks to his inspired hoopla and hyperbole, we packed them in all over the country. Whenever he advance sale wasn't up to snuff, Ned would visit the local ministers and protest that "Crazy Quilt" was "a saturnalia of wanton rhythm." On Sunday the show would be denounced from the pulpits. On Monday the box-office boys usually had to put ice packs on the ticket rack to keep it from igniting.

Ned will never be forgotten in Minnesota. After booking "Crazy Quilt" into a theatre in St. Paul, he crossed the river and fast-talked Mayor Anderson of Minneapolis into banning our show. It's the only instance I know where a show was outlawed in a city it had no intention of playing. Thanks to the page-one stories in the papers, we played to capacity business in St. Paul. The following year Anderson was defeated for re-election. The good citizens couldn't forgive him for "having made Minneapolis a hick town in the eyes of the world."

Alvord wasn't through. A couple of years back, Ned was press-agenting "Carmen Jones" for me. This time he did book us into Minneapolis. I shall always treasure the front-page story announcing the engagement of "Carmen Jones." The headline read, "Rose Forgives Minneapolis."

But Minneapolis was just a warm-up for Ned's bout with the Imperial Japanese Government. In 1934 Alvord arrived in Tokyo to ballyhoo the first American girly-girly show to play that country. The star of this clambake was Miss Ha Cha San, a little Swedish girl who hailed from New Orleans. Her dance costume consisted of ten cents' worth of silver paint. Shortly after Ned hung up his derby, Tokyo was plastered with twenty-four sheets featuring Miss Ha Cha San as "The Spirit of Silver."

The day before the show was to open, Ned was invited to confer with the representatives of the Sun of Heaven. "Amellican show velly welcome," they told Ned, "but Impellial Highness does not allow nekkid tootsies on honorable stage."

After several hours of give-and-take over saki and stale fish, the censors okayed everything in the show except "The Spirit of Sliver." Ned knew his little turkey was cooked without its feature flash attraction. As the Mikado's boys were about to leave, he pulled one out of deep left field.

"I think I should tell you," he boomed, "that your decision to ban Miss Ha Cha San may provoke international repercussions. More important, Japan may lose face in the land beyond the Pacific."

At the phrase "lose face," the Japs paled beneath their pale.

"President Roosevelt," trumpted Alvord, "recently remonetized silver as a gesture of friendship to the Orient. To commemorate the event, a statue called 'The Spirit of Silver' was placed atop the State House in Denver, the capital of our silver state. Distinguished representatives of your Mikado attended the unveiling. It was the intent of your American cousins to do you honor by sending you the shaply maiden who posed for that statue—Miss Ha Cha San."

Of course "The Spirit of Silver" opened on schedule, and Ned charged three dollars for the piece of sucker bait which had gone begging in America at a fifty-cent top.

If they ever get around to building a Hall of Fame for Showmen, I think they ought to save a niche for the man who "took" Tokyo eleven years before V-J Day.

W. James Jenkins Weds Bonnie Lou Anderson

Ceremony Performed In St. Paul, Minn.

Miss Bonnie Lou Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Anderson, St. Paul, Minn., was united in marriage to W. James Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Jenkins, 110 Reynolds Street, October 18. Rev. Walter Kraabel officiated at the candlelight ceremony in the Fort Snelling Memorial Chapel, St. Paul, which was banked with palms and decorated with tall baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums and ferns.

The church organist played the processional from the opera Lohengrin and Mendolsohn's wedding recessional and accompanied Miss Carol MacLean, who sang, "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bridal party included Mrs. Doris Bateman, matron of honor; Miss Carol Anderson, Miss Marjorie Anderson, sisters of the bride, bridesmaids; Sandra Edhlund, flower girl; Allan Olson, ring bearer. Roger Twigg, Cumberland, served as best man; and Claude Anderson, brother of the bride, and Fred Beeman, Cumberland, were the ushers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown fashioned with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, trimmed from neckline to waist with tiny covered buttons, long fitted sleeves tapering to a point at the wrist. Her full skirt was made with court train and draped panniers over the hips extending into a twin bustle in the back. Her simple veil of illusion was held in place with a halo coronet. She carried a colonial bouquet of white chrysanthemums, centered with a purple orchid, and wore matching rhinestone clips, gift of the bridegroom.

The matron of honor was attired in a yellow moire taffeta gown and the bridesmaids, in ice blue satin and marquisette All were styled with high round neckline, cap sleeves and full skirts, with twin pouch drapes in the front. Their hats matching their gowns were of net, had opened crowns and were sweetheart shaped with matching ribbon streamers. They all carried colonial bouquets, the matron of honor's were of yellow and lavender chrysanthemums and the bridesmaids' yellow and white chrysanthemums. All wore rhinestone bracelets, gifts of the bride.

The flower girl wore a matching bonnet and dress of yellow dotted swiss, the latter fashioned with puffed sleeves, Peter Pan collar and full skirt with a big sash. She carried a miniature colonial bouquet and wore a bracelet of Mexican silver and turquoise, a gift of the bride.

Mrs. Anderson wore a gray suit with brown and white accessories, and had a corsage of red roses and white chrysanthemums.

The bride is a graduate of Mankato High School, Minn., and is employed as a typist by the State Department of Education in St. Paul. The bridegroom is a graduate of Fort Hill High School and served three years in the Marine Corps in the Asiatic-Pacific Theater. He is a cost accountant with the American Hoist and Derrick Company, St. Paul.

A reception was held in the church dining room, after the ceremony. The bridal table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Peter Brutsche and Mrs. Claude Anderson cut the cake.

Mr. Jenkins and his bride are now visiting his parents, as part of their wedding trip. After November 15, they will be at home to their friends at 453 Ashland Avenue, St. Paul.

ACE To Hold Open House At Teachers Meeting

Allegany Branch To Co-Sponsor Exhibit

Maryland members of the Association for Childhood Education International will take an active part in the program of the Maryland State Teachers Association meeting in Baltimore, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The ACE will hold an open house and reception from 3 until 5, Thursday afternoon in the officers lounge of the armory. Miss Margaret King, Cumberland, state representative for the national organization, will be hostess and has selected a committee of members from the local branch, including supervisors and elementary teachers, to receive the guests and to serve.

Miss King will also introduce Dr. Owen Lattimore, the principal speaker of the general session, Thursday afternoon. Dr. Lattimore, now of Johns Hopkins University, was former political advisor to Chiang-Kai-Shek in World War II, and is an expert in intercultural relations.

Montgomery and Allegany counties and Baltimore City branches will sponsor an exhibit, consisting of children's work, books of activities throughout the year and various types of pamphlets, at the state armory, Thursday and Friday from 9 a. m., to 9 p. m., and Saturday from 9 until 1 o'clock.

Twenty-five local members, under the leadership of Mrs. Josephine Yarnall, president, will assist at the exhibit booths.

WIFE PRESERVERS

If you fear infection through your telephone mouthpiece, wipe it each day with a mild antiseptic. This will also serve to eliminate sour odors which tend to cling to telephones.

Roger Fenton, the first war photographer, made his own wet plates in the field, usually with whites of eggs as fixatives.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27—(INS)—Italy has again become active in film production. I could say this is where I came in — for 30-odd years ago, when reviewing in Chicago, many outstanding pictures were being made in Italy, among them were "Quo Vadis" and "Cabiria."

Chas. Laughton

The climate in Italy is similar to our own California, also it was claimed the actinic lighting was good. Now, it isn't climate or lighting that interests the people—it's economy. Pictures can be made in Italy much cheaper.

Charles Laughton makes "Galileo," his own play, in Italy next summer. Yes, he has his money invested, and he'll do it independently with the author and a man named Geiger, sharing in the profits and expenses.

Laughton leaves for New York in a few weeks to appear in his play in the experimental theater on Broadway. It has already played out here with great success.

Curt Siodmak, the writer, is changing his name. Not that he isn't proud of his director brother Robert, but he, too, wants to direct. He feels people would confuse him with Robert and he wants to keep his own identity.

The first picture he'll direct is "Death On My Hands" at Allied Artists, with Robert Alda and Ann Dvorak co-starred. The directorial credit will read: Curt De Perrot Siodmak. The De Perrot was his wife's name before she married Curt.

History lives up to its reputation by repeating itself in the case of Lon Chaney Jr.

Twelve years ago, Lon played the heavy in "Sixteen Fathoms Deep" and now Arthur Lake has signed him for the same role in his (Arthur's) first independent—a remake of the deep sea diver saga.

Another welcome face in the "line-up" is Dickie Moore's. Remember this time last year everybody was worried that the former child star might never be able to work again. He was in a veterans' hospital partially paralyzed.

But now he is completely recovered and takes off with the company when it leaves Oct. 30 for Florida locations — Florida weather permitting, of course.

Chatter in Hollywood: I've just heard a very nice story about Ivan Lebedeff, former White Russian noble, and a Czarist officer at one time.

Recently Lebedeff received a fabulous collection of Russian stamps from the property of his family, known as the Maklakoff collection of rural stamps.

These stamps were hunted all over Europe by the Soviet agents, who first tried to buy them, then to steal them. Lebedeff was offered a large amount by the Soviet government, but refused, saying he was certain the U.S.S.R. would use the purchase as another shell in their barrage to prove America will sell anything for money.

Lebedeff is an American citizen, and proved his loyalty by donating his stamps to the Congressional Library.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Leo Genn returns to England in December for a movie after he finishes "Velvet Touch"—but he will be back in Hollywood later for more pictures, and I'm glad.

Connie Haines makes her first public appearance since the death of her fiancee, Dick Gray, when she opens at the New York Paramount, Nov. 12.

Mady Christians heads for London as soon as she finishes in Joan Fontaine's picture. Mady will direct and star in "I Remember Mama" at the request of George Van Druten.

Speaking of "I Remember Mama," when the picture was finished, Irene Dunne gave all the children in the cast little banks and $5 in silver.

That was Cyd Charisse with Howard Hughes at the Mocambo. Same night, the Joseph Cottens, the Alfred Hitchcocks, and the Don Ameches were among Hollywood's happiest married people night clubbing, same place.

Peggy Cummins writes that she attended the opening of Pat Kirkwood's play in London, which must mean that Pat, who suffered a complete nervous breakdown and was in a sanitarium for six months, has recovered.

That's all today.

Baby Gets a Brushoff

TINY GLAMOR GIRLS . . . Will take to little-locks brush sets, nylon bristles.

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

You can't hurt baby's hair by trying to encourage a natural curl in it. You can start when your tot first takes to the brush and in a short while you will be surprised to find that his hair actually falls into ringlets.

If your child's hair is inclined to be curly all it needs is a little gentle encouragement. If it is of the straight-as-a-poker variety, more concentrated care is required to produce ringlets—but it can be done.

One mother used a school pointer type of wooden stick to get baby's hair to the ringlet stage. Her baby hair-curler was round, about an eight-inch stick. She'd place it at baby's head and brush the slightly dampneed hair around it. Then she would pull the stick through the curl and let it set. Baby's hair was always sectioned so that each day the curl was set in the same place. Pretty soon the ringlets fell into place without much coaxing on mother's part.

The brushing habit will help grow strong, healthy hair. There are little-locks brush sets with soft, flexible, nylon bristles especially made for small babies whose heads must be handled gently.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27—(INS)—Italy has again become active in film production. I could say this is where I came in — for 30-odd years ago, when reviewing in Chicago, many outstanding pictures were being made in Italy, among them were "Quo Vadis" and "Cabiria."

Chas. Laughton

The climate in Italy is similar to our own California, also it was claimed the actinic lighting was good. Now, it isn't climate or lighting that interests the people—it's economy. Pictures can be made in Italy much cheaper.

Charles Laughton makes "Galileo," his own play, in Italy next summer. Yes, he has his money invested, and he'll do it independently with the author and a man named Geiger, sharing in the profits and expenses.

Laughton leaves for New York in a few weeks to appear in his play in the experimental theater on Broadway. It has already played out here with great success.

Curt Siodmak, the writer, is changing his name. Not that he isn't proud of his director brother Robert, but he, too, wants to direct. He feels people would confuse him with Robert and he wants to keep his own identity.

The first picture he'll direct is "Death On My Hands" at Allied Artists, with Robert Alda and Ann Dvorak co-starred. The directorial credit will read: Curt De Perrot Siodmak. The De Perrot was his wife's name before she married Curt.

History lives up to its reputation by repeating itself in the case of Lon Chaney Jr.

Twelve years ago, Lon played the heavy in "Sixteen Fathoms Deep" and now Arthur Lake has signed him for the same role in his (Arthur's) first independent—a remake of the deep sea diver saga.

Another welcome face in the "line-up" is Dickie Moore's. Remember this time last year everybody was worried that the former child star might never be able to work again. He was in a veterans' hospital partially paralyzed.

But now he is completely recovered and takes off with the company when it leaves Oct. 30 for Florida locations — Florida weather permitting, of course.

Chatter in Hollywood: I've just heard a very nice story about Ivan Lebedeff, former White Russian noble, and a Czarist officer at one time.

Recently Lebedeff received a fabulous collection of Russian stamps from the property of his family, known as the Maklakoff collection of rural stamps.

These stamps were hunted all over Europe by the Soviet agents, who first tried to buy them, then to steal them. Lebedeff was offered a large amount by the Soviet government, but refused, saying he was certain the U.S.S.R. would use the purchase as another shell in their barrage to prove America will sell anything for money.

Lebedeff is an American citizen, and proved his loyalty by donating his stamps to the Congressional Library.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Leo Genn returns to England in December for a movie after he finishes "Velvet Touch"—but he will be back in Hollywood later for more pictures, and I'm glad.

Connie Haines makes her first public appearance since the death of her fiancee, Dick Gray, when she opens at the New York Paramount, Nov. 12.

Mady Christians heads for London as soon as she finishes in Joan Fontaine's picture. Mady will direct and star in "I Remember Mama" at the request of George Van Druten.

Speaking of "I Remember Mama," when the picture was finished, Irene Dunne gave all the children in the cast little banks and $5 in silver.

That was Cyd Charisse with Howard Hughes at the Mocambo. Same night, the Joseph Cottens, the Alfred Hitchcocks, and the Don Ameches were among Hollywood's happiest married people night clubbing, same place.

Peggy Cummins writes that she attended the opening of Pat Kirkwood's play in London, which must mean that Pat, who suffered a complete nervous breakdown and was in a sanitarium for six months, has recovered.

That's all today.

Baby Gets a Brushoff

TINY GLAMOR GIRLS . . . Will take to little-locks brush sets, nylon bristles.

AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

You can't hurt baby's hair by trying to encourage a natural curl in it. You can start when your tot first takes to the brush and in a short while you will be surprised to find that his hair actually falls into ringlets.

If your child's hair is inclined to be curly all it needs is a little gentle encouragement. If it is of the straight-as-a-poker variety, more concentrated care is required to produce ringlets—but it can be done.

One mother used a school pointer type of wooden stick to get baby's hair to the ringlet stage. Her baby hair-curler was round, about an eight-inch stick. She'd place it at baby's head and brush the slightly dampneed hair around it. Then she would pull the stick through the curl and let it set. Baby's hair was always sectioned so that each day the curl was set in the same place. Pretty soon the ringlets fell into place without much coaxing on mother's part.

The brushing habit will help grow strong, healthy hair. There are little-locks brush sets with soft, flexible, nylon bristles especially made for small babies whose heads must be handled gently.

Frostburg Holds Navy Day Parade And Celebration

W. Earle Cobey Guest Speaker

Hundreds of Frostburgers lined main street last night from Grant to Water Streets, to witness the Navy Day parade. Later the crowd assembled in front of the Gunter Hotel to hear an address by W. Earle Cobey, local attorney, who served as lieutenant commander with the United States Navy in the Southwest Pacific during World War II.

The parade led by an escort of State Police, consisted of the Mayor and City Commissioners and members of the local Naval Reserve Unit and motor cars, the Frostburg Arion Band, the Drum and Bugle Corps of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, the newly uniformed honor guard of the Fairgrieves Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a Marine float depicting the raising of the American flag on Iwo Jima.

After the parade dispersed Cobey, who was introduced by Mayor Marshall C. Skidmore, lauded the patriotic spirit of Frostburgers for their enthusiastic observance of Navy Day. He referred to the important part the young men of the Georges Creek Region played in Naval service during the war and expressed the hope that the Navy of the future might be kept at a high level by the younger generation.

Referring to the Navy as the nation's first line of defense, Cobey also paid tribute to the importance of the Army and other branches of the armed forces.

He gave his support to the effort now being made to build up the National Guard to full strength and complimented the young men who are taking advantage of opportunities being offered by the National Guard, Naval Reserve and Marine Reserve.

Following Cobey's address the VFW honor guard stood at attention while a prayer for the dead was offered at the Frostburg honor roll, by Rev. Walter D. Mehrling. The program concluded with Arion Band playing the National Anthem and the VFW buglers sounding taps.

FROSTBURGER FACES MANSLAUGHTER COUNT

Facing a manslaughter charge, Donald Varner Carpenter, 33, Frostburg, alleged driver of a car which struck and fatally injured Joseph W. Niner, 76, 119 Blaul Avenue, Sunday night, will be given a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court Wednesday, according to Maryland State Police.

Action was taken against Carpenter, an egg broker, yesterday after he was question at length in the office of the State's Attorney about the accident which occurred on Route 40 in LaVale Sunday at 6:20 p. m.

Niner, a retired blacksmith and carpenter died en route to Memorial Hospital after he was struck while walking along the highway, according to State Police, who added he apparently was going to Bennett's Store to wait for a bus to Cumberland. The impact threw him 50 feet.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said the man died from a hemorrhage of the lungs, crushed chest on the right side and an intercranial hemorrhage due to a fractured skull.

Trooper First Class William Baker, who investigated, said Niner was still alive when he placed him in an ambulance at the scene of the accident.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's Catholic Church. The body will remain at Stein's Funeral Home until time for the service.

Incendiarism Suspected

tain in the Dawson and Danville areas. This blaze was believed of incendiary origin, authorities said.

Three small fires on Backbone Mountain, which burned less than an acre were quickly extinguished, Parr said, but these also were believed to have been set.

Two fires were reported in the Westernport-Luke area. One started on Westernport Hill near Division Street at about 4:45 p. m. and companies from Piedmont, W. Va., and Westernport extinguished it.

Another, reported at 6:10 and extinguished after a two-hour battle by fire units from Westernport, Piedmont and Luke, burned over several acres on Hilltop, Westernport. At one time, flames swept within 30 yards of the home of Mrs. Martin Peck, but the house was undamaged. Fire Chief William Nailis of Potomac Fire Company No. 2, Westernport declared, "the fire was set."

In Garrett county, an acre and a half burned yesterday near Oakland, the flames starting in the city dump. In the Broad Ford Area near Deer Park, two and a half acres burned over, but was quickly brought under control by use of a new beetle tractor.

Forestry officials said they have reason to believe fires reported in Frederick and Washington counties were deliberately started, or started by careless smokers. Investigations are underway.

New Fog Unit Purchased

District Forester Parr said late last night that a newly purchased "high pressure fog unit", similar to fire fighting apparatus used by the Navy during the war, has been ordered sent here from Baltimore. Parr declared the unit should prove effective in fighting fires in areas that can be reached by road. He said it should arrive here this morning, and will be taken to Garrett county, where it will be used to protect vast timberlands there.

The forester was liberal in his praise last night of the Maryland State Police and of volunteer fire companies of this and Garrett counties. He declared that his own crews have worked for long periods with practically no rest, and this new outbreak has been a great burden on the department. He declared the cooperation of the volunteer units has been most encouraging, and State Police have done everything asked of them and more. Police are also investigating reports of incendiarism, he said.

Criminal Appeal Cases Heard In Circuit Court

Louis Donius Gets Six Months Sentence

Louis Donius, acting as his own attorney in Circuit Court yesterday, was sentenced to serve six months in the Maryland House of Correction, when found guilty by a jury on two charges of larceny, as October criminal appeal cases were heard.

The case was a criminal appeal from Trial Magistrates Court, and the higher tribunal upheld the magistrates decision and affirmed sentences imposed. The sentences on the two charges are to run concurrently.

Donius was charged with taking copper tubing from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad worth $23.

In another appeal case, Jack Porter, charged with vagrancy, was given a suspended sentence of six months in the House of Correction, provided he refrain from panhandling, stays sober and doesn't loaf around the German Brewery property, where he was arrested for loitering.

Porter had been arrested on three previous occasions on the same charge, authorities said.

Chief Judge William A. Huster asked Porter if he would like to return to Baltimore, where he said he had been employed. The defendant told the Court, "No, I don't like the climate there." The Court warned him to keep out of trouble.

Two Veterans Warned

Two Cresaptown youths, Eugene Keister and James Skelly, both 20, were paroled for two years each and warned to abstain from use of intoxicants. They had been convicted in Trial Magistrates Court on charges of larceny. They were arrested after taking articles worth $24 from the parked car of Carl Hersh.

In Trial Magistrates Court, Keister had been sentenced to six months in jail and Skelly to six months. The Court suspended these sentences and issued a warning with two years parole. Keister served 36 months in the Merchant Marine and Skelly 18 months in the Army during World War II.

During the appeal case of Henry Diehl, Barrelville, from a $20 fine imposed by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew in Trial Magistrates' Court, one witness amused court room spectators with her constant interruptions and testimony.

Woman Interrupts Testimony

The case evolved a fracas at the home of Diehl last May 28 when Charlotte Harkins, 27, the ex-wife of Diehl's son, and the appellant engaged in a fight. The Harkins woman allegedly went to the Diehl home with her former husband to settle the division of furniture and other matters.

Diehl ordered her off the property and during the fracas Diehl was cut over the eye. He claimed she used a knife on him, but she said she took off her shoe and struck him. When she was on the stand, Morris Baron, attorney for Diehl, asked her if she had ever been convicted.

"What's that got to do with this case," the slack-clad Harkins woman shot back.

Finally becoming exasperated the Harkins woman exploded with the information she had been married four times, was sent to reform school when she was "just a brat," served "three long years" for stealing a car and was acquitted of manslaughter in a Baltimore court.

She said a man had come to her home and cut her on the hip with a knife.

"Do you want to see the scar," she asked Attorney Baron.

After she left the stand she made several comments during testimony of other witnesses, and the court had to rap for order. State Trooper William Baker testified about events after he had gone to the Diehl home on complaint of the Harkins woman.

It all ended with Diehl being found not guilty.

Army Mobile Unit Will Visit Local Schools This Week

Display To Promote Guard Enlistments

A large mobile unit, displaying a number of new and modern military weapons, will be on display here Wednesday and Thursday in the interest of the Maryland National Guard Recruiting campaign, according to Major Howard H. Dickey, local battalion commander.

Major Dickey said the unit, coming here from Second Army headquarters in Baltimore, includes a 105-howitzer, 57 mm. and 37 mm. guns, new towed, recoiless howitzers and guns and a number of other exhibits of interest.

Expected to arrive here sometime tonight the display will visit local high schools as well as Beall High School in Frostburg, and will also be set up in the down town section, probably on Baltimore Street.

Major Dickey said some progress is being made in recruiting additional enlisted personnel for the two local units and for the company at Frostburg. However, many more men are needed before the three county units can be brought to desirable strength.

Guardsmen enlisting now, he said, will have the opportunity to advance in grade rapidly and may also take correspondence courses, if they wish, making them eligible for reserve commissions.

Under a new ruling, endorsed by President Truman, young men in good physical and mental condition and of good character, who have reached their 17th birthdays, may now join the guard. All men enlisted receive a full day of base pay, according to grade, for each weekly drill period attended, Major Dickey said, in addition to a full two-weeks vacation in the summer time with pay and expenses.

Headquarters Company, which needs men to train for communications, including telephone and radio, as well as clerical and mechanical personnel, drills at the State Armory each Tuesday night. Company C drills each Wednesday night and needs men as riflemen, automatic gunners, drivers, technicians etc.

Drills include mostly class work, demonstrations, lectures and movies, Major Dickey explained.

It also was proposed that Baltimore Avenue, from Goethe Street to the top of the hill, be widened from 24 to 30 feet. City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer was authorized to make the necessary engineering check.

Negotiations leading to leasing of the Southern Hotel to the Blue Ridge Transportation Company for use as a central bus terminal have reached a deadlock, John T. Fey, attorney for Frank B. Vandegrift, hotel owner, told the council.

J. Henry Holzshu conferred with the council regarding development of a section in the vicinity of the Fort Hill reservoir, and offered to make land available for a street if the city also makes a contribution.

In another real estate development the city tentatively agreed to lay about 250 feet of sewer to serve the White Oaks Addition in return for a one-third mile right-of-way for a sanitary sewer. The White Oaks section off Mapleside is being developed by James Arfred Avirett.

W. Earle Cobey Guest Speaker

Hundreds of Frostburgers lined main street last night from Grant to Water Streets, to witness the Navy Day parade. Later the crowd assembled in front of the Gunter Hotel to hear an address by W. Earle Cobey, local attorney, who served as lieutenant commander with the United States Navy in the Southwest Pacific during World War II.

The parade led by an escort of State Police, consisted of the Mayor and City Commissioners and members of the local Naval Reserve Unit and motor cars, the Frostburg Arion Band, the Drum and Bugle Corps of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, the newly uniformed honor guard of the Fairgrieves Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a Marine float depicting the raising of the American flag on Iwo Jima.

After the parade dispersed Cobey, who was introduced by Mayor Marshall C. Skidmore, lauded the patriotic spirit of Frostburgers for their enthusiastic observance of Navy Day. He referred to the important part the young men of the Georges Creek Region played in Naval service during the war and expressed the hope that the Navy of the future might be kept at a high level by the younger generation.

Referring to the Navy as the nation's first line of defense, Cobey also paid tribute to the importance of the Army and other branches of the armed forces.

He gave his support to the effort now being made to build up the National Guard to full strength and complimented the young men who are taking advantage of opportunities being offered by the National Guard, Naval Reserve and Marine Reserve.

Following Cobey's address the VFW honor guard stood at attention while a prayer for the dead was offered at the Frostburg honor roll, by Rev. Walter D. Mehring. The program concluded with Arion Band playing the National Anthem and the VFW bugiers sounding taps.

FROSTBURGER FACES MANSLAUGHTER COUNT

Facing a manslaughter charge, Donald Varner Carpenter, 33, Frostburg, alleged driver of a car which struck and fatally injured Joseph W. Niner, 76, 119 Blaul Avenue, Sunday night, will be given a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court Wednesday, according to Maryland State Police.

Action was taken against Carpenter, an egg broker, yesterday after he was question at length in the office of the State's Attorney about the accident which occurred on Route 40 in LaVale Sunday at 6:20 p. m.

Niner, a retired blacksmith and carpenter died en route to Memorial Hospital after he was struck while walking along the highway, according to State Police, who added he apparently was going to Bennett's Store to wait for a bus to Cumberland. The impact threw him 50 feet.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said the man died from a hemorrhage of the lungs, crushed chest on the right side and an intercranial hemorrhage due to a fractured skull.

Trooper First Class William Baker, who investigated, said Niner was still alive when he placed him in an ambulance at the scene of the accident.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's Catholic Church. The body will remain at Stein's Funeral Home until time for the service.

Incendiarism Suspected

tain in the Dawson and Danville areas. This blaze was believed of incendiary origin, authorities said.

Three small fires on Backbone Mountain, which burned less than an acre were quickly extinguished, Parr said, but these also were believed to have been set.

Two fires were reported in the Westernport-Luke area. One started on Westernport Hill near Division Street at about 4:45 p. m. and companies from Piedmont, W. Va., and Westernport extinguished it.

Another, reported at 6:10 and extinguished after a two-hour battle by fire units from Westernport, Piedmont and Luke, burned over several acres on Hilltop, Westernport. At one time, flames swept within 30 yards of the home of Mrs. Martin Peck, but the house was undamaged. Fire Chief William Nailis of Potomac Fire Company No. 2, Westernport declared, "the fire was set."

In Garrett county, an acre and a half burned yesterday near Oakland, the flames starting in the city dump. In the Broad Ford Area near Deer Park, two and a half acres burned over, but was quickly brought under control by use of a new beetle tractor.

Forestry officials said they have reason to believe fires reported in Frederick and Washington counties were deliberately started, or started by careless smokers. Investigations are underway.

New Fog Unit Purchased

District Forester Parr said late last night that a newly purchased "high pressure fog unit", similar to fire fighting apparatus used by the Navy during the war, has been ordered sent here from Baltimore. Parr declared the unit should prove effective in fighting fires in areas that can be reached by road. He said it should arrive here this morning, and will be taken to Garrett county, where it will be used to protect vast timberlands there.

The forester was liberal in his praise last night of the Maryland State Police and of volunteer fire companies of this and Garrett counties. He declared that his own crews have worked for long periods with practically no rest, and this new outbreak has been a great burden on the department. He declared the cooperation of the volunteer units has been most encouraging, and State Police have done everything asked of them and more. Police are also investigating reports of incendiarism, he said.

Criminal Appeal Cases Heard In Circuit Court

Louis Donius Gets Six Months Sentence

Louis Donius, acting as his own attorney in Circuit Court yesterday, was sentenced to serve six months in the Maryland House of Correction, when found guilty by a jury on two charges of larceny, as October criminal appeal cases were heard.

The case was a criminal appeal from Trial Magistrates Court, and the higher tribunal upheld the magistrates decision and affirmed sentences imposed. The sentences on the two charges are to run concurrently.

Donius was charged with taking copper tubing from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad worth $23.

In another appeal case, Jack Porter, charged with vagrancy, was given a suspended sentence of six months in the House of Correction, provided he refrain from panhandling, stays sober and doesn't loaf around the German Brewery property, where he was arrested for loitering.

Porter had been arrested on three previous occasions on the same charge, authorities said.

Chief Judge William A. Huster asked Porter if he would like to return to Baltimore, where he said he had been employed. The defendant told the Court, "No, I don't like the climate there." The Court warned him to keep out of trouble.

Two Veterans Warned.

Two Cresaptown youths, Eugene Keister and James Skelly, both 20, were paroled for two years each and warned to abstain from use of intoxicants. They had been convicted in Trial Magistrates Court on charges of larceny. They were arrested after taking articles worth $24 from the parked car of Carl Hersh.

In Trial Magistrates Court, Keister had been sentenced to six months in jail and Skelly to six months. The Court suspended these sentences and issued a warning with two years parole. Keister served 36 months in the Merchant Marine and Skelly 18 months in the Army during World War II.

During the appeal case of Henry Diehl, Barrelville, from a $20 fine imposed by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew in Trial Magistrates' Court, one witness amused court room spectators with her constant interruptions and testimony.

Woman Interrupts Testimony

The case evolved a fracas at the home of Diehl last May 28 when Charlotte Harkins, 27, the ex-wife of Diehl's son, and the appellant engaged in a fight. The Harkins woman allegedly went to the Diehl home with her former husband to settle the division of furniture and other matters.

Diehl ordered her off the property and during the fracas Diehl was cut over the eye. He claimed she used a knife on him, but she said she took off her shoe and struck him. When she was on the stand, Morris Baron, attorney for Diehl, asked her if she had ever been convicted.

"What's that got to do with this case," the slack-clad Harkins woman shot back.

Finally becoming exasperated the Harkins woman exploded with the information she had been married four times, was sent to reform school when she was "just a brat," served "three long years" for stealing a car and was acquitted of manslaughter in a Baltimore court.

She said a man had come to her home and cut her on the hip with a knife.

"Do you want to see the scar," she asked Attorney Baron.

After she left the stand she made several comments during testimony of other witnesses, and the court had to rap for order. State Trooper William Baker testified about events after he had gone to the Diehl home on complaint of the Harkins woman.

It all ended with Diehl being found not guilty.

Army Mobile Unit Will Visit Local Schools This Week

Display To Promote Guard Enlistments

A large mobile unit, displaying a number of new and modern military weapons, will be on display here Wednesday and Thursday in the interest of the Maryland National Guard Recruiting campaign, according to Major Howard H. Dickey, local battalion commander.

Major Dickey said the unit, coming here from Second Army headquarters in Baltimore, includes a 105-howitzer, 57 mm. and 37 mm. guns, new towed, recoiless howitzers and guns and a number of other exhibits of interest.

Expected to arrive here sometime tonight the display will visit local high schools as well as Beall High School in Frostburg, and will also be set up in the down town section, probably on Baltimore Street.

Major Dickey said some progress is being made in recruiting additional enlisted personnel for the two local units and for the company at Frostburg. However, many more men are needed before the three county units can be brought to desirable strength.

Guardsmen enlisting now, he said, will have the opportunity to advance in grade rapidly and may also take correspondence courses, if they wish, making them eligible for reserve commissions.

Under a new ruling, endorsed by President Truman, young men in good physical and mental condition and of good character, who have reached their 17th birthdays, may now join the guard. All men enlisted receive a full day of base pay, according to grade, for each weekly drill period attended, Major Dickey said, in addition to a full two-weeks vacation in the summer time with pay and expenses.

Headquarters Company, which needs men to train for communications, including telephone and radio, as well as clerical and mechanical personnel, drills at the State Armory each Tuesday night. Company C drills each Wednesday night and needs men as riflemen, automatic gunners, drivers, technicians etc.

Drills include mostly class work, demonstrations, lectures and movies, Major Dickey explained.

Irish Remove Michigan From Lead In Grid Poll

Texas U. And Penn Strong Contenders

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. (AP)—Notre Dame, still supposedly playing "under wraps," moved to the head of the class today in the weekly Associated Press poll of football writers, supplanting still-unbeaten Michigan.

The Minnesota Gophers apparently rubbed some of the glamor off the Michigan machine before succumbing, 13-6, for the writers shunted the Wolverines into second place. A week ago they commanded 147 of 168 first place votes. This time they grabbed only 69 with 78 of the 195 ballots listing the Fighting Irish at the top of the heap.

Texas remained a strong contender for top honors with 25 firsts and Pennsylvania, gaining strength on its 21-0 win over Navy, was named No. 1 by 11 votes.

Coach Frank Leahy's Irish slipped past Iowa, 21-0, without showing too much of their attack to future rivals. With Navy scheduled to test them Saturday in Cleveland, fans may learn more about the true strength of Notre Dame.

Leahy Notes Improvement

Leahy cautiously commented after the Iowa game "they improved over last week and they will continue to improve. It will take a very good team to beat them."

The point score from the most extensive weekly poll in many years showed Notre Dame at 1734 holding a slim 45-point edge over Michigan at 1689 with Texas a close third at 1516.

When the Longhorns of Texas meet the Southern Methodist Mustangs, who climbed to eighth place on a 7-0 win over U.C.L.A., in one of Saturday's feature games, the nation will get a better line on these two Southwest Conference powers.

Pennsylvania moved from eighth to fourth on its Navy success and now runs into Princeton, which knocked them off last year in one of the major upsets of the season.

The big battle on the Pacific Coast resulting in a 39-14 decision for Southern California over California sent the victorious Trojans into fifth place only a few points behind Penn. Coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf's Golden Bears fell out of the first 10.

Georgia Tech, enjoying a breather with The Citadel, moved up a peg to sixth position and Penn State advanced from ninth to seventh by outlasting previously-unbeaten West Virginia, 21-14.

Duke's Stock Soars

Duke's stock soared on the Blue Devils' 12-6 conquest to Wake Forest and they came all the way from 15th to 9th position. Something will have to give when Duke plays Georgia Tech Saturday.

Despite Army's upset loss to Columbia, 21-20, ending their nonlosing string after 32 games, the Cadets managed to hold 10th place in the rankings, only two points ahead of Illinois which played an 0-0 tie with them earlier.

Illinois' loss to Purdue sent them tumbling to 11th but oddly enough the victory didn't help Purdue too much nor did Minnesota's sturdy stand against Michigan give them much of a boost in the standings.

Team standings with points figured an a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses).

Others receiving votes were Texas Christian, 12; North Carolina, 10; Nevada and Utah, each 7; Minnesota, Missouri and Kansas, each 6; Navy and Utah State, each, 5; Northwestern, 4; Tennessee, 3; Mississippi State, Wisconsin, Yale and Franklin and Marshall, each 2; West Virginia, William and Mary, Oregon and Catawba, each 1.

Aussie Trainers Prep For Top Two-Mile Race

SYDNEY, Oct. 27. (AP)—Australia's horse trainers are sharpening up their thoroughbreds for the classic two-mile Melbourne Cup race, November 4, this nation's top turf event.

More than 100,000 fans are expected to witness Australia's richest horse race. First place will be worth $22,680 and second $6,480. Originally 500 gallopers were entered. When final acceptances are declared October 30 probably 35 to 40 horses will remain in the event.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (INS) — Broadwayites want to thank Portland, Ore., for sending them Bob Hudson . . . the fastest man with a buck the big stem has seen in years.

But don't send him too often . . . the eastern boys can take it . . . he's the sportsman who is picking up a $50,000 tab . . . bringing the British Ryder Cup team over here to play us at Portland . . . which Bob calls "the golf capital of the world" . . .

Bob's last gesture was a "little" dinner that must have set him back $5,000 . . . if Sam Breadon really wants to sell his Cardinals he ought to sound out Hudson. . .

And speaking of dough . . . Pauline Betz . . . the former tennis queen . . . is getting $750 a week on a ping pong tour. . .

Which reminds me that Jascha Heifetz . . . world famous violinist . . . fancied himself as a ping pong player . . . but only for a short time. . . .

He won the ship championship coming over from Europe on the Normandie one time . . . and he was wildly excited over his triumphs . . . he told friends he'd like a chance to meet a real good player just to find out how good he was. . .

So one fellow said "I know a youngster on the lower east side who is pretty good and I'll arrange a match for you". . .

The youngster happened to be Sol Schiff . . . former international champion . . . but the designing friend didn't mention this fact when introducing Schiff to Heifetz. . .

Well, they played and as might be expected the scores of all games were 21-0 . . . poor Heifetz couldn't score a point . . . finally, Heifetz quit and he said to Schiff . . . "young man you are a wonder at this game and now as a special favor to you I'm going to play the violin for you". . . .

Heifetz was stunned when the youngster replied: "No, thanks, Mr. Heifetz, I don't like fiddling!" . . .

Television people also were stunned recently when hundreds of fans phoned in protesting because they had to see James Forrestal . . . secretary for national defense . . . instead of the usual fight at the St. Nick's arena. . .

Horace Stoneham . . . owner of the N. Y. Giants . . . recalling how the late Barney Dreyfuss used to make out the entire National League baseball schedule by himself in one day . . . and always so arranged it that his Pirates were able to duck the hot weather in St. Louis. . .

And did you know that up to 1902 when the old gutta percha golf ball went out . . . if one of those balls split . . . and they often did . . . you had to play the hole with the larger half of the ball . . .

And had you heard that it will cost $450,000 to send our team to the Olympic Games? . .

Michigan-Illinois Game Next Saturday Will Settle Conference Title and Bowl Bid

Bob Chappuis, Michigan — Dike Eddleman, Illinois — Walt Teninga, Michigan

Art Dufelmeier, Illinois — Paul Patterson, Illinois — Dick Rifenburg, Michigan

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

MIGHTY MICHIGAN'S Rose Bowl reservation, made right after the Ohio State game last November, will be unofficially confirmed next Saturday in Memorial Stadium, Champaign, Ill., before a crowd in excess of 70,000.

Travel being the way it is, reservations aren't always acknowledged but from the record it appears the Wolves will be checked in early for the Jan. 1 trip west.

There's a slight hitch, however, and that is a football team known far and wide as the Fightin' Illini, defending champions in the Rose Bowl.

Even if the Illini defeat Fritz Crisler's modern juggernaut, the Champaign crew won't go as the agreement nixes that. But who said the Fightin' Illini are going to beat Michigan?

After Illinois, Crisler's powerhouse has three more road blocks on the scenic route west. The three, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio State, shouldn't put much of a dent into the travel time of the Wolves despite the upset possibility.

MICHIGAN, you know, has an especial pride in the Rose Bowl game and it would be fitting for this great Maize and Blue eleven to reach Pasadena.

It was Michigan, back in 1901, which drew the first invite from a west coast team to play an intersectional game. Leland Stanford, Jr. (Stanford) did the inviting and Michigan, the first of the juggernauts assembled by the late Fielding H. (Hurry-Up) Yost, went west to make a shambles of a good Stanford team.

Michigan, sporting a marvelous record of 10 wins and no defeats and a point total of 501 against 0 for its opponents, scored 17 points in the first half (in those days the rules called for two 35-minute halves) and then came back with 32 more in the shortened second half to win, 49-0, a smashing climax to a smashing season.

With the great Willie Heston sparking the club the mighty Michigans of 1901 won most of their games by lopsided scores, such as 128-0 over Buffalo, 89-0 over Beloit, 50-0 over Iowa and 33-0 over Indiana.

From that 1902 game the present-day Rose Bowl game deevloped. The first real Rose Bowl game was played in 1916 and since that time only Ohio State, in 1921, and Illinois, last Jan. 1, have given the Western Conference representation. For many years, of course, the Conference turned thumbs down on the post-season classics.

THE Michigan-Illinois clash Nov. 1 is the 33rd between the teams. Michigan has had all the best of it, winning 22 and losing 10 with no ties spotting the rivalry.

Crisler has had topheavy success in his games with the Illini, too. In nine meetings, Crisler-coached Michigan teams have won seven. His 1939 club lost, 16-7, and last year the Wolves were beaten, 13-9.

Michigan and Illinois have been strong forces in the Conference race through the years. Michigan has won or shared 14 loop crowns and Illinois has won or shared nine.

The game pits two powerful, veteran squads against each other.

It should be a high-scoring tilt, with the Wolves on the long end.

In the first stanza, Tribut screod on a 20 yard run, and a pass, Nixon to Cage tallied the extra point. Nixon ran 37 yards to pay dirt, and a pass, Cage to Wagely, added the one pointer to make the score 14-0.

In the third, an aerial, Nixon to Cage, was good for a touchdown, and Nixon plunged for the E. P. Another toss later in the quarter scored, Goss to Cage, with Glenn plunging the point. The other T. D. in the third was made when Haslin the third on an Allegany punt fumble in back of the goal line. ## British Ryder Cup Aspirants Start Practice In Portland

Larger U. S. Ball Proves No Handicap

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 27 (INS)—Hungrier for victory than luncheon, the British Ryder Cup team reached Portland today for the "World Series of Golf" and began practice almost at once.

Less than two hours after their arrival in the city, the 10 British aces hied to the Portland Golf Links, where they will meet the 10 highest-ranking American pros Saturday and Sunday.

In doing so the visitors begged off a luncheon to which Mayor R. E. Riley and 300 guests had been invited.

It was all because the Union Pacific Streamliner City Of Portland was almost four hours late, explained Robert A. Hudson, Portland wholesale grocer and sponsor of the match. He accompanied the invaders from New York to Portland.

By the time they began touring the rolling, tree-studded links, a drizzle had begun to fall, a possible omen of weather to come.

The players oozed confidence that they will win the cup this year to score Britain's first victory on American soil in the history of the cup. American teams have won four times and British twice. The match was dormant for a decade after 1937.

The professionals were met at the railroad station by newsmen, photographers, radio broadcasters and civic leaders who gave the key of the city to Team Captain Henry Cotton. Then they were whisked off behind a police motorcycle escort to the best hotel in town, where five of the seven parlor suites in the building were waiting for them.

Asked whether he expected his team to win, Cotton told newsmen: "That's what we've come for."

An echo of Cotton's assurance was voiced by Fred Daly, the Northern Irishman who holds the British Open Title. He declared:

"Sure we'll win. We're not here to lose."

The bigger American ball?

"No trouble at all," declared Cotton. "When we practice with the American ball our scores were about the same as they were with the British ball."

Cotton confided that the welcomes given them have "overwhelmed" and "embarrassed" the invading pros and made some of them "dizzy".

Other members of the team are Dai Rees, Jim Adams, Sam King, Art Lees, Charley Ward, Max Faulkner, Eric Green and Reggie Horne.

Officials To Meet

A meeting of the Western Maryland and Eastern West Virginia Football Officials Association will be held tonight at 8 p. m. at the Board of Education building, Washington Street. President John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh announced last night. Dan Staley will conduct the discussion.

Gob Faces Stern Navy Punishment

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 27 (AP) — An investigation of suspected speculation in tickets for Navy football games has led to the confinement of an unidentified midshipman, a Naval Academy spokesman said today.

The midshipman has been placed under restriction for a "Class A" offense, the fost serious in the academy disciplinary system, the spokesman added.

About 400 tickets to the Penn or Cornell games, or both, were involved, the spokesman said.

The possibility of midshipman participation in ticket "scalping" came to light October 15, three days before Navy met Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y.

That evening, the spokesman said, Academy switchboard operators received an anonymous tip that "scalpers were on the grounds." They notified guards at the main gate, who a few moments later stopped a man leaving the Academy.

Guards searched his briefcase and found the 400 tickets. Questioned by Navy Athletic Association officials, the man, who gave a Philadelphia address, said he was "only a messenger." He did "implicate" a midshipman, the spokesman said.

Admiral Ingram Starts Campaign For Playoff Tilt

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (AP)—Adm. Jonas Ingram (USN Ret.), Commissioner of the All-America Football Conference, forthrightly declared today:

"I'm going to needle the hell out of the National League until we get the recognition due us and they agree to meet us in a playoff."

Referring to the older NFL's refusal to meet in a post-season game for the national pro grid title, the salty admiral, who recently offered to send the All-America's second best team against the NFL's champion, blustered:

"Why, we have four teams in this league better than anything they have."

Using major league baseball as an example, Adm. Ingram pointed out that the National and American Leagues at first were considered strange bedfellows.

"Now, I don't want to sleep with the National Football League," the admiral told a gathering of Southern California football writers, "but I do want to get along."

He predicted that public demand eventually would force a playoff between the two rival pro loops.

"The people want, and have a right to know, which is the real pro champion," the commissioner said. "I'm going to fight for this thing right down the line."

Irish Remove Michigan From Lead In Grid Poll

Texas U. And Penn Strong Contenders

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. (AP)—Notre Dame, still supposedly playing "under wraps," moved to the head of the class today in the weekly Associated Press poll of football writers, supplanting still-unbeaten Michigan.

The Minnesota Gophers apparently rubbed some of the glamor off the Michigan machine before succumbing, 13-6, for the writers shunted the Wolverines into second place. A week ago they commanded 147 of 168 first place votes. This time they grabbed only 69 with 78 of the 195 ballots listing the Fighting Irish at the top of the heap.

Texas remained a strong contender for top honors with 25 firsts and Pennsylvania, gaining strength on its 21-0 win over Navy, was named No. 1 by 11 votes.

Coach Frank Leahy's Irish slipped past Iowa, 21-0, without showing too much of their attack to future rivals. With Navy scheduled to test them Saturday in Cleveland, fans may learn more about the true strength of Notre Dame.

Leahy Notes Improvement

Leahy cautiously commented after the Iowa game "they improved over last week and they will continue to improve. It will take a very good team to beat them."

The point score from the most extensive weekly poll in many years showed Notre Dame at 1734 holding a slim 45-point edge over Michigan at 1689 with Texas a close third at 1516.

When the Longhorns of Texas meet the Southern Methodist Mustangs, who climbed to eighth place on a 7-0 win over U.C.L.A., in one of Saturday's feature games, the nation will get a better line on these two Southwest Conference powers.

Pennsylvania moved from eighth to fourth on its Navy success and now runs into Princeton, which knocked them off last year in one of the major upsets of the season.

The big battle on the Pacific Coast resulting in a 39-14 decision for Southern California over California sent the victorious Trojans into fifth place only a few points behind Penn. Coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf's Golden Bears fell out of the first 10.

Georgia Tech, enjoying a breather with The Citadel, moved up a peg to sixth position and Penn State advanced from ninth to seventh by outlasting previously - unbeaten West Virginia, 21-14.

Duke's Stock Soars

Duke's stock soared on the Blue Devils' 12-6 conquest to Wake Forest and they came all the way from 15th to 9th position. Something will have to give when Duke plays Georgia Tech Saturday.

Despite Army's upset loss to Columbia, 21-20, ending their nonlosing string after 32 games, the Cadets managed to hold 10th place in the rankings, only two points ahead of Illinois which played an 0-0 tie with them earlier.

Illinois' loss to Purdue sent them tumbling to 11th but oddly enough the victory didn't help Purdue too much nor did Minnesota's sturdy stand against Michigan give them much of a boost in the standings.

Team standings with points figured an a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses).

| 8. | Southern Methodist | 558 |

Central Press Sports Editor

MIGHTY MICHIGAN'S Rose Bowl reservation, made right after the Ohio State game last November, will be unofficially confirmed next Saturday in Memorial Stadium, Champaign, Ill., before a crowd in excess of 70,000.

Travel being the way it is, reservations aren't always acknowledged but from the record it appears the Wolves will be checked in early for the Jan. 1 trip west.

There's a slight hitch, however, and that is a football team known far and wide as the Fightin' Illini, defending champions in the Rose Bowl.

Even if the Illini defeat Fritz Crisler's modern juggernaut, the Champaign crew won't go as the agreement nixes that. But who said the Fightin' Illini are going to beat Michigan?

After Illinois, Crisler's powerhouse has three more road blocks on the scenic route west. The three, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio State, shouldn't put much of a dent into the travel time of the Wolves despite the upset possibility.

MICHIGAN, you know, has an especial pride in the Rose Bowl game and it would be fitting for this great Maize and Blue eleven to reach Pasadena.

It was Michigan, back in 1901, which drew the first invite from a west coast team to play an intersectional game. Leland Stanford, Jr. (Stanford) did the inviting and Michigan, the first of the juggernauts assembled by the late Fielding H. (Hurry-Up) Yost, went west to make a shambles of a good Stanford team.

Michigan, sporting a marvelous record of 10 wins and no defeats and a point total of 501 against 0 for its opponents, scored 17 points in the first half (in those days the rules called for two 35-minute halves) and then came back with 32 more in the shortened second half to win, 49-0, a smashing climax to a smashing season.

With the great Willie Heston sparking the club the mighty Michigans of 1901 won most of their games by lopsided scores, such as 128-0 over Buffalo, 89-0 over Beloit, 50-0 over Iowa and 33-0 over Indiana.

From that 1902 game the present-day Rose Bowl game deevloped. The first real Rose Bowl game was played in 1916 and since that time only Ohio State, in 1921, and Illinois, last Jan. 1, have given the Western Conference representation. For many years, of course, the Conference turned thumbs down on the post-season classics.

THE Michigan-Illinois clash Nov. 1 is the 33rd between the teams. Michigan has had all the best of it, winning 22 and losing 10 with no ties spotting the rivalry.

Crisler has had topheavy success in his games with the Illini, too. In nine meetings, Crisler-coached Michigan teams have won seven. His 1939 club lost, 16-7, and last year the Wolves were beaten, 13-9.

Michigan and Illinois have been strong forces in the Conference race through the years. Michigan has won or shared 14 loop crowns and Illinois has won or shared nine.

The game pits two powerful, veteran squads against each other.

It should be a high-scoring tilt, with the Wolves on the long end.

In the first stanza, Tribut screod on a 20 yard run, and a pass, Nixon to Cage tallied the extra point. Nixon ran 37 yards to pay dirt, and a pass, Cage to Wagely, added the one pointer to make the score 14-0.

In the third, an aerial, Nixon to Cage, was good for a touchdown, and Nixon plunged for the E. P. Another toss later in the quarter scored, Goss to Cage, with Glenn plunging the point. The other T. D. in the third was made when Haslin the third on an Allegany punt fumble in back of the goal line. The final six pointer came when Abe ran over from the seven after Leasure set the stage with an intercepted pass. A pass, Goss to Thuss, converted the point.

British Ryder Cup Aspirants Start Practice In Portland

Larger U. S. Ball Proves No Handicap

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 27 (INS)—Hungrier for victory than luncheon, the British Ryder Cup team reached Portland today for the "World Series of Golf" and began practice almost at once.

Less than two hours after their arrival in the city, the 10 British aces hied to the Portland Golf Links, where they will meet the 10 highest-ranking American pros Saturday and Sunday.

In doing so the visitors begged off a luncheon to which Mayor R. E. Riley and 300 guests had been invited.

It was all because the Union Pacific Streamliner City Of Portland was almost four hours late, explained Robert A. Hudson, Portland wholesale grocer and sponsor of the match. He accompanied the invaders from New York to Portland.

By the time they began touring the rolling, tree-studded links, a drizzle had begun to fall, a possible omen of weather to come.

The players oozed confidence that they will win the cup this year to score Britain's first victory on American soil in the history of the cup. American teams have won four times and British twice. The match was dormant for a decade after 1937.

The professionals were met at the railroad station by newsmen, photographers, radio broadcasters and civic leaders who gave the key of the city to Team Captain Henry Cotton. Then they were whisked off behind a police motorcycle escort to the best hotel in town, where five of the seven parlor suites in the building were waiting for them.

Asked whether he expected his team to win, Cotton told newsmen: "That's what we've come for."

An echo of Cotton's assurance was voiced by Fred Daly, the Northern Irishman who holds the British Open Title. He declared:

"Sure we'll win. We're not here to lose."

The bigger American ball?

"No trouble at all," declared Cotton. "When we practice with the American ball our scores were about the same as they were with the British ball."

Other members of the team are Dai Rees, Jim Adams, Sam King, Art Lees, Charley Ward, Max Faulkner, Eric Green and Reggie Horne.

Admiral Ingram Starts Campaign For Playoff Tilt

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (AP)—Adm. Jonas Ingram (USN Ret.), Commissioner of the All-America Football Conference, forthrightly declared today:

"I'm going to needle the hell out of the National League until we get the recognition due us and they agree to meet us in a playoff."

Referring to the older NFL's refusal to meet in a post-season game for the national pro grid title, the salty admiral, who recently offered to send the All-America's second best team against the NFL's champion, blustered:

"Why, we have four teams in this league better than anything they have."

Using major league baseball as an example, Adm. Ingram pointed out that the National and American Leagues at first were considered strange bedfellows.

"Now, I don't want to sleep with the National Football League," the admiral told a gathering of Southern California football writers, "but I do want to get along."

He predicted that public demand eventually would force a playoff between the two rival pro loops.

"The people want, and have a right to know, which is the real pro champion," the commissioner said. "I'm going to fight for this thing right down the line."

Seating Problem Faces Maryland U. Officials

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 27 (AP) — With some 20,000 alumni expected on the campus for the University of Maryland Homecoming Saturday, th ebig problem facing athletic officials today was how to accomodate those planning to attend the Terrapin-West Virginia football game.

Extra seats are being placed wherever practical in Byrd Stadium, but the athletic department says some "old grads" likely will be disappointed. About 16,000 witnessed the Maryland-Delaware tilt October 3, but many stood or were jammed in aisles.

Maryland and West Virginia have lost a game each, ad a close battle is predicted Saturday.

Grading has been done and sounding is underway on the slide of the new stadium, which is planned for completion next fall. This will accommodate about 35,000, with provisions to expand its size if necessary.

Soccer Playoff Tilt Slated For Barton

The playoff game between Central Hig hof Lonaconing and Bruce High School of Westernport to determine the Class C soccer winner in Allegany County will be staged at Barton on Wednesday, November 5, at 3:30 p. m.

In the event the game is tied at the end of the regulation four period game, after a five minute rest, two extra five minutes will be played. If the score is still knotted at the end of these two extra stanzas, there will be another five minute rest followed by two additional five minute periods.

If at the end of this play, the score is still tied, the team having had the greatest number of corner kicks will be declared the winner.

The details of the playoff were arranged at a meeting at Westernport yesterday. Those present were Lewyn Davis, principal, and Johnny Meyers, coach of Central; John W. Fisher, principal, and John E. "Chip" Grindle, coach, of Bruce High, and Arthur G. Ramey, district chairman of the state school athletic association, who presided.

Seating Problem Faces Maryland U. Officials

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 27 (AP) — With some 20,000 alumni expected on the campus for the University of Maryland Homecoming Saturday, th ebig problem facing athletic officials today was how to accomodate those planning to attend the Terrapin-West Virginia football game.

Extra seats are being placed wherever practical in Byrd Stadium, but the athletic department says some "old grads" likely will be disappointed. About 16,000 witnessed the Maryland-Delaware tilt October 3, but many stood or were jammed in aisles.

Maryland and West Virginia have lost a game each, ad a close battle is predicted Saturday.

Grading has been done and sounding is underway on the slide of the new stadium, which is planned for completion next fall. This will accommodate about 35,000, with provisions to expand its size if necessary.

UNUSUAL JOB — Long and faithful service with the Cleveland Indians has brought Mel Harder, veteran pitcher, an unusual baseball job for next season. Mel, who will mark his 20th year with the Tribe next spring has been named pitching coach-at-large by President Bill Veeck. Mel's job will be to help the pitchers, on the Indians and on the Tribe's minor league farms. It is believed Mel will get the same pay he received as a twirler, $14,000, unusually high for a coach.

The United States uses about half the timber harvested in the world.

Remains Of Cpl. John Hitchins Arrives In States On Transport

Lifelong Friend Recalls His Death

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG — The body of Corporal John Hitchins, Midlothian, was one of eight bodies of Allegany County area war dead of World War II to arrive in New York Sunday aboard the United States transport Joseph V. Connolly. His body is expected here within 10 days and will be buried in Allegany Cemetery with military honors by the combined honor guard of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, and John R. Fairgrieve Post No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Hitchins, according to Royal C. Skidmore who served in the same outfit, was killed instantly February 3, 1944 when he stepped on an anti-tank mine. Both Hitchins and Skidmore were attached to Company F, Second Battalion, Ninth Infantry Regiment, Second Division.

Their outfit was dispatched to Schoenhoffen, a small German town 11 miles from Aachen with orders to take the town and all German troops occupying the area.

According to Skidmore, who was a staff sergeant, he and part of his outfit were crossing the middle of the town square when he saw Cpl. Hitchins and another American soldier coming out of a house with two German prisoners.

After being relieved of the prisoners, Skidmore and Hitchins, both boyhood friends, had a brief chat and shook hands before Hitchins left on an assignment to resume the search for German prisoners.

Within a few minutes after starting the search, the soldiers in the public square heard a loud report from a side street. Rushing in the direction from which the sound came they found Hitchins dead from the explosion of an anti-tank mine secreted in the middle of the street.

Skidmore stated today that he identified the body and to make sure examined the dog tag around the neck of the dead soldier. He laid he placed a rain coat over the body before being ordered to march on with his company. The body, Skidmore stated, was removed to Belgium for burial until it could be returned home. Hitchins enlisted in the army in August, 1941, and had been in the same outfit with Sgt. Skidmore only three days when he met his death.

Warm Bedding for Frosty Nights

PRETTY BUT WARM IS THIS COMFORTER . . . Designed by Alex Barclay.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Now that Ol' Man winter is getting set to form icicles on bedposts, it is time to check your bed covers to make sure you will be able to keep warm on those icy nights.

Perhaps the coziest and most luxurious bed covering that can be enjoyed is a downy satin comforter. Light in weight, a comforter can be a joy when the temperature drops, because of the goose or duck down insulation that provides warmth without weight.

Let's hope you stored your comforter in an air-tight compartment or a tar-paper lined cedarchest last summer. A good down comforter is a wise investment and with proper use and care can render years of service to all the family.

Through habit, people have followed the practice of placing comforters over blankets, instead of putting them directly on top of sheets, to enable them to give the most warmth. Their prime value is their usefulness in settling snugly over the body, insuring warmth the night long. Usually, when the comforter is near the body a blanket is not necessary.

Superior comforter fillings are are goose-down and duck-down. Virgin woll filling is good, then white wool batting and the processed wools and cottons.

When used regularly, comforters should be aired every other week in the shade. A down-filled comforter should be fluffed up as often as possible as it will need room to "breathe" to generate maximum heat.

Comforters should be brushed often with a soft brush with special attention given to creases where quilting appears in the pattern.

A reliable dry-cleaning establishment has at its command machines to blow fresh air through the comforter-filling, and will know how to renew its softness and resiliency. Comforters should be dry-cleaned at least once a year, preferably just before you store them away.

Make sure that the cleaner does not attach his cleaning tag in such a way as to cause small holes in the corner of your comforter. If this happens your only solution is to make a small patch of silk the size of a half-dollar or in the shape of a heart and sew it over the torn spot.

A pretty comforter is always a delightful and welcome wedding present and there are many attractive ones available in a price range to suit the pocketbook of every American housewife.

Remains Of Cpl. John Hitchins Arrives In States On Transport

Lifelong Friend Recalls His Death

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG — The body of Corporal John Hitchins, Midlothian, was one of eight bodies of Allegany County area war dead of World War II to arrive in New York Sunday aboard the United States transport Joseph V. Connolly. His body is expected here within 10 days and will be buried in Allegany Cemetery with military honors by the combined honor guard of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, and John R. Fairgrieve Post No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Hitchins, according to Royal C. Skidmore who served in the same outfit, was killed instantly February 3, 1944 when he stepped on an anti-tank mine. Both Hitchins and Skidmore were attached to Company F, Second Battalion, Ninth Infantry Regiment, Second Division.

Their outfit was dispatched to Schoenhoffen, a small German town 11 miles from Aachen with orders to take the town and all German troops occupying the area.

According to Skidmore, who was a staff sergeant, he and part of his outfit were crossing the middle of the town square when he saw Cpl. Hitchins and another American soldier coming out of a house with two German prisoners.

After being relieved of the prisoners, Skidmore and Hitchins, both boyhood friends, had a brief chat and shook hands before Hitchins left on an assignment to resume the search for German prisoners.

Within a few minutes after starting the search, the soldiers in the public square heard a loud report from a side street. Rushing in the direction from which the sound came they found Hitchins dead from the explosion of an anti-tank mine secreted in the middle of the street.

Skidmore stated today that he identified the body and to make sure examined the dog tag around the neck of the dead soldier. He laid he placed a rain coat over the body before being ordered to march on with his company. The body, Skidmore stated, was removed to Belgium for burial until it could be returned home. Hitchins enlisted in the army in August, 1941, and had been in the same outfit with Sgt. Skidmore only three days when he met his death.

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Now that Ol' Man winter is getting set to form icicles on bedposts, it is time to check your bed covers to make sure you will be able to keep warm on those icy nights.

Perhaps the coziest and most luxurious bed covering that can be enjoyed is a downy satin comforter. Light in weight, a comforter can be a joy when the temperature drops, because of the goose or duck down insulation that provides warmth without weight.

Let's hope you stored your comforter in an air-tight compartment or a tar-paper lined cedarchest last summer. A good down comforter is a wise investment and with proper use and care can render years of service to all the family.

Through habit, people have followed the practice of placing comforters over blankets, instead of putting them directly on top of sheets, to enable them to give the most warmth. Their prime value is their usefulness in settling snugly over the body, insuring warmth the night long. Usually, when the comforter is near the body a blanket is not necessary.

Superior comforter fillings are are goose-down and duck-down. Virgin wool filling is good, then white wool batting and the processed wools and cottons.

When used regularly, comforters should be aired every other week in the shade. A down-filled comforter should be fluffed up as often as possible as it will need room to "breathe" to generate maximum heat.

Comforters should be brushed often with a soft brush with special attention given to creases where quilting appears in the pattern.

A reliable dry-cleaning establishment has at its command machines to blow fresh air through the comforter-filling, and will know how to renew its softness and resiliency. Comforters should be dry-cleaned at least once a year, preferably just before you store them away.

Make sure that the cleaner does not attach his cleaning tag in such a way as to cause small holes in the corner of your comforter. If this happens your only solution is to make a small patch of silk the size of a half-dollar or in the shape of a heart and sew it over the torn spot.

A pretty comforter is always a delightful and welcome wedding present and there are many attractive ones available in a price range to suit the pocketbook of every American housewife.

Three long years have passed, dear brother,
Since that sad word came to our home,

As we pray to God—Our prayer,
To keep you safe forever,
Until we join you over there.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Frank W. Casteel, killed in action in France October 26th, 1944.

Three long years have passed, dear brother,
Since that sad word came to our home,
Telling you were killed in action,
Fighting for your loved ones and home,
Often now we cry in silence,
As we pray to God—Our prayer,
To keep you safe forever,
Until we join you over there.

Sadly missed by his sister,
MRS. H. W. CAMPBELL.

In memory of Jane Ann Green, who died 1 year ago today, October 28, 1946.

I have lost my soul companion,
A life linked with my own.
And day by day, I miss her more,
As I walk through life alone.

Sadly missed by her husband, JOHN J. GREEN and WALTER RUSSELL.

CARD OF THANKS

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of our wife and mother, Mrs. Ida Swann, Piedmont, W. Va. We especially wish to thank those who sent floral offerings and donated their automobiles for the funeral, and all those who extended their sympathy.
THOMAS P. SWANN, SONS, and DAUGHTERS.

The family of the late Orville Garlitz wishes to thank their friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy and for their beautiful floral offerings tendered during the sickness and following the death of our beloved husband and son.
Wife, MRS. MILDRED GARLITZ, MOTHER & FAMILY.

Experts Save Fish Life By Killing Fish

AP Newsfeatures

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—About the last place you'd expect to find great glass tanks of live fish would be a textile research laboratory.

But, they are here in the biological laboratories of the Institute of Textile Technology.

Waste chemicals from textile plants sometimes pollute streams and the industry is seeking to remove any harmful matter from the overflow of mills.

There are some 1,200 textile mills in the country. Few could carry on such a research project alone, but through the institute, established to serve the whole industry, they can.

So a visitor finds researchers pouring over big glass tanks of fish. Tests are made of the effect of the waste chemicals on the fish.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Young People Often Make Large Mountain Out Of Molehill

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a boy for seven moths and he recently enlisted in the Army. On his first leave he came up to my house every day, but, five days before he had to go away again, he took my girl friend to the movies. I felt pretty badly, as he and I had been going steady.

When I mentioned it to him, he told me I had no reason to be jealous as it was me he loved, and that it wouldn't happen again and asked me to forgive him. He seemed so sincere that I told him I would forget the matter.

Now he is gone and I am wondering if I did the right thing. I have received affectionate letters from him but don't know whether to answer them or not. Should I go on believing him, or should I correspond with him, or should I give him up?

"ANXIOUS."

Dear "Anxious":

Don't you think you are making a large mountain out of a little molehill? It seems foolish to me for young people to try to tie each other down so securely that they are unwilling for each other to have occasional good times with other girls and boys.

If you don't know yet, you would be wise to learn as soon as possible that one of the best ways to hold a man is o let him feel that he is free to go if he wishes to do so. The more possessive women are toward men, the more likely they are to lose them. You will make a great mistake if you continue to brood over this trifling incident and if you break off with wour friend because of it. You are likely to be the only one who will be really hurt.

Morton Downey To Return To Mutual; Crosby With Hope

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Oct 27 — Morton Downey gets back on the air Tuesday night. His new series will return him to MBS, where he formerly had a noon-time song show.

In contrast, the new one is coming late at night, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. The time is 11:15. His sponsor will be the same one he had before. There is to be a 12 mid. repeat.

Next in the list of documentary broadcasts by the CBS network in the hour at 9:30 is to be one dealing with the problems of age under the title of "Fear Begins At 40." It is occupying the time usually devoted to the Studio One drama.

In view of the fact that Bob has appeared on his own ABC recorded show, Bing Crosby is to turn "live" again Tuesday night and make a guest appearance with the NBC Hope at 10.

Walter Hampden is to guest act for the CBS Is There series at 10:30 when the story will deal with the death of Socrates, Greek Philosopher.

Forum times on Tuesday will bring America's Town meeting to ABC at 8:30 in a discussion of the question "What should be done about Palestine now?" and the American Forum for MBS at 10 in a debate on "What can we do to better relations with Russia?"

The Boston symphony hour, ABC beginning at 9:30, is to have as its principal number Silebius' "Symphony No. 5."

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

And Here Is Fred Allen With the News

This is probably heresy, but nevertheless I'd like to suggest that Fred Allen change the format of his program. Allen, who possesses the most nimble mind in radio, possibly the only one, has become imprisoned by Allen's Alley. The Alley, it must be admitted, is a wonderfully elastic formula; in no other alley could you find the farmyard smells and backwoods wisdom of Titus Moody, the lower East Side shrewdness of Pansy Nussbaum, the Southern pretensions of Senator Claghorn and the Irish chauvinism of Ajax Cassidy. Yet, over the years, the charm of the Alley has perceptibly dimmed and the original plan of testing a single idea against a cross-section of the country has been almost lost.

Fred Allen

Claghorn wore thin the first year. The Irishman never really got started. Mrs. Nussbaum is a little different; she has acquired a sort of worms-eye view of metropolitan life, a downtrodden but sprightly wisdom which could be preserved. Titus Moody, of course, is in a class by himself. He is a genuine American comic character—not a tintype like Claghorn or Cassidy; his grotesque misfortunes (He can't sleep because he's got short eyelids could go on forever. About Mrs. Nussbaum I'm not so sure, but I'm all for keeping Mr. Moody.

Nevertheless, I think the Alley could be dispensed with, opening up the first part of the show to something quite new. I'd like to see Allen devote that first fifteen minutes to comment in his acid style on American life, comment that would avoid all but the more comic aspects of politics or world problems, and yet would reach somewhat deeper than two-line gags about high prices and the ladies' new hemline. At its best, it would be a comment on those things which lie under our noses and which we would never notice until some one called our attention to them.

The new inventions, the newer expressions (How distinguished can you get?), the nation's songs, and now and then, dipping into the fringes of more important things, the ideas which grip the country like suddenly illuminated truths and then are quickly forgotten. (Whatever became of "the more abundant life," by the way?)

In a sense, Allen has been doing just this for years but he has been wrapping it up in two-line gags. The object has been belly laughs from the studio audience, which automatically limits the range pretty severely. (The two-line joke is going to ruin us eventually for everything except the comic strips.) The sort of comment I had in mind would not be aimed at the belly laughs (although it would probably get some); it would be an extended discussion aimed at giving Allen more scope than he has.

Today the air is full of commentators, all quite justifiably preoccupied with the more serious aspects of world problems. There isn't any one looking into the minutiae of human many respects are just as important as the doings of Congress. Since the serious commentators get listeners and a lot of listeners, there is every reason to suppose that a witty commentator would get even more of them.

Allen is the only man in or out of radio who could manage it. He is more widely read and considerably more profound than most of the commentators now pontificating on the air; his wit never really has a chance to get started on the self-imposed limits of his present format; he is so thoroughly established in radio that he could get away with almost anything.

I haven't the faintest hope that this suggestion will be adopted or even considered. I just thought I'd get it off my chest.

Steels, Buoyed By Rising Production, Lead Selective Recovery In Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Steels, buoyed by rising production and demand, led a selective recovery shift in today's stock market although dealings were the slowest of the past three weeks and many leaders finished in the minus ranks.

Irregularly lower tendencies persisted from the start. The steel group revived after midday but most other departments failed to participate.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .1 of a point due to the presence of a few wide gainers in the index. Actually, of 983 issues registering, narrowest since October 9, there were 420 declines against 310 advances.

Bethlehem Steel added 3⅝ points at 95¾, United States Steel 1⅜ at 76¼, Youngstown Sheet 1¼ at 80¼, Allied Chemical 2¼ at 192, National Cash Register one at 41 (on a pleasing profits compilation), Pond Creek Coal 1½ at 35 and Goodyear one at 47¾. Ahead were American Telephone, Great Northern Railway, Montgomery Ward, Emerson Electric and Schenley.

Union Pacific yielded four points at 145 and Phillips Petroleum 1½ at 58½. Lesser recessions were shown for Crucible Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Graham-Paige, Studebaker, United States Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Oliver Corporation, Douglas Aircraft, Eversharp, J. C. Penney, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Kennecott, Union Carbide and American Smelting.

Bonds finished with an irregular pattern today in the slowest full session in more than a month.

Total sales of $3,150,000 compared with $4,670,000 last Friday and were the lightest for a five-hour market since September 24.

Central Railroad of New Jersey obligations had to contend with a United States Supreme Court refusal to review an Appeals Court's decision upholding the power of the New Jersey State Chancery Court to decide validity of $20,000,000 of back tax claims. The 5s lost an early advance, then recovered to close up one-fourth at 35⅝, while the 4s were ahead a point at 30½.

Other corporates higher included Pacific Gas and Electric 3s of '71, Lorillard 3s, Western Union 4½s, Manati Sugar 4s, Lehigh Valley stamped 5s and New York Central 4½s.

Longer-term United States governments were easier in over-the-counter dealings. The Victory 2½s of December 1967-72 closed off 7-32 at 101 23-32, while declines elsewhere ranged to 8-32 for the 2½s of 1965-70, the 2¾s of 1960-65 and the 2½s of December 1959-62.

Advice To The Lovelorn

By BEATRICK FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a boy for seven moths and he recently enlisted in the Army. On his first leave he came up to my house every day, but, five days before he had to go away again, he took my girl friend to the movies. I felt pretty badly, as he and I had been going steady.

When I mentioned it to him, he told me I had no reason to be jealous as it was me he loved, and that it wouldn't happen again and asked me to forgive him. He seemed so sincere that I told him I would forget the matter.

Now he is gone and I am wondering if I did the right thing. I have received affectionate letters from him but don't know whether to answer them or not. Should I go on believing him, or should I correspond with him, or should I give him up?

"ANXIOUS."

Dear "Anxious":

Don't you think you are making a large mountain out of a little molehill? It seems foolish to me for young people to try to tie each other down so securely that they are unwilling for each other to have occasional good times with other girls and boys.

If you don't know yet, you would be wise to learn as soon as possible that one of the best ways to hold a man is to let him feel that he is free to go if he wishes to do so. The more possessive women are toward men, the more likely they are to lose them. You will make a great mistake if you continue to brood over this trifling incident and if you break off with your friend because of it. You are likely to be the only one who will be really hurt.

Morton Downey To Return To Mutual; Crosby With Hope

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Oct 27 — Morton Downey gets back on the air Tuesday night. His new series will return him to MBS, where he formerly had a noon-time song show.

In contrast, the new one is coming late at night, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. The time is 11:15. His sponsor will be the same one he had before. There is to be a 12 mid. repeat.

Next in the list of documentary broadcasts by the CBS network in the hour at 9:30 is to be one dealing with the problems of age under the title of "Pear Begins At 40." It is occupying the hour usually devoted to the Studio One drama.

In view of the fact that Bob has appeared on his own ABC recorded show, Bing Crosby is to turn "live" again Tuesday night and make a gues. appearance with the NBC Hope at 10.

Walter Hampden is to guest act for the CBS Is There series at 10:30 when the story will deal with the death of Socrates, Greek Philosopher.

Forum times on Tuesday will bring America's Town meeting on ABC at 8:30 in a discussion of the question "What should be done about Palestine now?" and the American Forum for MBS at 10 in a debate on "What can we do to better relations with Russia?"

The Boston symphony hour, ABC beginning at 9:30, is to have as its principal number Sibelius' "Symphony No. 5."

RADIO IN REVIEW

And Here Is Fred Allen With the News

Fred Allen

This is probably heresy, but nevertheless I'd like to suggest that Fred Allen change the format of his program. Allen, who possesses the most nimble mind in radio, possibly the only one, has become imprisoned by Allen's Alley. The Alley, it must be admitted, is a wonderfully elastic formula; in no other alley could you find the farmyard smells and backwoods wisdom of Titus Moody, the lower East Side shrewdness of Pansy Nussbaum, the Southern pretensions of Senator Claghorn and the Irish chauvinism of Ajax Cassidy. Yet, over the years, the charm of the Alley has perceptibly dimmed and the original plan of testing a single idea against a cross-section of the country has been almost lost.

Claghorn wore thin the first year. The Irishman never really got started. Mrs. Nussbaum is a little different; she has acquired a sort of worms-eye view of metropolitan life, a downtrodden but sprightly wisdom which could be preserved. Titus Moody, of course, is in a class by himself. He is a genuine American comic character—not a tintype like Claghorn or Cassidy; his grotesque misfortunes (He can't sleep because he's got short eyelids) could go on forever. About Mrs. Nussbaum I'm not so sure, but I'm all for keeping Mr. Moody.

Nevertheless, I think the Alley could be dispensed with, opening up the first part of the show to something quite new. I'd like to see Allen devote that first fifteen minutes to comment in his acid style on American life, comment that would avoid all but the more comic aspects of politics or world problems, and yet would reach somewhat deeper than two-line gags about high prices and the ladies' new hemline. At its best, it would be a commentary on those things which lie under our noses and which we would never notice until some one called our attention to them.

The new inventions, the newer expressions (How distinguished can you get?), the nation's songs, and now and then, dipping into the fringes of more important things, the ideas which grip the country like suddenly illuminated truths and then are quickly forgotten. (What ever became of "the more abundant life," by the way?)

In a sense, Allen has been doing just this for years but he has been wrapping it up in two-line gags. The object has been belly laughs from the studio audience, which automatically limits the range pretty severely. (The two-line joke is going to ruin us eventually for everything except the comic strips.) The sort of comment I had in mind would not be aimed at the belly laughs (although it would probably get some); it would be an extended discussion aimed at giving Allen more scope than he has.

Today the air is full of commentators, all quite justifiably preoccupied with the more serious aspects of world problems. There isn't any one looking into the minutiae which in many respects are just as important as the doings of Congress. Since the serious commentators get listeners and a lot of listeners, there is every reason to suppose that a witty commentator would get even more of them.

Allen is the only man in or out of radio who could manage it. He is more widely read and considerably more profound than most of the commentators now pontificating on the air; his wit never really has a chance to get started on the self-imposed limits of his present format; he is so thoroughly established in radio that he could get away with almost anything.

I haven't the faintest hope that this suggestion will be adopted or even considered. I just thought I'd get it off my chest.

Steels, Buoyed By Rising Production, Lead Selective Recovery In Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Steels, buoyed by rising production and demand, led a selective recovery shift in today's stock market although dealings were the slowest of the past three weeks and many leaders finished in the minus ranks.

Irregularly lower tendencies persisted from the start. The steel group revived after midday but most other departments failed to participate.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .1 of a point due to the presence of a few wide gainers in the index. Actually, of 983 issues registering, narrowest since October 9, there were 420 declines against 310 advances.

Bethlehem Steel added 3¾ points at 95¾, United States Steel 1⅜ at 76¼, Youngstown Sheet 1¼ at 80¼, Allied Chemical 2⅜ at 192, National Cash Register one at 41 (on a pleasing profits compilation), Pond Creek Coal 1½ at 35 and Goodyear one at 47¾. Ahead were American Telephone, Great Northern Railway, Montgomery Ward, Emerson Electric and Schenley.

Union Pacific yielded four points at 145 and Phillips Petroleum 1½ at 58½. Lesser recessions were shown for Crucible Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Graham-Paige, Studebaker, United States Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Oliver Corporation, Douglas Aircraft, Eversharp, J. C. Penney, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Kennecott, Union Carbide and American Smelting.

Bonds finished with an irregular pattern today in the slowest full session in more than a month.

Total sales of $3,150,000 compared with $4,670,000 last Friday and were the lightest for a five-hour market since September 24.

Central Railroad of New Jersey obligations had to contend with a United States Supreme Court refusal to review an Appeals Court's decision upholding the power of the New Jersey State Chancery Court to decide validity of $20,000,000 of back tax claims. The 5s lost an early advance, then recovered to close up one-fourth at 85⅝, while the 4s were ahead a point at 30½.

Other corporates higher included Pacific Gas and Electric 3s of '71, Lorillard 3s, Western Union 4½s, Manati Sugar 4s, Lehigh Valley stamped 5s and New York Central 4½s.

Longer-term United States governments were easier in over-the-counter dealings. The Victory 2½s of December 1967-72 closed off 7-32 at 101 23-32, while declines elsewhere ranged to 8-32 for the 2½s of 1965-70, the 2¾s of 1960-65 and the 2¼s of December 1959-62.

Student Ban From Pool Rooms, Theaters Asked

Decrease In School Absenteeism Sought

The managers of pool rooms, bowling alleys and theaters, yesterday were asked by the Allegany County Board of Education to keep children out of their establishments during class hours and thus aid in combatting unnecessary and illegal absenteeism.

Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of pupil personnel, who directed a letter to the amusement hall managers, said he has also held conferences with several police department chiefs in Allegany County in an effort to curb the illegal absenteeism from schools.

Approximately 60 per cent of all absenteeism in Allegany county schools results from unnecessary and illegal causes, Ramey asserted, adding that neglect and indifference on the part of parents and children as well as illegal employment contribute to the factor.

Cooperation Is Sought

In the letter directed to pool room and bowling alley managers, Ramel, stated:

"A number of boys have the practice of absenting themselves from school, spending the time when they should be in school in some of your establishments, either loitering or in some cases actually being employed as pin setters. This is contrary to law and also harmful to the boys, the bowling alleys and the educational system.

"What we specifically ask you to join us in doing is to see that no boy or girl, who is enrolled in school, spends any time during any school day, during the hours while school is in session, in any of your business places."

Theater managers were specifically requested to assist in "a program that will deny to any child of school age the privilege of purchasing a ticket for admission to any theater during the time that the schools are in session."

Board of Education officials pointed out that there is a direct relationship between attendance and academic success in school. Poor attendance, they declared, invariably brings about poor grades and resulting failure.

One school official declared that studies have revealed that outright truancy is frequently the forerunner of more serious youth delinquencies.

Will Check Establishments

Ramey said that many times this year personnel of the Board of Education Pupil Personnel Department have observed both boys and girls of high school and elementary school ages attending motion pictures during school hours or loitering about pool halls and bowling alleys.

Proprietors and managers of these various places are directly responsible to see that children do not hang around their establishment's during school hours, Ramey declared, adding "telling children to leave is not enough, they must be ejected."

School officials said that in permitting children of school age to loiter about pool halls, bowling alleys and attend matinees of motion pictures, managers are violating juvenile laws, and as a result may be arrested on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Ramey said checks of the amusement places in Allegany County will be from time to time as a follow up to the letter of request, and also told managers that the school board would be pleased to discuss the matter with them either individually or collectively.

Aged Man And Son Found Ill At Home

An aged Cumberland man and his son were found ill in their home on Grandview Terrace late yesterday after neighbors reported they had not seen the two men for about a week.

The Health Department investigated and notified State Police who removed Charles DeHaven, 77, and his son, Warren, 48, to Memorial Hospital last night about 9 o'clock.

Hospital attaches said the son had been ill for several weeks and that his father, who fell about a week ago, had been taking care of him.

The son, who complained of pain around his heart, said he had not eaten for several days. His condition was described as fair.

The father, complaining of a pain in his chest, a lump on the neck and an abrasion of the right leg, suffered in the fall, said he had had a "little bit" to eat. His condition was said to be good.

Temperature Reading

The temperature rose to a maximum of 82 degrees here yesterday from an overnight low of 45. Last night at 9:30 it had dropped to 62. Increasing cloudiness and scattered showers are forecast for today, lending possibility to the hope for rain to alleviate the extended dry "spell."

FIRE FIGHTER— Russell Mertens, Bedford Road volunteer fireman, is shown helping fight a blaze yesterday afternoon in the Pea Vine Run area which burned over 10 acres of the county's woodlands. Eleven fires were reported in this area yesterday, resulting in calls for 200 men and a dozen volunteer fire companies. Several of the fires, including the one shown here are believed by authorities to have been started deliberately. Late last night, all fires in this area were reported under control but still patrolled. Forestry officials have made repeated pleas to the public to exercise extra caution and to burn no brush because of the dry condition of woodlands and long drought.

Man Arrested Near Bloomington Admits Setting House On Fire

Accepts Blame For Three Other Blazes

Garrett County authorities said last night that a man arrested by State Police yesterday morning near Bloomington has admitted that he set four fires in the Bloomington area, including one that destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Duckworth yesterday.

The man, identified as Lawrence Elliott, 57, is held in the Garrett County Jail at Oakland and authorities said no charges have been filed against him yet nor a date set for a hearing.

Elliott, officials said, is the same man who, on October 1, attempted suicide by slashing his left wrist with a razor while he was held in the Mineral County, W. Va., jail at Keyser, for questioning by the West Virginia parole officer.

Mrs. Ervin Reel, wife of the Mineral County jailer, said Elliott, who served two years in Moundsville, W. Va., on a burglary charge, formerly lived in Elk Garden, W. Va., district.

Cpl. Thomas Currie, of the Maryland State Police, arrested Elliott yesterday morning on the B. and O. Railroad tracks near Bloomington, and Bloomington residents said his arrest came after he was recognized by a neighbor who saw him go to the Duckworth home a short time before it started to burn.

Garrett County authorities said Elliott admitted setting fire to the two-room frame house, located at the Charles Pattison mine on Backbone Mountain, about two miles from Bloomington, and also setting fire to a haystack on the Pattison farm about a quarter of a mile away as well as starting two small forest fires.

Duckworth, who recently completed building the house, was at work at the mine when the fire broke out, and Mrs. Duckworth and their daughter, 3, had left the home to go to a nearby spring, neighbors said. When they returned the house was in flames and miners prevented Mrs. Duckworth from entering the blazing building to obtain some of their belongings.

The family, according to Mrs. Charles Pattison, wife of the Bloomington fire chief, lost all of their belongings except the clothes they were wearing.

Bloomington firemen, who were called first to the haystack blaze, were summoned quickly to the house fire, but the house was beyond saving when they arrived. No water was available except that carried in the Bloomington fire engine tank.

Mrs. Pattison said the fire apparently started in the kitchen of the nicely furnished cottage about 10 a. m.

At Keyser, Mrs. Reel said Elliott, who was sentenced to Moundsville early in 1945, was picked up last September 14 by Sheriff James A. Dixon ona charge of violating his parole.

The parole officer did not recommend that he be imprisoned again, Mrs. Reel said, but Elliott continued to sleep and get his meals at the jail.

She said he left Friday morning and did not return, and Mrs. Pattison said Elliott had been observed in the vicinity of Bloomington over the weekend.

34 Are Examined At Rehabilitation Clinic Held Here

Five Point Service Program Is Offered

Thirty-two handicapped persons in Allegany and two in Garrett County are awaiting results of a diagnostic clinic held here last week, to determine the amount and type of service the Vocational Rehabilitation Division of Maryland can give them.

J. Leo Delaney, Allegany-Garrett Counties counselor, said the clinic, held in connection with the City Health Department and Maryland Unemployment Service, was for analysis of handicapped persons in the two counties that have been reported to the Rehabilitation Division.

The clinic will determine the type or types of service that will aid the handicapped persons, Delaney explained, adding that five distinct services, aimed at aiding the individual to become a self-supporting citizen, are offered.

The services according to Delaney, include:

1.—Medical treatment. 2.—Prosthetic appliances. 3.—Training in Schools or on the job. 4.—Selective placement. 5.—Councel and guidance.

As a result of the clinical examination which consisted of a personal interview, medical examination by a local physician and sychometric testing, the handicapped persons will be offered the services that rehabilitation counselors conclude are necessary to make them self-supporting citizens.

Once the results of the clinical examination are known, the counselor said, services will be offered those individuals who will benefit from them. Recent surveys, according to Delaney, have shown that of the 1,400 handicapped persons in Allegany County approximately 100 are receiving some service from the Rehabilitation Division.

Counselors seek to find permanent employment for handicapped persons in fields where their handicaps will not interfere with earning a livelihood, and in cases where medical attention is considered necessary to enable a person to become self sustaining, the Rehabilitation Division arranges for such treatment.

The over-all program of the state is aimed at assisting handicapped persons to become self sustaining and thus better citizens. The program is operated on the theory, counselors said, that it is better to spend approximately $300 to make a person self sufficient than it is to continually, year-after-year, give out grants through the charitable agencies.

Two Youths Questioned In Fracas At Inn

They added that no charges have been filed against the pair.

One of the youths, Richard Judy, 19, Cresaptown, was picked up early Sunday morning, and the other Ferman N. "Sol" Lease, Route 5, was arrested late Sunday night.

Harry Wahl, co-owner of the establishment, suffered a fractured skull in the fray, and Memorial Hospital attaches said last night his condition is "fairly good."

Rizer Acquitted Of Holding Up Railroad Worker

Jury Deliberates Only 20 Minutes

After deliberating only 20 minutes, a Mineral County Circuit Court jury returned a verdict yesterday afternoon acquitting James Lewis Rizer, Wiley Ford, W. Va., who was tried for the armed robbery of a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad brakeman May 14 near Wiley Ford.

George L. Beeman, Cumberland, the prosecuting witness, was the first to take the stand yesterday morning and testified under direct examination by Prosecuting Attorney Vernon Rankin of Mineral County, that Rizer was the man who held him up in a wooded section near Wiley Ford.

He stated further that he and Rizer had met in a tavern on Front Street in Cumberland on the day of the alleged robbery. Beeman said that he had a .38 calibre Colt revolver in his pocket at the time and showed it to Rizer.

Beeman added that he and Rizer left the tavern about 7:30 p. m. and boarded a bus for Wiley Ford to go to the home of the latter's father. The witness stated that Rizer held him up with the gun after asking to carry it, bound and gagged him and removed all contents from his pockets.

He enumerated the articles as being a watch and chain valued at $71 and a billfold containing $5. Beeman then said he removed the gags and called for help. After leaving the scene of the alleged attack he went to the Cumberland police station and reported. Beeman identified the gun, watch and chain yesterday.

After examination by Rankin, cross examination by Attorney's H. F. Shores and Howard P. Shores, counsel for the defendant was started.

During this questioning Beeman denied that he had ever been convicted of armed robbery in Maryland or any other state. He also denied that he was drunk at the time of the alleged robbery, Attorney H. G. Shores said.

When asked if he had not first pulled the gun on Rizer, Beeman voiced denial and also denied having pawned his watch and chain for $5 to Rizer.

Officer Joseph Stitcher of the Cumberland Police Force, testified that Rizer had $1.38 in cash, the gun and holster, the watch and chain and six undischarged cartridges on his person when arrested.

C. V. Barncord, constable at Ridgeley, and Thomas J. See, of the Cumberland Police Force, told the court that they found Beeman's pocketknife, wallet and other personal belongings at the scene of the incident.

Disarmed Beeman

Rizer in his own defense, testified that Beeman had borrowed $5 from him, putting up his watch and chain as collateral. He stated on the stand, Attorney Shores said, that it was Beeman who put the gun into his ribs and demanded the watch back when they arrived at Wiley Ford.

Rizer, who is an expert boxer, said he disarmed Beeman, took the gun and holster from him, and went to Cumberland where he was arrested after a short time.

Incendiarism Suspected In New Wave Of Fires

Arson Suspect Is Held In Mineral Forest Fire Probe

New Blaze Reported Spreading In Grant

Grant County, W. Va., foresters reported a new woodland blaze near Bayard spreading rapidly last night, as Mineral County officials announced the arrest of one suspect and investigation of others in connection with conflagrations that have devastated approximately 20 square miles of timber land in that area.

District Forest Protector J. B. Saville, Romney, declared that the three major blazes in Mineral County were under control late last night, but said 25 men from the Elkins, W. Va., section had been taken to Bayard to fight the blaze that broke out yesterday morning.

Mineral County officials identified a suspect as Edward Trelach, Dawson, Md., and said he was being held in Mineral County Jail, Keyser, "for further investigation in connection with several of the blazes that raged out of control from Monday until Saturday of last week.

Claude Rice, Mineral Conservation Officer, asserted "I know there are firebugs setting fires in this section, and there are several others who will bear me out." Rice confirmed the fact that one suspect was under arrest.

It was Rice who estimated that three major forest fires had ravaged approximately 20 square miles of timber land in Mineral County, but he refused to make an estimate of the damage. "The real harm will not become known until next spring," he declared.

Calling For Men

District Forester Saville said the blaze was out of control near Bayard, but declared he has had no report on its origin nor the extent of the area in which it was burning. "It's big though," he stated, "because they are calling for lots of men."

Another blaze reportedly broke out in Berkeley County yesterday morning, but was brought under control late in the afternoon, according to Saville. He said he had no knowledge of the damage in that area either.

In Mineral County foresters said all fires were "under control", but warned that the "wrong kind of wind," could stir the entire area into a burning inferno once more.

Rice classified the three major blaze areas as Gerstell-Short Gap area, New Creek Mountain-Antioch area and Hoover's Hollow area, all in the eastern section of Mineral County.

With Mineral County foresters still on vigilant watch, law enforcement authorities apparently were swinging into work in earnest to round up suspects in connection with the blazes, and one official said warrants had been issued for six men who refused to answer "the fight the fire" calls.

One Fire Fighter Hurt

"The official did not identify the six men, but added that several more warrants will be issued shortly. These men regardless of whether they were going to work or not deliberately refused to fight fires and protect property." Conservation Officer Rice declared.

During the week-long threat of the three front blaze in Mineral, Rice said foresters and volunteers fought continuously to save homes and barns that were endangered. One fire fighter suffered injuries and is under the care of a Keyser physician, Rice stated, but he could not recall his name.

Rice said his statement that "firebugs" are responsible for many of the blazes can be backed up by others, and explained that in his opinion if and when the arrests are made it will prove to be a series of mental cases.

"Not one fire was reported in the area, until after stories of Maine's blazes were reported," he declared, "then all of a sudden forest fires began sweeping over large areas in Mineral County."

Several of the small blazes which were checked before getting out of control appeared to have been started deliberately, Rice explained.

Over 300 Acres Swept Yesterday

Eleven forest fires in this county, two in Garrett, three in Washington, and four in Frederick counties, kept forestry personnel of the Western Maryland District busy last night, and volunteer fire companies in a score of communities were alerted with half of them helping battle the flames which swept over more than 300 acres.

Shortly before midnight, William Parr, district forester, said all the fires are under control but several are still burning. All blazes are beong patrolled, he declared, adding that about 300 men engaged yesterday in fighting the conflagrations.

Several of the fires were believed to be of incendiary origin, with one arrest made in Garrett county, at least one expected in this county and another anticipated in Frederick county.

The worst blaze yesterday, actually two separate fires, Parr said, occurred on Dans Mountain, in the Dans Rock section, where 100 men fought fire which burned over more than 150 acres. These were new blazes and were in a different area from the 50 acre fire which occurred on Dans Mountain late last week. Volunteers from Vale Summit, Midland, McCoole, Cresaptown and Lonaconing fought these two fires, and 50 men were still on duty late last night.

Crews Exhausted

Parr said, his forestry crews have been on the go almost constantly since last Wednesday, and are exhausted. Yesterday an appeal was made to the Maryland State Police who assisted, and also aided in deputizing a number of citnzens for fire control work.

Parr said his forestry supervisor for this county, Brookes Bodkin, has been on the job steadily since Wednesday and has not been in bed since that time. The forester declared, "I have just ordered him to go to a hotel and go to bed before midnight. He must have some rest."

A fire on Williams Road, caused by brush-burning, late yesterday afternoon, which swept over two acres was extinguished by the fire company from District 16 and volunteers. The fire, about two miles from the city line, endangered three dwellings. Last night a second fire started in the area nearer the city, and one local fire unit was dispatched to the scene with orders to stand by and protect property.

A fire believed of incendiary origin burned over 10 acres on Pea Vine Run Road yesterday afternoon, and brought out five volunteer companies and a number of other volunteers. Bowman's Addition, Corriganville, Cresaptown, LaVale, Flintstone, and Bedford Road units responded, and were still standing by at their stations late last night.

Bowman's Addition, Flintstone, Bedford Road, and District 16 companies responded to a call at 8 p. m. and extinguished a two-acre fire on the Twigtown Road at Millstone, just off Oldtown Road. Firemen said this fire and the Pea Vine Run Road fire "were deliberately set."

Residents of the Pea Vine Run area told of a car passing as the flames started, with four small blazes starting at almost regular intervals as the car passed. These fires soon merged into one larger blaze.

Blaze Near Dawson

Another 10-acre blaze occurred yesterday afternoon on Dans Moun-

Eagles To Induct Class Of Forty

A class of 40 candidates will be initiated tonight by Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, to bring the local lodge's membership past the 3,400 mark, according to C. William H. Baer, worthy president.

Baer said last night the class is named in honor of State President Howard G. Dressel, Baltimore. Baer, who is also a past state president, is serving his third term as president of the local Aerie. He served in 1933 and again in 1934.

The national Eagle organization, Baer explained, is celebrating its golden anniversary throughout the fiscal year, June 1, 1947 to May 31, 1948, and plans to conduct special classes of candidates each month during the year. Cumberland Aerie is six months ahead of their assigned quota for new members, Baer stated.

At tonight's initiation, the president plans to present a diamond Eagle lapel button to a member for bringing in the most new applications.

Herman L. Myers, publicity chairman, said it is important that all members attend these initiation meetings, and tonight's session will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

Greek Army Recalls Mrs. Diamond's Brother

Mrs. Richard Diamond, 508 Pearre Street, has received word that her brother, Nick Baker, who served as a lieutenant in the Greek Army during World War II, has been recalled to service.

In his letter, Baker said he was among the 10 classes (age groups) who were recalled.

He said he had been teaching in a school in Macedonia when the call came and that the Greek Government took his family back to their former home in Athens.

Small Audience Hears Vets Chorus

A small but appreciative audience, numbering about 445 persons, heard the American Male Chorus in a concert of sacred, classical and popular music last night at Fort Hill High School. The concert was presented under the auspices of Cumberland Lions Club, for the benefit of its Sight Conservation Fund.

C. A. Fisher, president of the Lions said "the concert was wonderful and those who attended will never forget it. Those who didn't hear it, can never possibly realize what they missed."

Lewis Bullock, organizer and director of the chorus got here just in time for the curtain raiser. He had been in New York on business over the weekend and took a plane yesterday to Washington. He missed a train from Washington to Cumberland, and when he found he could not get here in time for the 8 o'clock concert by train or bus, he took a taxi cab to the outskirts of the city, and hitch-hiked his way in by 7:55 p. m.

The chorus is composed of all veterans of World War II and was organized in the Philippines during the war. The current tour will take the singers to 90 American cities.

North End Halloween Celebration Will Be Featured By Big Parade

Donald Paulman will be grand marshal of the Halloween parade to be sponsored by the North End Playground Association, tomorrow evening, through the North End section. Paulman will be assisted by Joseph Richards, Morris Goodman, Louis Dreyer, Charles Metzger, Michael Doyle and Samuel Drubeck.

The parade will form at the top of Riehl Avenue and the line of march will be down Fairview Avenue to Pulaski Street; out Columbia Street to Holland Street and up Holland to the playground. The judges stand will be located at the corner of Holland Street and Maplewood Lane.

Robert Herboldsheimer, general chairman, has announced the parade will get underway at 7:30 o'clock and prizes will be awarded for the best decorated bike, jitney, wagon, baby buggy and stroller; funniest costume, most original costume and prettiest costume.

The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will lead the parade and Buck Dreyer's rescue crew will be the last unit in the parade.

All residents of North End have been asked to contribute toward the party which will be held at the North End playground following the parade. Herboldsheimer explains that the idea of the party is to eliminate the "trick or treat" habit which has gotten somewhat out of hand during the past few years. People wishing to contribute should contact Mrs. Eddie Diehl, Mrs. Louis Dreyer, Mrs. Donald Paulman or Mrs. Herboldsheimer.

Judges for the affair will include Mrs. Chester Collins, Harry Matthews, Walter F. Riehl and J. Suter Kegg.

4-H Club Youths Are Offered Opportunity To Get Calves

In an effort to improve dairy herds in Maryland and encourage more Maryland farm boys and girls to raise pure-bred dairy cattle, the University of Maryland extension service is cooperating with the Maryland Holstein-Friesian Association and Maryland Co-operative Guernsey Breeders' Association, in two annual events.

According to Joseph M. Steger, Allegany and Garrett county 4-H Club boys, will be given opportunities to obtain thoroughbred dairy calves, as a result of these programs.

On December 20, at the University of Maryland Dairy Barns, the 1947 Holstein Heifer Party will be held, at which time calves will be offered for sale to eligible 4-H boys and girls of the state. A majority of the calves, if not all of them, Steger explained, will have been born between July 1, and November 1, 1947. There will be two classes, one at $100 and another at $125.

Blanks for this party are available at the County Farm Agent's office, Court House here, and no boy or girl who now owns more than two purebred Holstein females may participate.

The Guernsey Calf Selection Day for 4-H boys and girls will be held January 24 at Timonium Fair Grounds, Steger said. This plan is about the same as the Holstein Calf Party, with each animal a thoroughbred, pedigreed entry. The calves will be offered in four classes, $100; $125; $150; and $175.

Both sales are arranged so that all participants get an equal chance at the best animals, Steger explained, adding that there is considerable interest among 4-H groups in this section of the state. Available blanks must be filled out and returned by November 10, for the Holstein Party, and December 20, for the Guernsey Selection Day.

Student Ban From Pool Rooms, Theaters Asked

Decrease In School Absenteeism Sought

The managers of pool rooms, bowling alleys and theaters, yesterday were asked by the Allegany County Board of Education to keep children out of their establishments during class hours and thus aid in combatting unnecessary and illegal absenteeism.

Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of pupil personnel, who directed a letter to the amusement hall managers, said he has also held conferences with several police department chiefs in Allegany County in an effort to curb the illegal absenteeism from schools.

Approximately 60 per cent of all absenteeism in Allegany county schools results from unnecessary and illegal causes, Ramey asserted, adding that neglect and indifference on the part of parents and children as well as illegal employment contribute to the factor.

Cooperation Is Sought

In the letter directed to pool room and bowling alley managers, Ramel, stated:

"A number of boys have the practice of absenting themselves from school, spending the time when they should be in school in some of your establishments, either loitering or in some cases actually being employed as pin setters. This is contrary to law and also harmful to the boys, the bowling alleys and the educational system.

"What we specifically ask you to join us in doing is to see that no boy or girl, who is enrolled in school, spends any time during any school day, during the hours while school is in session, in any of your business places."

Theater managers were specifically requested to assist in "a program that will deny to any child of school age the privilege of purchasing a ticket for admission to any theater during the time that the schools are in session."

Board of Education officials pointed out that there is a direct relationship between attendance and academic success in school. Poor attendance, they declared, invariably brings about poor grades and resulting failure.

One school official declared that studies have revealed that outright truancy is frequently the forerunner of more serious youth delinquencies.

Will Check Establishments

Ramey said that many times this year personnel of the Board of Education Pupil Personnel Department have observed both boys and girls of high school and elementary school ages attending motion pictures during school hours or loitering about pool halls and bowling alleys.

Proprietors and managers of these various places are directly responsible to see that children do not hang around their establishment's during school hours, Ramey declared, adding "telling children to leave is not enough, they must be ejected."

School officials said that in permitting children of school age to loiter about pool halls, bowling alleys and attend matinees of motion pictures, managers are violating juvenile laws, and as a result may be arrested on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Ramey said checks of the amusement places in Allegany County will be from time to time as a follow up to the letter of request, and also told managers that the school board would be pleased to discuss the matter with them either individually or collectively.

Aged Man And Son Found Ill At Home

An aged Cumberland man and his son were found ill in their home on Grandview Terrace late yesterday after neighbors reported they had not seen the two men for about a week.

The Health Department investigated and notified State Police who removed Charles DeHaven, 77, and his son, Warren, 48, to Memorial Hospital last night about 9 o'clock.

Hospital attaches said the son had been ill for several weeks and that his father, who fell about a week ago, had been taking care of him.

The son, who complained of pain around his heart, said he had not eaten for several days. His condition was described as fair.

The father, complaining of a pain in his chest, a lump on the neck and an abrasion of the right leg, suffered in the fall, said he had had a "little bit" to eat. His condition was said to be good.

Temperature Reading

The temperature rose to a maximum of 82 degrees here yesterday from an overnight low of 45. Last night at 9:30 it had dropped to 62. Increasing cloudiness and scattered showers are forecast for today, lending possibility to the hope for rain to alleviate the extended dry "spell."

North End Halloween Celebration Will Be Featured By Big Parade

Donald Paulman will be grand marshal of the Halloween parade to be sponsored by the North End Playground Association, tomorrow evening, through the North End section. Paulman will be assisted by Joseph Richards, Morris Goodman, Louis Dreyer, Charles Metzger, Michael Doyle and Samuel Drubeck.

The parade will form at the top of Riehl Avenue and the line of march will be down Fairview Avenue to Pulaski Street; out Columbia Street to Holland Street and up Holland to the playground. The judges stand will be located at the corner of Holland Street and Maplewood Lane.

Robert Herboldsheimer, general chairman, has announced the parade will get underway at 7:30 o'clock and prizes will be awarded for the best decorated bike, jitney, wagon, baby buggy and stroller; funniest costume, most original costume and prettiest costume.

The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will lead the parade and Buck Dreyer's rescue crew will be the last unit in the parade.

All residents of North End have been asked to contribute toward the party which will be held at the North End playground following the parade. Herboldsheimer explains that the idea of the party is to eliminate the "trick or treat" habit which has gotten somewhat out of hand during the past few years. People wishing to contribute should contact Mrs. Eddie Diehl, Mrs. Louis Dreyer, Mrs. Donald Paulman or Mrs. Herboldsheimer.

Judges for the affair will include Mrs. Chester Collins, Harry Matthews, Walter F. Riehl and J. Suter Kegg.

Man Arrested Near Bloomington Admits Setting House On Fire

Accepts Blame For Three Other Blazes

Garrett County authorities said last night that a man arrested by State Police yesterday morning near Bloomington has admitted that he set four fires in the Bloomington area, including one that destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Duckworth yesterday.

The man, identified as Lawrence Elliott, 57, is held in the Garrett County Jail at Oakland and authorities said no charges have been filed against him yet nor a date set for a hearing.

State's Attorney Walter Dawson, of Garrett County, confirmed the fact that Elliott had admitted setting the fires but declined to elaborate.

Elliott, officials said, is the same man who, on October 1, attempted suicide by slashing his left wrist with a razor while he was held in the Mineral County, W. Va., jail at Keyser, for questioning by the West Virginia parole officer.

Mrs. Ervin Reel, wife of the Mineral County jailer, said Elliott, who served two years in Moundsville, W. Va., on a burglary charge, formerly lived in Elk Garden, W. Va., district.

Cpl. Thomas Currie, of the Maryland State Police, arrested Elliott yesterday morning on the B. and O. Railroad tracks near Bloomington, and Bloomington residents said his arrest came after he was recognized by a neighbor who saw him go to the Duckworth home a short time before it started to burn.

Garrett County authorities said Elliott admitted setting fire to the two-room frame house, located at the Charles Pattison mine on Backbone Mountain, about two miles from Bloomington, and also setting fire to a haystack on the Pattison farm about a quarter of a mile away as well as starting two small forest fires.

Duckworth, who recently completed building the house, was at work at the mine when the fire broke out, and Mrs. Duckworth and their daughter, 3, had left the home to go to a nearby spring, neighbors said. When they returned the house was in flames and miners prevented Mrs. Duckworth from entering the blazing building to obtain some of their belongings.

The family, according to Mrs. Charles Pattison, wife of the Bloomington fire chief, lost all of their belongings except the clothes they were wearing.

Bloomington firemen, who were called first to the haystack blaze, were summoned quickly to the house fire, but the house was beyond saving when they arrived. No water was available except that carried in the Bloomington fire engine tank.

Mrs. Pattison said the fire apparently started in the kitchen of the nicely furnished cottage about 10 a. m.

At Keyser, Mrs. Reel said Elliott, who was sentenced to Moundsville early in 1945, was picked up last September 14 by Sheriff James A. Dixon ona charge of violating his parole.

The parole officer did not recommend that he be imprisoned again, Mrs. Reel said, but Elliott continued to sleep and get his meals at the jail.

She said he left Friday morning and did not return, and Mrs. Pattison said Elliott had been observed in the vicinity of Bloomington over the weekend.

34 Are Examined At Rehabilitation Clinic Held Here

Five Point Service Program Is Offered

Thirty-two handicapped persons in Allegany and two in Garrett County are awaiting results of a diagnostic clinic held here last week, to determine the amount and type of service the Vocational Rehabilitation Division of Maryland can give them.

J. Leo Delaney, Allegany-Garrett Counties counselor, said the clinic, held in connection with the City Health Department and Maryland Unemployment Service, was for analysis of handicapped persons in the two counties that have been reported to the Rehabilitation Division.

The clinic will determine the type or types of service that will aid the handicapped persons, Delaney explained, adding that five distinct services, aimed at aiding the individual to become a self-supporting citizen, are offered.

The services according to Delaney, include:

1.—Medical treatment. 2.—Prosthetic appliances. 3.—Training in Schools or on the job. 4.—Selective placement. 5.—Councel and guidance.

As a result of the clinical examination which consisted of a personal interview, medical examination by a local physician and sychometric testing, the handicapped persons will be offered the services that rehabilitation counselors conclude are necessary to make them self-supporting citizens.

Once the results of the clinical examination are known, the counselor said, services will be offered those individuals who will benefit from them. Recent surveys, according to Delaney, have shown that of the 1,400 handicapped persons in Allegany County approximately 100 are receiving some service from the Rehabilitation Division.

Counselors seek to find permanent employment for handicapped persons in fields where their handicaps will not interfere with earning a livelihood, and in cases where medical attention is considered necessary to enable a person to become self sustaining, the Rehabilitation Division arranges for such treatment.

The over-all program of the state is aimed at assisting handicapped persons to become self sustaining and thus better citizens. The program is operated on the theory, counselors said, that it is better to spend approximately $300 to make a person self sufficient than it is to continually, year-after-year, give out grants through the charitable agencies.

Two Youths Questioned In Fracas At Inn

Two youths arrested Sunday in connection with a fracas at Rainbow Inn, south of Cresaptown on Route 220, late Saturday night, were questioned in the office of the State's Attorney yesterday and may be questioned again today, State Police said last night. They added that no charges have been filed against the pair.

One of the youths, Richard Judy, 19, Cresaptown, was picked up early Sunday morning, and the other Ferman N. "Sol" Lease, Route 5, was arrested late Sunday night.

Rizer Acquitted Of Holding Up Railroad Worker

Jury Deliberates Only 20 Minutes

After deliberating only 20 minutes, a Mineral County Circuit Court jury returned a verdict yesterday afternoon acquitting James Lewis Rizer, Wiley Ford, W. Va., who was tried for the armed robbery of a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad brakeman May 14 near Wiley Ford.

George L. Beeman, Cumberland, the prosecuting witness, was the first to take the stand yesterday morning and testified under direct examination by Prosecuting Attorney Vernon Rankin of Mineral County, that Rizer was the man who held him up in a wooded section near Wiley Ford.

He stated further that he and Rizer had met in a tavern on Front Street in Cumberland on the day of the alleged robbery. Beeman said that he had a .38 calibre Colt revolver in his pocket at the time and showed it to Rizer.

Beeman added that he and Rizer left the tavern about 7:30 p. m. and boarded a bus for Wiley Ford to go to the home of the latter's father. The witness stated that Rizer held him up with the gun after asking to carry it, bound and gagged him and removed all contents from his pockets.

He enumerated the articles as being a watch and chain valued at $71 and a billfold containing $5. Beeman then said he removed the gags and called for help. After leaving the scene of the alleged attack he went to the Cumberland police station and reported. Beeman identified the gun, watch and chain yesterday.

After examination by Rankin, cross examination by Attorney's H. F. Shores and Howard P. Shores, counsel for the defendant was started.

During this questioning Beeman denied that he had ever been convicted of armed robbery in Maryland or any other state. He also denied that he was drunk at the time of the alleged robbery, Attorney H. G. Shores said.

When asked if he had not first pulled the gun on Rizer, Beeman voiced denial and also denied having pawned his watch and chain for $5 to Rizer.

Officer Joseph Stitcher of the Cumberland Police Force, testified that Rizer had $1.38 in cash, the gun and holster, the watch and chain and six undischarged cartridges on his person when arrested.

C. V. Barncord, constable at Ridgeley, and Thomas J. See, of the Cumberland Police Force, told the court that they found Beeman's pocketknife, wallet and other personal belongings at the scene of the incident.

Disarmed Beeman

Rizer in his own defense, testified that Beeman had borrowed $5 from him, putting up his watch and chain as collateral. He stated on the stand, Attorney Shores said, that it was Beeman who put the gun into his ribs and demanded the watch back when they arrived at Wiley Ford.

Rizer, who is an expert boxer, said he disarmed Beeman, took the gun and holster from him, and went to Cumberland where he was arrested after a short time.

Incendiarism Suspected In New Wave Of Fires

New Blaze Reported Spreading In Grant

Grant County, W. Va., foresters reported a new woodland blaze near Bayard spreading rapidly last night, as Mineral County officials announced the arrest of one suspect and investigation of others in connection with conflagrations that have devastated approximately 20 square miles of timber land in that area.

District Forest Protector J. B. Saville, Romney, declared that the three major blazes in Mineral County were under control late last night, but said 25 men from the Elkins, W. Va., section had been taken to Bayard to fight the blaze that broke out yesterday morning.

Mineral County officials identified a suspect as Edward Trelach, Dawson, Md., and said he was being held in Mineral County Jail, Keyser, "for further investigation in connection with several of the blazes that raged out of control from Monday until Saturday of last week.

Claude Rice, Mineral Conservation Officer, asserted "I know there are firebugs setting fires in this section, and there are several others who will bear me out." Rice confirmed the fact that one suspect was under arrest.

It was Rice who estimated that three major forest fires had ravaged approximately 20 square miles of timber land in Mineral County, but he refused to make an estimate of the damage. "The real harm will not become known until next spring," he declared.

Calling For Men

District Forester Saville said the blaze was out of control near Bayard, but declared he has had no report on its origin nor the extent of the area in which it was burning. "It's big though," he stated, "because they are calling for lots of men."

Another blaze reportedly broke out in Berkeley County yesterday morning, but was brought under control late in the afternoon, according to Saville. He said he had no knowledge of the damage in that area either.

In Mineral County foresters said all fires were "under control", but warned that the "wrong kind of wind," could stir the entire area into a burning inferno once more.

Rice classified the three major blaze areas as Gerstell-Short Gap area, New Creek Mountain-Antioch area and Hoover's Hollow area, all in the eastern section of Mineral County.

With Mineral County foresters still on vigilant watch, law enforcement authorities apparently were swinging into work in earnest to round up suspects in connection with the blazes, and one official said warrants had been issued for six men who refused to answer "the fight the fire" calls.

One Fire Fighter Hurt

"The official did not identify the six men, but added that several more warrants will be issued shortly. These men regardless of whether they were going to work or not deliberately refused to fight fires and protect property." Conservation Officer Rice declared.

During the week-long threat of the three front blaze in Mineral, Rice said foresters and volunteers fought continuously to save homes and barns that were endangered. One fire fighter suffered injuries and is under the care of a Keyser physician, Rice stated, but he could not recall his name.

Rice said his statement that "firebugs" are responsible for many of the blazes can be backed up by others, and explained that in his opinion if and when the arrests are made it will prove to be a series of mental cases.

"Not one fire was reported in the area, until after stories of Maine's blazes were reported," he declared, "then all of a sudden forest fires began sweeping over large areas in Mineral County."

Several of the small blazes which were checked before getting out of control appeared to have been started deliberately, Rice explained.

Over 300 Acres Swept Yesterday

Eleven forest fires in this county, two in Garrett, three in Washington, and four in Frederick counties, kept forestry personnel of the Western Maryland District busy last night, and volunteer fire companies in a score of communities were alerted with half of them helping battle the flames which swept over more than 300 acres.

Shortly before midnight, William Parr, district forester, said all the fires are under control but several are still burning. All blazes are beong patrolled, he declared, adding that about 300 men engaged yesterday in fighting the conflagrations.

Several of the fires were believed to be of incendiary origin, with one arrest made in Garrett county, at least one expected in this county and another anticipated in Frederick county.

The worst blaze yesterday, actually two separate fires, Parr said, occurred on Dans Mountain, in the Dans Rock section, where 100 men fought fire which burned over more than 150 acres. These were new blazes and were in a different area from the 50 acre fire which occurred on Dans Mountain late last week. Volunteers from Vale Summit, Midland, McCoole, Cresaptown and Lonaconing fought these two fires, and 50 men were still on duty late last night.

Crews Exhausted

Parr said, his forestry crews have been on the go almost constantly since last Wednesday, and are exhausted. Yesterday an appeal was made to the Maryland State Police who assisted, and also aided in deputizing a number of citnzens for fire control work.

Parr said his forestry supervisor for this county, Brookes Bodkin, has been on the job steadily since Wednesday and has not been in bed since that time. The forester declared, "I have just ordered him to go to a hotel and go to bed before midnight. He must have some rest."

A fire on Williams Road, caused by brush-burning, late yesterday afternoon, which swept over two acres was extinguished by the fire company from District 16 and volunteers. The fire, about two miles from the city line, endangered three dwellings. Last night a second fire started in the area nearer the city, and one local fire unit was dispatched to the scene with orders to stand by and protect property.

A fire believed of incendiary origin burned over 10 acres on Pea Vine Run Road yesterday afternoon, and brought out five volunteer companies and a number of other volunteers. Bowman's Addition, Corriganville, Cresaptown, LaVale, Flintstone, and Bedford Road units responded, and were still standing by at their stations late last night.

Bowman's Addition, Flintstone, Bedford Road, and District 16 companies responded to a call at 8 p. m. and extinguished a two-acre fire on the Twigtown Road at Millstone, just off Oldtown Road. Firemen said this fire and the Pea Vine Run Road fire "were deliberately set."

Residents of the Pea Vine Run area told of a car passing as the flames started, with four small blazes starting at almost regular intervals as the car passed. These fires soon merged into one larger blaze.

Blaze Near Dawson

Eagles To Induct Class Of Forty

A class of 40 candidates will be initiated tonight by Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, to bring the local lodge's membership past the 3,400 mark, according to C. William H. Baer, worthy president.

Baer said last night the class is named in honor of State President Howard G. Dressel, Baltimore. Baer, who is also a past state president, is serving his third term as president of the local Aerie. He served in 1933 and again in 1934.

The national Eagle organization, Baer explained, is celebrating its golden anniversary throughout the fiscal year, June 1, 1947 to May 31, 1948, and plans to conduct special classes of candidates each month during the year. Cumberland Aerie is six months ahead of their assigned quota for new members, Baer stated.

At tonight's initiation, the president plans to present a diamond Eagle lapel button to a member for bringing in the most new applications.

Herman L. Myers, publicity chairman, said it is important that all members attend these initiation meetings, and tonight's session will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

Greek Army Recalls Mrs. Diamond's Brother

Mrs. Richard Diamond, 508 Pearre Street, has received word that her brother, Nick Baker, who served as a lieutenant in the Greek Army during World War II, has been recalled to service.

In his letter, Baker said he was among the 10 classes (age groups) who were recalled.

He said he had been teaching in a school in Macedonia when the call came and that the Greek Government took his family back to their former home in Athens.

4-H Club Youths Are Offered Opportunity To Get Calves

In an effort to improve dairy herds in Maryland and encourage more Maryland farm boys and girls to raise pure-bred dairy cattle, the University of Maryland extension service is cooperating with the Maryland Holstein-Friesian Association and Maryland Co-operative Guernsey Breeders' Association, in two annual events.

According to Joseph M. Steger, Allegany and Garrett county 4-H Club boys, will be given opportunities to obtain thoroughbred dairy calves, as a result of these programs.

On December 20, at the University of Maryland Dairy Barns, the 1947 Holstein Heifer Party will be held, at which time calves will be offered for sale to eligible 4-H boys and girls of the state. A majority of the calves, if not all of them, Steger explained, will have been born between July 1, and November 1, 1947. There will be two classes, one at $100 and another at $125.

Blanks for this party are available at the County Farm Agent's office, Court House here, and no boy or girl who now owns more than two purebred Holstein females may participate.

The Guernsey Calf Selection Day for 4-H boys and girls will be held January 24 at Timonium Fair Grounds, Steger said. This plan is about the same as the Holstein Calf Party, with each animal a thoroughbred, pedigreed entry. The calves will be offered in four classes, $100; $125; $150; and $175.

Both sales are arranged so that all participants get an equal chance at the best animals, Steger explained, adding that there is considerable interest among 4-H groups in this section of the state. Available blanks must be filled out and returned by November 10, for the Holstein Party, and December 20, for the Guernsey Selection Day.

Small Audience Hears Vets Chorus

A small but appreciative audience, numbering about 445 persons, heard the American Male Chorus in a concert of sacred, classical and popular music last night at Fort Hill High School. The concert was presented under the auspices of Cumberland Lions Club, for the benefit of its Sight Conservation Fund.

C. A. Fisher, president of the Lions said "the concert was wonderful and those who attended will never forget it. Those who didn't hear it, can never possibly realize what they missed."

Lewis Bullock, organizer and director of the chorus got here just in time for the curtain raiser. He had been in New York on business over the weekend and took a plane yesterday to Washington. He missed a train from Washington to Cumberland, and when he found he could not get here in time for the 8 o'clock concert by train or bus, he took a taxi cab to the outskirts of the city, and hitch-hiked his way in by 7:55 p. m.

The chorus is composed of all veterans of World War II and was organized in the Philippines during the war. The current tour will take the singers to 90 American cities.
